Jet liner Crashes With 78 Aboard

Chances of Survivors Rated Dim

HENDERSONVILLE, N.C. (AP) - - A Piedmont Airlines Boeing 727 with 78 persons aboard crashed near this mountain city today after colliding in flight with a smaller plane.

A Sheriff's Department spokesman said there appeared to be no survivors.

A sheriff's deputy at the scene said bodies were strewn "all over the area" just off Interstate 26, about 2.5 miles northeast of the city.

The deputy said 35 bodies had been counted two hours after the

Rail Service Near Normal

NEW YORK (AP) — The nation's railroads picked up momentum today as they rolled back toward normal operations. But some lines said full service was still a day or so away.

In the isolated instances where pickets still refused to bow to the congressional back-to-work order, the railroads were seeking relief in the courts.

By Tuesday night picketing had apparently stopped in California, but protest rallies were being planned by some machinists.

Sigmund Arywitz, head of the Los Angeles County Labor Federation, said: "By its action, Congress has substantially diminished our freedoms in this country."

In Cleveland, the New York Central System said shopcraft employes reported for work on regular shifts today, after the line obtained a restraining order from U.S. District Judge Ben C. Green to get 1,200 men at its Collinwood yards back on the job.

The Louisville & Nashville reported its trains running again in Kentucky but said it would take a day or two to get back into full operations.

The Southern Railway secured a temporary injunction against the unions in U.S. District Court in Chattanooga Tuesday, claiming irreparable damage to the company and the public.

The Southern claimed the strike was causing damages of $75,000 a day to Southern alone and asked that the unions be required to make it up.

President Johnson Tuesday appointed a five-man panel headed by Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., to mediate the wage dispute that resulted in the first nationwide rail strike in 20 years.

Others on the panel will be Fred Kappel, retired president of the American Telephone & Telegraph Co.; Theodore Kheel, New York labor mediator) Leverett Saltonstall, former Republican senator from Massachusetts and George Meany, president of the AFL-CIO.

The back-to-work legislation signed Monday by Johnson calls for a government-written settlement if the six shopcraft unions and management are unable to reach agreement in 90 days.

The workers, who now average from $2.94 to $3.05 per hour, were seeking increases of 6.5 per cent this year and 5 per cent next year, plus 12.5 cents per hour each year for higher skilled men.

The railroads reportedly offered a 6 per cent wage hike over 18 months plus one five-cent raise for skilled workers.

Collegians to Be Coffee House Guests

By Carol Miller

The Mustard Seed, usually limited to high school students, will open its doors to college students and young careerists at a special session tonight at 7:30 p.m.

There will be a panel discussion of the new morality, live guitar music and folk singing.

The coffee house, experimentally operated by five churches as a wholesome recreational outlet for teenagers, is open on Tuesday and Thursday nights from 7:30 p.m. to 10:30 p.m. to high school students.

St. Francis Xavier, Hunter Memorial First Presbyterian, First Christian, Trinity Baptist and first Methodist churches sponsor the biweekly meetings in the parish house of First Methodist.

"It is a pleasant, informal place where students can meet and talk about anything and find concern from interested adults," Mrs. Keith Collins, 9 Bel Air Drive, one of the originators, commented.

The mode is casual in dress and decor. Under colored lights participants sit in air-conditioned atmosphere on pillows with a coffee bar available. It is patterned after coffee houses for collegians.

Each night there is a happening. In past weeks this happening has consisted of original drama, music, discussions, play readings, and "anything to challenge youth to the awareness of the values of contemporary life," said Mrs. Collins.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Rubey, 609 Vernon St., have been employed by the coffee house committee to be managers for the summer.

The Mustard Seed will remain open until August and may be reopened next summer.

Student Association Having Trouble Since CIA Split

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Student Association, which huffily divorced the Central Intelligence Agency in February, is having typical marital estrangement difficulties: Who gets the house and who pays the bills?

Both sides were embarrassed when the student-CIA tie was disclosed by former NSA officers. The NSA got brickbats from its members for accepting money from a government agency that spies and influences; the CIA blushed like an undercover agent who drops his badge at a Mafia meeting.

But the student association still has its national headquarters in two expensive interconnected townhouses, and it is paying nothing for them under an agreement with the Independence Foundation of Boston.

The foundation, the NSA president says, is a CIA conduit, or way to pass things like money without revealing the real source.

W. Eugene Groves, president of the NSA, says the foundation is not trying to collect rent. It simply wants to be rid of its tenant. The students want to keep their headquarters, but they don't want the CIA to pay for it.

"They are in the hot seat and want us out of the building," says Groves. "We had one meeting with the attorney for the CIA. He was rather nasty, using a lot of bluff, threats that we punctured very easily."

What kind of threats?

"One is drying up the Independence Foundation in order that the leasor would no longer own the building."

The CIA, being in the secrecy business, won't comment one way or another. But a source familiar with CIA operations says any thoughts of threats would be ridiculous.

The Independence Foundation in the years 1962 through 1964 listed contributions to the NSA of $50,584.52, $55,101.15 and $48,988.09 in its income tax records.

New Violence Sends Guards to Cairo

CAIRO, Ill. (AP)— A new outbreak of flames, gunfire and a stabbing brought National Guardsmen to duty in this historic city today.

Peace was restored after Gov. Otto Kerner ordered out 50 troops. His office said he acted at the request of the sheriff and the chief of police.

Violence occurred Tuesday for the second time in three nights in Cairo, a city where Negroes make up about half of the population of about 9,800.

Police said a fire broke out at 10:20 p. m. Tuesday at the White-Coleman Lumber Co. A watchman fired several shots at persons he suspected were involved.

No cases of wounds were reported at hospitals.

The fires were extinguished.

There also was sporadic sniping during the night. Police returned the fire.

A white woman, Mrs. Alma Witaker, went into the Pyramid Court public housing project on the West Side just before dark Tuesday night to pick up her laundry. She told police that, as she got out of her car, a young Negro girl stabbed her in the arm and fled.

The housing project is occupied by Negroes.

Troops surrounded the housing project, but the number on duty there at midmorning was reduced to four.

Lt. Jerry Lebo, commander of the guard unit, said his soldiers were under orders to return any gunfire.

The troops are members of 1st Battalion, 130th Infantry. They live in Southern Illinois, including Cairo.

"This is not a race riot," said Preston Ewing, president of the Cairo chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People. "It was a limited number of people, and it wasn't spontaneous."

He attributed the violence to about 100 persons, most of them teen agers who are jobless and have nothing to do.

Volence first broke out Sunday night, when fire destroyed a warehouse and damaged three stores.

Withdrawal of the state police Ewing said, was a factor in the renewed vandalism.

Ewing said job discrimination and a dearth of recreation rank first on his list of Negro problems in this city in a cotton-growing region at the confluence of the Ohio and Mississippi rivers 337 miles south of Chicago.

He said Negroes respect the state police and National Guardsmen but dislike Cairo police for what he termed police brutality.

"Nobody in the white power structure wants to take any affirmative action," Ewing told a newsman, "because they are afraid of the white backlash."

Mayor Lee Stenzel has ordered an investigation of Negro grievances.

"No police brutality will be tolerated." he stated.

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — America's Lunar Explorer spacecraft streaked toward the moon today on a mission viewed as the "last chance" to learn about potential radiation hazards facing moon-bound astronauts.

The windmill-shaped craft, officially named Explorer 35, bolted skyward at 10:19 a.m. (EDT) on a fiery Delta rocket to begin a planned three-day trip toward an egg-shaped orbit about the moon.

There it is to spend two to three years studying radiation dangers and investigating whether a cone-shaped tail that trails earth-caused by this planet's magnetic field— could shield Apollo astronauts from radiation spewed into space by storms on the sun.

"All indications are that we have a good start to the flight," a National Aeronautics and Space Administration spokesman said as the mooncraft raced toward its target 225,608 miles away.

If there are no problems, a retro-rocket will be triggered Saturday morning to slow the speed so the payload will be caught in the grasp of the moon's gravity field.

The spokesman said all aspects of the mission appeared normal at that time.

Police Report Three Accidents

Three accidents were reported by police Tuesday afternoon. None were injured.

A car driven by Stephen Penrod, 53, 611 South Kingshighway, struck the front end of an automobile driven by Miss Elva Manche, 231 Moore, at 3:49 p.m. at Malone and Kingshighway. No summons was issued. Police are investigating.

An automobile driven by Pluit Wiggins, 106 Thompson, struck a parked car owned by Samuel A. Baker, 33, 410 West North St., at 5:53 p.m. Tuesday. The accident occurred in front of the Baker residence.

Minor damage was caused to both vehicles when a car driven by Vernice M. Simmons, Senath, backed into a parked car at 12:25 p.m. Tuesday on the Cream Castle Parking lot. Her car struck a vehicle owned by Gary Boyer, 809 Harvard, police reported.

Underwood on Air Tour of Costa Rica

He placed first in a recent examination of air cadets in Missouri, and was accompanied by Richard Neal, Cape Girardeau, who scored second.

The two cadets flew from St. Louis to Washington, D.C., where they joined other cadets of the 50 wings in the nation. They were briefed last night before departing for the Central American country Thursday.

They were flown to Costa Rica by members of the air force and senior civil air patrol members.

Underwood is a son of Mr. and Mrs. John M. Underwood, route two. He graduated from Sikeston high school in May. He received a four - year scholarship to Missouri University, where he will be in the naval reserve officers training corps.

LEAVING FOR AN AIR TOUR of Costa Rica Tuesday is Brian Underwood, middle, receiving congratulations from City Manager W. Raymert Miller at the municipal airport. There he emplaned for Cape Girardeau to join another civil air patrol cadet. Underwoods parents, Mr. and Mrs. John M. Underwood, route two, stand at the left. The plane was piloted by Lt. Vancil Moye, aerospace education officer of the CAP squadron.

British Decision Grieved

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Dean Rusk said today the United States regrets Britain's decision to cut its defense commitments in the Far East by the mid-1970s but warned the Communists not to "take any comfort" from the British announcement.

Rusk told a news conference that the countries in that part of the world are determined to defend their freedom and they have the help of various nations including the United States, and he added:

"We'll get on with the job."

Speaking at his first on-the-record Washington news conference in four months, Rusk also declared:

1. The United States still hopes very much to get an agreed limitation — with Russia and others — on the arms buildup in the Middle East, but "I cannot say that I am encouraged about the prospects."

2. The United States is prepared to try to find points of agreement with the Soviet Union whether they be on small issues such as cultural exchanges, or world crises such as Vietnam and the Middle East. But, he added, the United States has no illusions of easy accords nor does it misjudge "the depth and importance of the matters which separate us."

Rusk praised the Glassboro conference as a contribution to greater understanding between President Johnson and Premier Alexei N. Kosygin.

3. The United States and South Vietnam are making progress in their fight against Communist conquest of South Vietnam, and Rusk said the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong forces are being hurt "very badly." But he made clear that he does not see any way out of the conflict in the predictable future, saying "no one", obviously including Soviet Premier Kosygin — has been able to tell the U.S. government what North Vietnam would do if the United States stopped bombing the North.

Rusk rejected descriptions of the Vietnam conflict as a stalemate. He said he would not quarrel with Gen. William C. Westmoreland's description of it as a "war of attrition" but declared even that was an inadequate label for a very complicated situation.

4. The problem of providing guarantees to Red China's neighbors against nuclear attack now that China has exploded a hydrogen bomb will "no doubt" come up in the continuing disarmament conference at Geneva and perhaps in the U.N. Security Council. Rusk would

Toll Road Assn. Meets

The purpose of the organization and the meeting is to show community interest and ask for an early feasibility study for a toll road from northwest to southeast Missouri.

Representatives from Kansas City, Sedalia, Rolla, Perryville, Jackson, and Cape Girardeau also had arrived before noon.

The group organized in a Rolla meeting about a month ago, Allen Robinson, Cape Girardeau Chamber of Commerce manager said.

Pony Killed On Interstate

A pony was struck and killed on Interstate 55, two and one-half miles south of Benton at 3:30 a.m. Tuesday, by a Northbound 1967 Chevrolet, driven by Bill Anderson, 32, Charleston.

Horses ran in front of the vehicle. The driver avoided striking them but hit the pony damaging the vehicle.

A driver of a 1959 Farmall tractor, Robert Silman Jr., 23, Portageville, was bruised and scratched in a collision with a car Tuesday at 1:10 p.m. on highway 61, one quarter mile south of Marston.

A 1960 Oldsmobile, driven by Ruby Marie Thurman, 40, Earle, Ark., started to pass the tractor, pulling a cultivator, when he dropped back because of the approach of a car. The Oldsmobile struck the tractor, injuring Silman, who was treated at the Painter Clinic in Portageville.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!
STILL WAITING

In his current newsletter, the junior U.S. Senator from Missouri, Edward V. Long, passes along some valuable information, not excluding his wife's recipe for "Honey Dew Salad." At the end of the newsletter, almost as an afterthought, the junior Senator adds these words:

"Want you to know that recent charges against me and my Senate Subcommittee have increased my determination to keep up the fight for the citizen's right of privacy. As your Senator, I do not intend to let attempts to smear me and intimidate me halt my work in behalf of my State and the people of this nation."

This is an interesting paragraph, even if it only serves to point up the fact that our junior Senator apparently does not realize the gravity of the disclosures - not smears - that have been made against him.

In order that those who might have received Senator Long's newsletter will not be deceived, we think it would be well to place several points in proper perspective.

First of all, there have been no charges brought against Senator Long, as of this moment. Although it is reported the Senate Ethics Committee is investigating the Missouri lawmaker, there are now no formal charges placed against him.

Secondly, there have been disclosures, starting with an article in Life Magazine, that Sen. Long has been on the receiving end of large legal fees paid by a St. Louis law firm specializing in representing criminal and union labor elements, including Jimmy Hoffa and St. Louis Steamfitter officials.

Third, as far as we know, there have been no charges or disclosures against the sub-committee that Long heads. Members of the subcommittee are not the subject of disclosures nor did other Senators on the unit receive legal fees from the Shenker law firm.

Fourth, Sen. Long says he intends to keep up "the fight for citizen's right of privacy." Sen. Long has been in the upper legislative chamber since 1960, and his "fight" may be the longest one in history. Most observers say there are already sufficient laws on the books to protect personal privacy; what is needed now is strict enforcement of existing laws. This is hardly in Sen. Long's realm as a legislator; his function is to investigate the need for new laws, not enforce those already enacted.

The junior Senator has said he does not intend to halt his work in the Congress. We presume he means until the citizens of Missouri have an opportunity to judge his performance at the polls.

Strangely, he makes no mention of whether he intends to halt his fee taking from the Shenker law firm.

Strangely, he makes no disclosure of why he received the fees and what kind of work he did for the St. Louis firm while on the public's payroll as a legislator.

Several weeks ago Sen. Long indicated he would vindicate himself by bringing forth documents to show that he was innocent of any conflicts of interest.

The people of Missouri are still waiting.

JOHNSON MORE POPULAR?

We can't believe that seeing President Johnson shake hands with Soviet Premier Aleksei Kosygin at Glassboro, N.J., has caused the American people to send LBJ's popularity rating to a new high.

The fact is that anyone who read Kosygin's words in his news conference at the U.N. after the summit meeting should know the Communist line hasn't changed one bit. He called Israelis the "aggressor" and admitted that the Soviets were re-equipping Nasser with planes and tanks. He denounced Stalin's daughter who escaped to the United States as a "sick person" and "morally unstable."

In spite of this, the Johnson Administration is pretending that a new era of Soviet-American reconcilliation may have blossomed with the "spirit of Hollybush."

This is pure, unadulterated political baloney. Just ask any American service man in Vietnam where men are being killed by Soviet-made guns and ammunition delivered under the nose of our naval fleet in the Gulf of Tonkin.

The Communist leaders in Russia are not our friends and the Russian people enslaved by them would be our friends if they could get rid of their inhuman government. Only if this happens will we eventually have peace on this earth. - Atchison Kansas Globe.

It's ironic and incredible that the pinch of the nationwide railroad strike isn't felt most severely in the spot where it will do the most good - Congress.

With the railroads stalled while there is a war on and rioting in many city streets - even nearby Cairo - the combined chaos is too closely comparable to pre-DeGaulle France for comfort.

Americans have always prided themselves on their common sense and stability. But where are these admirable and necessary ingredients today? They certainly are submerged temporarily or at the worst absent from our society today.

Sen. Ralph Yarborough, Texas Democrat, is the author of a profound statement in commenting on the latest crisis inflicted by labor unions on the general welfare of the American people:

He said that striking unions and the railroads "have forced the hand of Congress."

Oh, yeh?

The hand of Congress has been forced time after time. The Johnson administration and many of its predecessors have appeased again and again. The process will be repeated throughout the days and months and the years ahead.

Why? Because politicians refuse to accept any responsibility to help the people who elect them to office if their action will offend any special interest groups.

A major catastrophe. A complete and sweeping breakdown in government. By then it could be too late.

But yesterday after repeated warnings time had run out on Congress. The long predicted railroad strike had materialized.

What did Congress do?

Senate and House conferees could not agree even on a formula for legislation to end this particular strike let alone measures to end such walkouts, which will directly affect the national welfare and security in the future.

So at a time when the nation's solvency is threatened, business is limping, a recession is threatened, the flow of arms to Vietnam is imperiled, metropolitan workers can't report for work, traffic is snarled and the innocent are punished for a strike that is not of their making.

All of this so that greedy union leaders can deliver a wage increase to railroad shop-craft workers.

What the country needs is a federal law requiring compulsory arbitration of management - labor disputes as a last resort device to prevent strikes affecting the national welfare and security.

It also needs fewer spineless politicians.

BOOK CLUB "DROPOUT"

An Indianapolis man found it is easier to get into than out of a book club, writes Bill Wildhack in the Indianapolis News.

This fellow had belonged to the club for some time but decided to cancel his membership. He sent a letter to the outfit telling it he was dropping out.

The only response was more books.

So he set another letter or resignation to the club. He received more books.

He stopped sending the books back...and didn't pay for them. He received more books accompanied by messages to "please remit."

Finally the fellow's wife returned home one day to find a letter from the book club addressed to her.

The letter said the club was sorry to hear about the death of her husband and extended its sympathy. The balance due would be forgiven, the letter said.

"You didn't!" she said to her husband.

He nodded and grinned.

The only thing we can add to this story is that perhaps this technique should be applied to the numerous requests for donations that come in the mail.

INDUSTRY PLANS BILLIONS FOR POLLUTION CURB

Industry has invested more than $1 billion in water pollution control facilities, spends more than $100 million per year to operate them, and will undoubtedly spend "billions" to control pollution in the future, the President of the National Association of Manufacturers said in a recent Pittsburgh, Penna., speech.

Addressing the 50th anniversary meeting of the Hydraulic Institute, W. P. Gullander said that both the percentage of the plants treating their wastes and dollar figures for pollution abatement will continue to rise as the states set water quality standards under the Water Quality Act of 1965. NAM and its affiliated National Industrial Council are "endeavoring to render every assistance and encouragement to the states in their standard - setting activities," he added.

However, investments in control facilities, while having social benefits, in most cases do not contribute to profits, Mr. Gullander said. For this reason, the NAM president explained, NAM advocates that recognition of the costs involved take the form of accelerated amortization, up to and including immediate write-off, at the option of the taxpayer without loss of investment credit.

In praising the hydraulic pump manufactuers in helping to satisfy industry's huge demands for water, Mr. Gullander quoted an NAM 1965 survey which stated that the average plant recirculated and reused a gallon of water almost three times, thereby reducing industry's water intake needs from 80 billion gallons to 30 billion gallons per day.

The NAM report, "Water in Industry," indicated that only 6 percent of industry's total water intake was consumed or lost. The remainder was returned to streams, lakes and oceans, he said.

Mr. Gullander urged industrial management to exert leadership in the activities of river basin planning commissions by contributing to and participating in fact - finding studies, presenting facts and viewpoints at commission hearings, and submitting recommendations concerning future development of water resources within the river basin.

"Such participation is vitally necessary to assure that private enterprise will not be bypassed in future water resources development, and to insure the construction of economically feasible projects based on sound engineering investigation," he stated.

NEW YORK (AP) — Jumping to conclusions:

You have a better likelihood of living longer if you spend your rainy Sunday mornings in a church rather than on a golf course. Very few people have been struck by lightning while sitting in a pew and listening to a sermon.

If all the people who've rushed away to the country knew how pleasant Manhattan is without them, they'd all come rushing right back.

If they had it to do over again, six out of 10 men would prefer to marry a red-haired girl with freckles. The trouble is there aren't enough of them to go around.

There is nothing more ignorant than refusing to go to a doctor for fear he'll find something wrong with you. But there are thousands upon thousands of middle-aged Americans who are that dumb.

Chicken salad has replaced hash as the most mysterious dish on restaurant menus. Even a gourmet can't tell by the taste what it's really made of.

Guys who sport sideburns are straddlers and compromisers. They don't want to look like the majority of mankind, but lack the courage to grow a beard and be really different.

Most men who lunch at delicatessens usually eat the dill pickle on the plate. Most women don't.

Orthodontists and psychoanalysts are probably the most competitive of all professional people. They rarely think anyone else in the same line of work really knows his stuff.

Geography plays a strange role in our lives. Big ears make a fellow self-conscious and bashful in our civilization because they are ridiculed. But in the Far East big ears give a man self-confidence. They are taken there as a sign of wisdom.

A REAL OPPORTUNITY

Prospects for labor reform legislation are improving, but no hasty action is anticipated. There probably never was a more receptive public attitude toward labor reform, due to the costly New York transit strike and the more recent damaging rail strike.

Some proposals offered for consideration are: 1. Abolish NLRB and assign its functions to a Labor Court; 2. Extend protection against compulsory union membership, now in 19 states, to the 50 states; 3. Guarantee secret elections in deciding on whether to have a union; 4. Protect members against union fines in exercising right to work; 5. Restore free speech to employers; 6. Relieve employers from having to rehire strikers who engage in violence or coercive activity.

There is a real opportunity to protect both the public and the workman from destructive labor warfare that is so damaging to the nation and the time to start is now. The Washington Report of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, says that the prospect for "labor reform legislation" is improving, but that it won't come tomorrow.

INDUSTRIALIST LAUNCHES URBAN RENEWAL PLANS

While official Washington is considering ways and means of implementing the Demonstration Cities act, to renew rundown cities, private initiative in the person of Joyce C. Hall, founder and chairman of Hallmark Cards, demonstrates how he is going to do it.

Taking 85 acres near the Kansas City business district, plans have been filed to upgrade this area around his headquarters into a model urban community, at a cost estimated to exceed $100 million, which will be financed entirely by a Hallmark subsidiary unless other suitable private investors can be found.

The project provides essentially for offices and apartments rather than retail or commercial facilities. Included are a luxury hotel of 400 rooms, two motels, numerous office buildings totaling 1.1 million square feet and 2,500 residential units. Only 150,000 square feet have been earmarked for retail sales. The plan also calls for 7,040 parking spaces, mostly underground or in covered facilities.

The estimated cost of this initial phase is $45 million. A construction start is scheduled for early next year. The three other phases would follow. They would include clusters of apartment and commerical buildings plus parking.

TIME TO TAKE STOCK

When a nation is up to its ears in debt, and taking some one third of the income of its people for taxes, and running deficits, you would thinks its managers (the elected public officials) would welcome and encourage taxpaying private industry that provides revenue for federal, state and local governments. But, many political proposals today restrict the operation of the taxpaying private enterprise system -- the foundation of a free society.

The impression given is that political management can in some manner serve the people better than can private management. The proponents of tax-exempt government competition with citizens never point out that such policies kill taxpaying industries that provide jobs and support government. They never show that under such policies, government puts some of its best customers (taxpaying enterprise) out of business. It is as senseless for government to harass and discourage business by such practices as it would be for managers of industry to promote policies to put their customers out of business. We have spent billions of tax dollars and thousands of lives opposing the spread of the totalitarian government philosophy in two world wars and other conflicts. But our politicians go merrily on promoting its inroads in our own land. Is it not reasonable to ask -- where are we headed?

Freedom dies without resistance to political forces working to restrict free enterprise.

H. L. Hunt Says

Never has the inability of the United Nations to act effectively in a world crisis been more convincingly demonstrated than in recent weeks. Only the naive or the uninformed can be truly surprised by this. The UN was never fashioned to advance the cause of peace with freedom.

This disorganized organization was built on a quicksand foundation. Its flaws have been sharply pointed up by the influx of many small nations into the General Assembly. When the UN was organized in 1945 it had 50 members. Seventy - two have been added since then, the number including 46 newly independent nations shopped out of former colonial areas. Out of a present total membership of 122, there are 69 nations with populations smaller than that of New York City.

Each of these "nations," no matter how tiny, has one vote in the UN General Assembly. The Maldive Islands, with a population of 97,000 is a full member of the UN. Its vote in the General Assembly carried the same weight as the vote of the United States. It is significant that these small member - nations want to keep questions of crisis in the General Assembly instead of placing them before the Security Council. Most of them lean toward the communist world.

Also, to be noted is the fact that of the more than 6000 people employed in UN headquarters in New York more than two-thirds are either from communist countries or from countries closely allied with communism. The cards are stacked against the free world in the UN with respect to both the membership and the staff. HLH.

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON - Major American policy is sometimes influenced by minor conversations, and it's now revealed that the clinching talk by which President Johnson decided the time and place of the Summit Conference with Premier Kosygin was held in a phone booth in a filling station beside a New Jersey highway.

Of course a lot of discussion took place before the conversation in the phone booth. And since the Glassboro meeting was one of the most important in a decade of American diplomacy, it seems worth while to report the hitherto unrecorded facts of exactly what happened.

Privately President Johnson favored the meeting, but he wasn't sure what the international repercussions would be. So he played hard to get. First he asked some of his key foreign policy advisers to put their views in writing as to what was to be gained or risked from seeing Kosygin. Walt Rostow wrote the longest letter; secretary of Defense McNamara the shortest. But all recommended that he hold the meeting. For the sake of argument he still opposed the conference.

He then sent Secretary of State Dean Rusk to New York to sound out the Russians. Rusk phoned that he had talked with Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko, who believed the meeting should be held.

"Have you talked to Kosygin?" the President asked.

Rusk had not.

"Well, talk to him," instructed the President.

Rusk reported that Kosygin's reaction was favorable.

Gov. Richard Hughes of New Jersey, meanwhile, had told Presidential Assistant Walter Rostow that it was too bad Johnson and Kosygin couldn't meet for lack of a meeting place. He suggested three possible rendezvous in New Jersey: Morven, the old Colonial Mansion near Princeton which serves as the governor's residence; second, Princeton University; third, Rutgers University.

However, the President wanted some place which would be near an airport, not too near a big city where there might be demonstrations and security risks. The White House suggested some New Jersey estate.

Gov. Hughes canvassed the latter situation but reported back: "I'm a poor boy and don't know any rich people with big estates."

It was lucky he didn't, because the Russians in the end were highly impressed with the modest surroundings of Glassboro State College, which the Governor finally suggested to the White House.

CLEAR IT WITH THE DOCTOR

The President finally asked Hughes whether he had cleared the meeting with the President of the college, Dr. Thomas E. Robinson. Hughes had not. The President cautioned that this be done.

What the governor had actually done was to tell Dr. Robinson that he wanted a meeting place for a group of New Jersey and Pennsylvania legislators, and that he was considering Glassboro State College in this connection. He gave this as the excuse for asking Robinson whether helicopters could be landed on the college campus, what communications facilities were available, etc. Never did he tell Robinson that the world's two most powerful men were going to descend upon him. Later, Gov. Hughes apologized to Robinson for this phony story, and the two have joked about it.

Meanwhile, as the telephone calls were going back and forth between New Jersey and Washington, newsmen had sensed that the Johnson - Kosygin meeting was definitely in the works, and were clamoring for official confirmation. George Christian, the unruffled White House press secretary, urged the President to give him definite word.

"I've got a hundred newspapermen climbing the wall," he said.

But Gov. Hughes had not called back to report that he had cleared the meeting with Dr. Robinson. Instead, he left his office in Trenton. The President tried to telephone him but got word that the governor was en route home.

There were more demands from newspapermen for a final announcement on the meeting. But LBJ refused until the Governor had called back that he had cleared with Dr. Robinson.

Gov. Hughes was still not available.

Finally, the President himself got on the phone.

"Honey," he told the operator, "The Governor of New Jersey must have a radiotelephone in his car. Get him on the phone and say I want to speak to him."

The message finally reached the Governor of New Jersey. He got out of his car and went to a phone booth in a filling station to call back the President of the United States. If he had called back from the radiophone in his car any ham operator could have picked up the conversation.

The Governor told the President that everything was set, and that he was en route to Glassboro to notify Dr. Robinson, who was still in the dark that the two most powerful men in the world were to be his guests.

It was at this point that the White House announced the meeting.

Immediately the calls began deluging Dr. Robinson. The London Times, Tass, AP, UPI, all phoned the President of Glassboro State College.

Dr. and Mrs. Robinson had been sitting in their living room, having a cup of tea. They were a little stunned at first, but took the news gracefully.

A few minutes later, Gov. Hughes arrived to tell them the whole story.

WAR OVER COMPULSORY ARBITRATION

Washington, D.C.: -- The crash had to come. Finally, a union president, soft-spoken Roy Siemiller, who couldn't be pressured, and a President of the U. S., table-pounding Lyndon Johnson, who wouldn't be pressured, met head on in the rail strike. The stoppage is not the issue. The massive stakes, unseen by the public for the moment, are the issues which will bring collision after collision right through the 1968 election.

What Roy Siemiller, the Machinists' president, is fighting for is big labor's right to strike regardless of what is hit -- ball powder plants, painfully vital jet engines, all systems of transportation, aircraft carriers, nuclear submarines, fuel supplies, critical ammunition, the waterfront, rubber, copper and steel mills, jet fighter plane production as well as railroads.

What Siemiller really is fronting for is American labor's demand for the right to strike without interference from the White House or the Congress -- Vietnam or no Vietnam.

This, President Johnson --- though he's closer to American labor than any other president ever has been --- simply cannot permit. There is the war. There is the national election.

The labor leaders have their constituencies. The President has his.

So, from his command post inside the White House, he told presidential aide Joe Califano and Labor Secretary Willard Wirtz, among others, to stand pat, telephone (as did Wirtz to Siemiller on Sunday) but don't compromise on the strike. He told the machine gun-tongued Sen. Wayne Morse to hold tight. Thus in seven sessions of the Senate-House conferences on the bill, labor's Congressional allies made nine specific efforts to move Morse and the White House. The President did not budge.

Mr. Johnson knew if he did yield to his labor friends, next year would be the most crisis laden-presidential campaign-wartime period since the British burned the White House.

The duel with 137,000 members of six shop craft unions led directly by lame duck Machinists vice president Joe Ramsey is just the first skirmish on the lines. In January, the lines (now led by lame duck negotiator Doc Wolfe) must open their contracts with the tough trainmen, the firemen and enginemen, the switchmen and the railway clerks.

Most of them, especially Charles Luna's militant trainmen (largest of the rail unions), would just as lief strike as not for higher wages and new working conditions -- especially for more cash.

Then, six months later, just about the time the Jan. 1st crisis ripens, new contracts expire involving the engineers, conductors, brakemen and four "non-ops" (off train railway unions).

Meanwhile, of course, Walter Reuther will have heated up the industrial front with his assault on the auto corporations. A few months later he will be plunging back into new attacks on the aerospace and aircraft industry. And finally, the self-effacing, laconic leader of the big steel labor, I. W. Abel, will be advancing on the huge steel industry.

What Siemiller and Reuther and Abel want is the unadulterated right to strike without being called in to face the President and a network of his cabinet members, ranging from Dean Rusk, Robert McNamara and Willard Wirtz to the newcomer, Alan Boyd, Secretary of Transportation.

They say, in effect, when the issue of Vietnam is raised -- seize the rail lines, take over the aerospace industry, operate the steel plants, if you're going to have Congress run the labor relations business. Siemiller knew that 40 per cent of the Vietnamese military cargo is carried on rail freight cars. But his argument is "seizure" until the lines share some of their profits.

This, too, will be "Abe" Abel's answer next year. Not too long ago, he told his AFL-CIO Executive Council colleagues that he is sick of being told by the White House that the steelworkers can't strike -- and he told them the United Steelworkers of America will walk out in '68 to win big cash increases. Abel means this. He and his late chief Phil Murray called out some 135,000 steelworkers during the height of World War II.

There's more here than a rail dispute. The President is boxed in. So he has tossed the hot coal to Congress. They don't want to settle every crisis with a new law. So they'll keep tossing it right back to him. They know that the Machinists now have rollcall votes in the Congress on which to base political action in the next national campaign. And the Machinists won't be alone. They'll all punish their enemies -- those who vote for compulsory arbitration -- and reward their friends.

As for the presidency, an intimate of Roy Siemiller said the other day "the machinists and their families and a lot of other labor people simply will stay, home on Election Day -- 1968."

And so there was a might collision. But as the late Al Jolson ad-libbed in an old movie, "you ain't heard nothing yet."

The crises are yet to come.

Stiritz, Bartholomew Take Wedding Vows In Marion

Mr. and Mrs. James H. Bartholomew Jr.

Miss Jeanne Kay Stiritz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T.C. Stiritz, Marion, Ill., became the bride of James H. Bartholomew Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. James H. Bartholomew, 503 Matthews Street, June 24 in the First Methodist church in Marion.

The double-ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Henry Clay Wright before an altar decorated with twin tree candelabra and bouquets of white gladioli and baby's breath. The bridal aisle was covered with a white carpet and lined with white saint bows.

Nuptial music was provided by Mrs. Ruel Bracy, Marion. She accompanied Mrs. J.B. Heyde, York, Pa., who sang "A Wedding Prayer" and "The Lord's Prayer" as the couple knelt at the altar.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She chose a formal length sheath gown of imported organza with fitted bodice, long tapering sleeves and scooped neckline. Appliques of organza flowers adorned the bodice and lower part of the skirt.

The double train flowed from the midback to chapel length and was highlighted with the same appliques as the gown. Her headpiece was a halo of flowers matching those on the gown, and it secured the bouffant veil of silk illusion which was also appliqued wth flowers.

They wore identical A-line chiffon gowns with deep folds of fullness at the back in candy pink. The bodices were fashioned with scooped necklines, empire waistlines and long shirtwaist sleeves.

White daisy-patterned tulle was under the sheer chiffon on the bodice and sleeves. Shoes were tinted to match the dresses. They wore matching bouffant nose veils attached to a single row of pearls and carried cascade bouquets of light pink daisies.

Miss Jan Stiritz, sister of the bride, lighted the alter candles. She wore a white gown fashioned like those of the bridesmaids trimmed in candy pink and featuring a wide pink bow and streamers at the back of the empire waistline. A pink carnation corsage and pink tinted shoes completed her attire.

Attending Bartholomew as best man was John Lacy, Vincennes, Ind., close friend of the groom. Groomsmen were Mike Sherry and Kenneth Davis. Serving as ushers were Larry Worthen and Robert Johnston, Marion, Ill., cousins of the bride, and John Heacox and Ronald Galemore, brother-in-law of the groom.

Men of the wedding party wore black formal tuxedoes and white carnation boutonnieres.

Mrs. Stiritz wore a pink coat dress with matching pink accessories and a pink-throated orchid corsage.

Mrs. Mabel Worthen, the bride's grandmother, and Mrs. Jerome Taylor, close friend of the groom's family, wore carnation corsages with their attire.

RECEPTION

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the church fellowships hall. The table was laid with a white linen tablecloth. The four-tiered wedding cake was surrounded by flowers and topped with pink wedding bells. Glowing white tapers held in silver candelabra flanked either side of the cake. At each end of the table were a silver punch bowl and a silver coffee server.

The reception was catered by Collins' Catering Service of Ridgeway, Ill. Serving at the reception were Miss Cathy Welge, Chester, Ill.; Miss Debbie Shaw, Altamont, Ill.; Miss Carol Brunner, Carbondale, Ill.; and Miss Joyce Thomas, Tuscola, Ill. Miss Marinna Martin, Lawrenceville, Ill., was in charge of the gift table. Presiding at the guest book was Miss Connie Whan, Peoria, Ill. All are college friends of the bride. They wore white carnation corsages accented in pink.

Mr. and Mrs. Bartholomew departed that evening for a wedding trip to Kentucky Lake. The new Mrs. Bartholomew chose for her going away outfit a navy blue and white striped summer knit. The couple is now at home to friends at 207 Greer Ave.

Mrs. Bartholomew is a former student at Southern Illinois University. Both will attend Murray State University in the fall.

REHEARSAL DINNER

Mr. and Mrs. James H. Bartholomew were host and hostess at a rehearsal dinner given June 23 at the Uptowner in Marion, Ill. The dinner was in honor of their son and his fiancee. The table was laid with a white linen tablecloth. The centerpiece, an arrangement of pink and white carnations and baby's breath, was flanked on either side by glowing pink tapers.

SHOWER

The bride was honored with a miscellaneous shower June 19 at the Security National Bank. Hostesses were Mrs. Iona Taylor, Mrs. Hattie Moore, Mrs. Carter Bell, Mrs. Lois Hart, Mrs. Lonnie Reed, Mrs. Ralph McElroy and Mrs. Murl Long.

Before Miss Stiritz opened and displayed her gifts, refreshments of punch, nuts and mints were served. The table was decorated with a large floral bouquet and glowing pink tapers. Behind the table was a large pink heart with the names, "Jeanne and Sonny."

Those attending or sending gifts were Mrs. Lovine Carter, Mrs. Dorothy Springs, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Sims, Mrs. Paul DuSablon and Yvonne, Mrs. Elva Depro, Mr. and Mrs. Johnny Scott and Rusty, Mrs. Henritta Beal, Mr. and Mrs. Gene Johnson and Susan.

Mrs. Nancy Dewitt, Mrs. Opal Briggs, Mrs. Perry Allen and Judy, Mrs. Mary Lee Switala, Miss Eva Newton, Mrs. Ed Schweppe, Mrs. Vina Haynes, Mrs. Ralph Moody, Mrs. Eugene Palmer, Mrs. Mary Townsend, Mrs. Frank Peyton, Mrs. Joe Galemore, Mrs. Thomas Williams, Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Sherry.

Mrs. Vivian Cauthorn and family, Mrs. Birdie Beck, Mrs. Ora Houck, Mrs. Iva Houck, Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Sherry, Mr. and Mrs. Elzie Boardman, Mrs. Clarence Taylor, Mrs. Lela Boardman, Mrs. Lola Jines, Mrs. Lois Fenimore, Mrs. Ted Kelley, Mrs. Floyd Reed, Mrs. Jennie Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Lee, Mrs. Ronald Galemore.

Mrs. Henry Bartholomew, Mrs. T. C. Stiritz, Mrs. Carter Bell, Mrs. Lois Hart, Mr. and Mrs. Lonnie Reed, Mrs. Ralph Moody, Mrs. Murl Long, Mrs. Iona Taylor, Mrs. Hattie Moore, Mrs. Mildred LeSieur.

Salads Capture Sunshine

by Mrs. Mattie E. Aslin
Extension home Economist
University Extension Center

CARUTHERSVILLE -- You're all set to scoop up fresh air and sunshine -- the sunshine of spring vegetable gardens and autumn fruit - laden orchards. In salads you capture the beauty, the vitality and goodness of nature, and you serve it beautifully to your family and guests.

Guides For Successful Salad Making:

1. Use fresh crisp greens. Full flavored fruits.
2. Keep your salad simple.
3. Pick the right dressing to enhance the salad flavors. Pass it in attractive server to spoon on dressing.
4. Be generous when you slice or chunk salad ingredients. This makes your creation more beautiful, more interesting, and reflects Nature's abundance.
5. Chill the plates or bowls. Slide them in refrigeration till ready to use.
6. Serve salad with salad. Chicken salad with raspberry ring.
7. Begin with a salad, serve it as the main dish or the accompaniment or let it be the lovely finish of a meal.
8. Keep trims simple.
9. Summer masterpiece - lush fruit tray.

Tricks to Bring Out the Best in Fruit Salads:

1. Serve salads on chilled plates.
2. For a glamour touch bring salad to the table in a crushed ice jacket (nestle bowl of salad in a larger bowl of crushed ice.) Everything will look, taste twice as cool.
3. Dressings are important
Some built in

TIPS

Use ice to get a molded salad off to a flying start. Dissolve each package fruit flavored gelatin in one cup boiling water; then add 8 to 12 ice cubes and stir constantly 2 to 3 minutes till gelatin begins to thicken. Remove unmelted ice. Let stand 3 to 5 minutes; add fruit. Chill frim.

SUPPER SALAD WHEEL

Cook a variety of vegetables just till done, then pour oil, vinegar style, French or garlic dressing over each; chill about 2 hours, turning vegetables occasionally. Drain.

Suggestions - Peas, green beans, baby limas and carrots arranged in separate dishes on Lazy Susan, with whole marinated cauliflower in center. Top cauliflower with curried chutney dressing.

Arrange tomato and onion slices in one dish, pepper strips and pimiento in another.

Curried Chutney Dressing: Combine 3/4 cup mayonnaise or salad dressing, 2 tablespoons chopped chutney, and 1/2 teaspoon curry powder. Top with pimiento diamonds.

All Favorite Tossed Salad

1. First, put the garlic in! Crush garlic cloves into salt in bowl with pestle. If you prefer, rub garlic clove over bowl, or mince in press then add to dressing.
2. Then break up lettuce by hand. Break lettuce in bit size pieces. For treat, use various greens. Bibb lettuce, curly endive. Add nippy bits of water cress, chives.
3. Last, add dressing, toss. Before serving pour an Italian or French dressing, bottled or home mixed. Add fresh pepper, salt. Put in tomato wedges. Toss.

Ready to serve-green and crisp. Trim with tomato wedges, green peppers. With French bread, a perfect accent to main dish.

Fontana Sisters Surprise Fashion World With Vim

These shrewd stylists would be the first to admit that a sporty young look has not been their image. But suddenly that has been changed with the collaboration of a talented young man who calls himself "Yorn."

Country casuals in tawny tweeds teamed pedal pusher pants with dashing jackets and chunky turtle-collar sweaters. The models showed them at a spanking pace which pepped up the clothes even more.

Cute little "Alice in Wonderland" boots in white patent leather were laced up to the ankle. Stockings were in white rib, with turnover cuffs.

Capes in cream-smooth gabardine swung over calf-length skirts clasped round the waist with wide leather belts. Gold ball-bearing buttons studded patch pockets, cuff tabs and martingale belts.

Funnel-necked dresses were belted well south of the waist with big, shiny oval buckles in the same shade as the dress.

Shepherds' smocks attached to brief pleated skirts gave blousing a boost. The smocks were shirred in honeycomb stitch around the neck and at the dropped waist line.

Nagging backache, headache and muscular aches and pains may come on with over-exertion, emotional upsets, or everyday stress and strain. If this nagging backache, with restless, sleepless nights, is wearing you out, making you miserable and irritable, don't wait, try Doan's Pills — an analgesic, a pain reliever. Doan's pain-relieving action on nagging backache is often the answer. Get Doan's Pills — not a habit-forming drug but a well-known standard remedy used successfully by millions for over 70 years. See if they don't bring you the same welcome relief. For convenience, always buy Doan's large size.

Sports Corner

By RON JAYNES

This writer understands how . . . or tries to understand how . . . league officials feel when chances for a nationwide or statewide title depend on a scorebook that has been misplaced . . . but how any "proud father" can take it on himself to keep other "proud fathers" from seeing their boy's names in the paper is beyond my conception . . .

In a letter to the editor of the DAILY STANDARD in Tuesday's paper . . . a "proud father" . . . wrote that he is probably more responsible than anyone else for the Babe Ruth games not being printed in the paper for the past week.

That statement could not be truer . . . since I (Ron Jaynes) took over the position as sports writer for this paper . . and as far as this writer knows . . . it's been the practice of each of the five leagues in Sikeston to leave the scorebooks at the police station . . . and this was not a policy started by me.

Many people may not know . . . but each reporter has a deadline that his news contribution to the paper must be in . . . and a 9:30 a.m. deadline applies to sports.

What I'm trying to get at is this . . . I report for work at 7 a.m. and have to have every piece of material for that day's paper into the news editor by 9:30 a.m.

For that reason . . . We can't spend all day . . . for we do not have all day to spend . . . in trying to find the Babe Ruth scorebook.

This writer tried . . . and when a telephone call to the scorekeeper failed to produce the book . . . he went to the league commissioner . . . who brought the book into the office . . . The scorekeeper didn't have time to pick up the book and bring it by the office or even leave it at the police station or would he drop by the concession stand at VFW stadium so that this writer could pick it up . . . We were late in getting our news back . . . therefore causing a late paper that day.

And for attending each session of baseball in Sikeston . . . Well, mister . . . there are more than one league in the city and attending each game would almost be impossible . . . and if we singled out just one league . . . and attended its games . . . the others would have a legitimate gripe . . . and demand as much coverage as the other . . . Can you see our point?

During the baseball season . . . this writer is trying to concentrate on the current sports picture and at the same time . . . plan for coming sports seasons.

It's my desire to print the box scores of each game played in the local leagues . . . but as for looking for the books . . . As I said . . . It was the policy when I came here and to the best of my knowledge it still is . . . for the scorebooks to be left at the police station if the game reports are printed in the paper . . .

This writer attended the final game . . . but had no official scorebook to take a box score from and used only notes to write a story . . .

I'm sure that every proud father and mother . . . and there are many in Sikeston . . . with the fine programs for youth in baseball . . . would like to have the best possible coverage of every game played by every league . . . But with only one writer . . . a complete coverage is impossible . . . and since there is more than baseball . . . going on around the area . . . We will have to stay with the present coverage . . .

I know I can't and haven't satisfied everyone with my work . . . but people learn by their mistakes . . .

For the scorebook being lost . . . or misplaced . . . It was recovered at the police station . . . where this writer was instructed to take the books when all the material was gathered. . .

Maybe next season can be a better one . . . for me and for each league in Sikeston. . .

7-Run 7th Fatal To Cards

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Dick Simpson's three-run double was the clincher as Cincy won 7-4 despite back-to-back home runs by Roger Maris and Orlando Cepeda. The defeat cut St. Louis' National League lead over Chicago to one game.

Simpson's shot came in the seven-run seventh inning and sent Cardinal newcomer Jack Lamabe to his fifth loss in five decisions, and second loss with the Cardinals in three days. The double also helped Jim Maloney pick up his eighth victory.

St. Louis starter Steve Carlton had a three-hit, 3-0 lead going into the Reds' seventh. But Tony Perez and Don Pavletich opened with singles and Lee May doubled for the run that chased Carlton from the mound.

Lamabe came in and got one man but walked the next. Simpson then got his hit off the second reliever of the inning, Joe Hoerner.

Maris lashed number seven as he led off the fifth and Cepeda followed with number 14. St. Louis got a run in the fourth on a Mike Shannon single and another in the ninth when Tim McCarver singled.

The Cardinals scheduled Larry Jaster to pitch tonight. Cincinnati went with young Gary Nolan who has beaten the Cardinals twice.

Relief specialist Phil Regan, who earned the "Vulture" tag last season by swooping out of the Los Angeles bullpen for 14 late-inning victories, beat Philadelphia 2-1 Tuesday night in his first start in nearly two years.

"I have no illusion. I still like the bullpen," Regan said after working seven strong innings in his National League debut as a starter. "But this start did me good. It helped me straighten myself out."

It also prevented the Dodgers from folding up after they dropped the twi-night doubleheader opener 5-0 to Rick Wise, who scattered four hits for his first major league shutout.

Regan's clutch performance — with an assist from Ron Perranoski in the last two innings — kept the eighty-place Dodgers one game in front of the New York Mets, who trimmed Houston 4-2 and sent the Astros into the cellar.

The Pittsburgh Pirates gave new Manager Danny Murtaugh a winning sendoff with an 8-6 verdict over San Francisco before the Giants came back to take the doubleheader nightcap 3-2. The Chicago Cubs beat Atlanta 9-3 and moved within one game of first-place St. Louis, beaten by Cincinnati 7-4.

Manager Walter Alston gave Regan his first starting assignment in 96 appearances for the Dodgers after rookie Bill Singer came up with a sore arm. The 30-year-old right-hander, who had been struggling along with a 2-4 record, responded by holding the Phils to five hits and striking out six before giving way to Perranoski.

Len Gabrielson provided the margin of victory with a two-run homer in the second inning.

Regan last started for Detroit in September 1965. The Tigers traded him to Los Angeles that winter and he came through with a 14-1 mark in 65 relief stints last year.

New York's Hal Reniff came out of the bullpen in the sixth inning and blanked Houston on two hits the rest of the way, protecting the Mets' two-run edge and extending his scoreless string to 18 innings. He has not yielded a run in nine appearances since the Mets acquired him from the Yankees three weeks ago.

Bud Harrelson stole home in the fifth inning, snapping a 2-2 tie, after Ed Mathews' two-run homer had pulled the Astros even in the top of the fifth.

Murtaugh, who managed Pittsburgh from 1957 through 1964, replaced Harry Walker Tuesday morning, then watched the Pirates erupt for six runs against Juan Marichal in the fifth inning of the first game, with Donn Clendenon's two-run double and a two-run homer by Gene Alley the big blows.

The Giants gained a split when Willie McCovey greeted reliever Billy O'Dell with a two-run homer in the seventh, erasing Pittsburgh's 2-1 lead.

Don Kessinger drove in five runs with two doubles and two singles and right-hander Ferguson Jenkins boosted his pitching mark to 12-7 as the Cubs rolled to their fourth straight victory and snapped Atlanta's four-game winning string.

Golf Championship Entries Needed

Al Chandler, tournament director, said that any Missouri junior resident between the ages of 14 and 18 is eligible to enter and his entry and $15.00 entry fee should be forwarded immediately to Mr. Don Faurot, Missouri Junior Boys Tournament, 20 Rothwell Gym, Columbia, Missouri as soon as possible. The tournament is limited to the first 200 entries and will be held on the University Golf Course August 5 and 6.

Accommodations for overnight stay in Columbia will be handled at the University dormitories. Included in the entry information should be the boy's age and date of birth and his 18-hole handicap.

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Mike DeLozier of Sedalia, playing the course for the first time, fired a 68 Tuesday to lead sectional qualifying for the USGA Junior golf championships Aug. 1-5 at Oklahoma City.

The lanky 17-year-old shot 34-34 on the 6,229-yard, par 71 layout at Meadowbrook Country Club. He had six birdies, three bogeys and nine pars. Only two spots were open for the USGA nationals. Jack Davis of Kansas City shot a 75 to win the other berth, edging Scott Bess of Columbia, Mo., by two strokes.

WATERVILLE, Maine (AP) — Richard J. McGee, 36, was named head football coach at Colby College Tuesday. He succeeds John Simpson, who will become director of the college's summer and special programs.

12th Annual Society Horse Show Set July 29

The 12th annual society horse show sponsored by the SEMO Shrine Horse Patrol will be held at the rodeo grounds July 29.

Melvin Dace, captain of the patrol, reports that more than 150 entrants are expected.

Nine classes will be judged. Proceeds from the show will go to help offset expenses members of the patrol have when traveling to area parades and to the Shrine Hospital in St. Louis.

The organization was formed by the state Shrine's Moolah Temple in St. Louis.

Each member takes care of his own expenses when traveling. Captain Dace and the Patrol have their own barn where each horse is kept and each member attends a practice session every Tuesday night.

Pirates Fire Walker

PITTSBURGH (AP) — It didn't take Danny Murtaugh long to find out why Harry Walker was fired.

All it took was two pitches by Billy O'Dell that ruined a good pitching job by Tommie Sisk and turned a Pirate doubleheader sweep against San Francisco into a split Tuesday night.

Willie McCovey slammed O'Dell's second pitch for a two-run homer and a 3-2 Giant victory after Pittsburgh won the first game 8-6.

That marked the fourth time in eight games since the All-Star break that baseball's best hitting team got good pitching and lost.

Walker pinpointed it as he unwound in the living room of his suburban home Tuesday afternoon before Murtaugh even put on a uniform.

"Just one more hit a day, that's all it would have taken," he said. "But that's baseball."

Murtaugh, who stepped down in 1964 after managing the Pirates for 7½ seasons, was talked out of retirement by General Manager Joe Brown only 19 days after Brown said Walker would be his manager for a "long time."

That "long time" ended Monday when, Brown said, he decided Walker would have to go if the Pirates were to escape from the second division.

Tuesday morning Brown told Walker he was fired and Murtaugh was announced as interim manager at a hastily called afternoon news conference. The coaching staff remained intact.

The 49-year-old Murtaugh, who had been a special administrative assistant to Brown, guided Pittsburgh to its only world championship in the past 40 years in 1960. His over-all record was 605 wins and 548 defeats.

At the end of the 1964 season, he said he wouldn't manage again because of a weak stomach, saying managing put too much of a strain on his health.

Walker's record for 2½ years was 224-184. His 1965 and 1966 clubs both placed third.

Chuvalo-Frazier Tangle In 12-Round Match Tonight

NEW YORK (AP) — "I'll be out there smoking. That means working every minute, every second. I know nobody ever knocked him down but there always is the first time," said Joe Frazier, unbeaten No. 2 heavyweight contender.

"It's do or die. I know I've got to win. I'm in the prime of life and I have the style to beat him. I think I can knock him out," said George Chuvalo, oft-beaten Canadian champion.

Frazier, winner of 16 straight, is a 2½-1 favorite over Chuvalo, who went 15 rounds with Cassius Clay a year ago, when they meet tonight in a 12-round match at Madison Square Garden.

Because both are aggressive fighters who like to walk in and punch, a crowd of 15,000 is expected to pay over $100,000 to see the bout which will be televised nationally, with New York blacked out, on a special Garden-RKO General network. Ring time is 10 p.m. EDT.

Both fighters are passing up the World Boxing Association's eight-man tournament to determine a successor to Clay who was stripped of his title by the WBA and the New York State Athletic Commission. However, the winner will be in a good shouting position, especially if it is Frazier, the 23-year-old former Olympic champion from Philadelphia.

"If George wins, he'll claim the world championship in New York," said Irv Ungerman, Chuvalo's manager. However, there was no indication that New York's commission was thinking that way.

"No, I won't claim anything if I win," said Frazier. There's quite a few men in there — Karl Mildenberger, Floyd Patterson, Ernie Terrell and quite a few. As soon as they settle what they're trying to prove (all the men he mentioned are in the WBA tournament) I'll be waiting, just like Old Man River."

ODE TO A SONIC BOOM

How are you fixed for plaster
Now that we're in this jet age
Does it seem to crack much faster
Now that airplanes are the rage

Is your ceiling now much lower
And the roof now showing bare
So the Elements may enter
From the monsters in the air

Do you find your eardrums ring
Do you jump at every sound
Do your nerves feel all a zing
Is this sickness going around

Lets go back and take a look
And forget these sonic booms
This has probably even shook
The Wright brothers in their tombs

Had they known how their invention
Was to SHAKE our world today
I feel sure they'd never mentioned
The name of Kitty Hawk anyway

So I throw out this small thought
Let us hope it will be used
By Emily Post who has taught
Us with her book of "dos"

That we won't be frowned upon
Or considered impolite
If our hats indoors we don
So our ceilings won't alight
On our heads so soft and bare
And our scalps which are so weak
And for safety we'd best wear
A nightcap even when we sleep.

State Park Visits Climb

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Reports for the first six months of this year show an increase in visitors to Missouri state parks of 486,462.

The total so far is over four million visitors in spite of the unusual spring and summer weather, Joseph Jaeger, park director, reported.

The five leading parks are Table Rock, Thousand Hills, Roaring River, Knob Noster and Meramec.

Overnight tent and trailer camping also increased with Meramec Park being the most popular, followed by the Lake of the Ozarks, Bennett Spring, Roaring River and Table Rock.

Jaeger said attendance at state parks this year may reach 11 or 12 million compared with 10 million a year ago.

Destroyer Named for First Officer Killed

SAN PEDRO, Calif. (AP) — The Navy has named a destroyer after its first officer killed in the Vietnam War.

The U.S.S Meyerkord, named for Lt. H. Dale Meyerkord of St. Louis, was launched during a ceremony attended by his widow and parents Saturday.

The lieutenant was killed March 16, 1965 when Viet Cong ambushed a Vietnamese naval unit he was advising.

Letters to the Editor

WHAT ABOUT THE $48,000?

Senator Long of Missouri recently issued a news release which contained the following pronouncement: "Democracy will flourish in this country only so long as the people have reasonable knowledge of what their government is doing at all times and at all levels."

In view of these noble sentiments, I wonder if it would be unreasonable to ask the Senator why he has stalled so long in giving a complete explanation of the $48,000 in "referral fees" received by him from Morris Shenker?

When an impromptu exam was sprung by our English professor, one of my classmates wrote a note on his paper explaining that, rather than bluff, he would like to confess that he had not read the assignment. When the exams were returned, my friend noted that over the large red F on his paper was a carefully drawn halo!

"DIRTY FORTNIGHT"

AUCKLAND, N.Z. (AP) — Kawerau had an anti-litter campaign which misfired.

Kawerau, population 5768, is a proud little town in the timber milling and pulp and paper-making country in the center of New Zealand's North Island.

To impress upon shoppers just how much rubbish they were scattering along the streets the borough council decided to hold a "dirty fortnight". In that time the council staff would empty the litter baskets but would not sweep the streets.

Mayor Roy Stoneham expected that by the end of the two weeks the streets would be knee deep in rubbish and shoppers would have learned their lesson.

But it did NOT work out that way. When the fortnight ended the streets were cleaner than at the beginning. Right from the start people made a point of using the litter baskets. And if the odd person sometimes forgot, there always seemed to be someone else right behind who did the job for him.

By the time the big cleanup day planned as the climax to the fortnight came around there was hardly a thing to clean up. But a ceremonial hosing and sweeping of the streets went ahead just the same.

Although Kawerau admits its "dirty fortnight" was a clean flop, there is no doubt that its people got the message.

One angel to another: "Quick! Here comes a Jet. Let's sneak in and see a movie for nothing."

MRS. MAX MICHAEL of Charleston prepares to serve garlic grits. Looking on is her son, Ronnie, 12. The silver serving dish was given to the Michaels by the Methodist Young Folks of which they were counselors.

Mrs. Max Michael, Charleston Homemaker, Wife, Mother

Editor's Note: This is the 46th in a series of articles about the home life of Sikeston area families.

BY RUTH DILLENDER

CHARLESTON - Mrs. Connie Michael, North Main Road, collects recipes, sews and is a member of the American Legion Auxiliary. She is treasurer of the Auxiliary.

She is secretary of the Order of the Eastern Star.

Her husband, Max, is a postal clerk. The couple has lived in Charleston 25 years. They have two sons, Max, Jr., 22, who is serving in the army, stationed at Lackland Air Force Base, Texas, and Ronnie, 12, a seventh grade student. Ronnie is a Boy Scout and a member of the band.

Mrs. Michael is a member of a Parent-Teacher association and the Lusk extension club.

The family attends the Methodist church where Mrs. Michael has helped with the kindergarten. The Michaels have been counselors for the Methoidst Young Folks.

Mrs. Michael likes to make tote bags. She collects spoons. She has several spoons that came from the 1915 World's Fair in San Francisco. Other spoons in her collection were Michael's grandmothers.

Other treasurers in the Michael home are a pocket watch that belonged to her great-grandfather. The watch was plowed under in a field by her great-grandfather and found one year later. The watch is still in working condition.

The family has a set of salt and pepper shakers which belonged to Mrs. Michael's maternal grandfather, a table from Michael's family, a vase from the Isle of Crete, a Dresden doll wearing a glass dress and small kerosene lamps that belonged to his aunt.

Mrs. Michael is proud of a gavel that was made from the big oak tree cut down near East Prairie now the site of Big Oak State Park. The gavel was given to her when she was worthy matron of the Eastern Star chapter.

They have an old, well cared for piano and bench, a heirloom washing set and an olf flower vase that was given to Mrs. Michael by a friend.

They prize a praying hands plaque that was given to the family when it was the Methodist family of the year.

ANGEL PIE

4 eggs
1 cup whipping cream
Juice of 1 lemon and grated rind, optional
1 teaspoon cream tartar
1-1/2 cups sugar

Separate eggs and beat whites until frothy. Add cream tartar and beat until stiff. Add one cup sugar gradually. Butter pie pan and pile in egg whites. Form crust and bake slowly 60 minutes. Start oven at 250 degrees and later turn to 300 degrees.

Beat egg yolks, and add lemon juice, rind and 1/2 cup sugar. Beat until light and cook until stiff. When mixture cools, whip cream and add sugar to taste. Place layer of cream in pie shell, then lemon sauce and then top with more cream.

GARLIC GRITS

1 cup hominy grits
4 cups boiling water
1 teaspoon salt

Cook about five minutes. Remove from stove and add one roll garlic cheese, one stick butter or oleo and let melt.

Add two eggs beaten and 3/4 cup milk. Pour into greased casserole and bake about one hour 350-degree oven.

WATERMELON PICKLES

2 pounds watermellon rind
4 cups sugar
2 cups white vinegar
2 cups water
1 lemon thinly sliced
2 tablespoons cinnamon bark
1 tablespoon whole cloves

Trim dark green and pink parts off rind. Cut rind in 1-inch cubes. Soak overnight in salt water, 1/4 cup coarse salt to 1 quart water. Drain, rinse and cover with cold water. Cook until just tender and drain.

Combine sugar, vinegar, water, lemon and spices, tied in a bag. Simmer 10 munutes. Remove spice bag. Add rind and simmer until clear. Fill hot sterilized jars to 1/2 inch from top. Seal.

FLOATING COBBLER

Mix:
2 cups fruit
1/2 cup sugar or 1 cup, depending on fruit
1 tablespoon flour or cornstarch
Bring to boil.
1/2 cup flour
1/2 cup milk
1 teaspoon baking power
1/2 cup sugar
1/4 teaspoon salt

Mix above ingredients well. Mix 3/4 stick butter in baking dish. Pour batter over butter and fruit over batter. Bake about 20 minutes in 325 degree oven.

SPICED GRAPE SALAD

1 package lime Jello
1 cup boiling water
Juice of small can of spiced grapes.
1/2 cup broken pecans
1/4 cup of shredded cabbage
1/4 cup of chopped celery
Small can crushed pineapple

After preparing the mixture, add the spiced grapes. These may be cut in half.

DROP DOUGHNUTS
(Golden Puffs)

Mrs. Michael says this recipe is a favorite with children.

Sift together into mixing bowl: 2 cups sifted flour, 1/4 cup sugar, 3 teaspoons baking powder and 1 teaspoon nutmeg.

Make hole in middle and drop in: 1/4 cup Wesson oil, 3/4 cup milk and one unbeaten egg.

Mix well and drop by teaspoon into hot shortening.

Use electric skillet with melted shortening about an inch deep and set at 400 degrees. Whole doughnuts are golden brown, remove from pan, place on paper towel for a few minutes. While still hot, shake lightly in bag with powdered sugar or sprinkle with sugar.

APPLESAUCE - FRUIT CAKE

1/2 cup butter
1 cup unsweetened applesauce
2 cups flour
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1/2 cup chopped nuts
1 cup raisins
1 cup sugar
1 teaspoon soda
1/2 teasoon cloves
1 cup candied fruit

Cream butter and gradually add sugar and applesauce. Sift flour with soda and spices; add to creamed mixture with nuts, candied fruit and raisins. Pour into greased and floured cake pan. Bake for 40 minutes at 350 degrees. Cool, Wrap cake in brandy soaked cheesecloth and foil. Makes two one-pound cakes.

Parents Visited At Morehouse

MOREHOUSE - Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Williams and son, Jeff, of St. Louis are visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Huley Williams, and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wyrick.

Mr. and Mrs. Z.C. Butler had as an overnight guest Saturday his daughter, Mrs. Wenzola Turner of Caruthersville.

Mr. and Mrs. David Roberts and son Mark of Rockford, Ill., are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Huley Williams. Mrs. Roberts is the former Thelma Williams.

Mr. and Mrs. Woodrow Head, Roy Lee and Donna of McHenry, Ill., spent a week with their daughter and sister and family, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Bolen. They returned home Sunday.

Mrs. Reggie Corlew and son Danny spent 10 days with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. B. C. Humphrey of Old Appleton. Corlew spent the last two days there and accompanied his family home.

Mr. and Mrs. Billy Joe Rhyons and three children of Phoenix, Ariz., returned home after a three-week visit with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Rhyons. While here the Rhyons visited Branson, Rockaway Beach, Silver Dollar City and other places of interest in the Ozarks.

Miss Aline Carrington of Flint, Mich., is spending three weeks visiting Mr. and Mrs. Bill Gurley and other relatives and friends in the Morehouse-Sikeston area. Saturday visitors at the Gurley home were Mrs. Floyd Berry, children and mother-in-law of Chaffee and Central City, Ky.

The Morehouse Kiwanis went on an overnight fishing trip in place of the regular meeting Thursday. They were guests at the Hendon cottage near Lake Wappapello. Those going were Gene Hendon, Charles Rauch, Jack Taylor, Otis Daniels, Melvin Clark, Thad Ryan, Estle Rogers, Doyle Miller and Arvil Christopher, all of Morehouse, Roger Ayers of Sikeston, Mr. and Mrs. G.D. Body of Essex and Terry Christopher of Midland, Tex.

MORE TO DRINK

Rising with them are the total number of retail beer dealers and retail liquor dealers in the nation, according to an analysis of U.S. Treasury data by Commerce Clearing House.

Beer, after 1966, showed an increase of more than 1.7 million barrels over the 1965 level of 108 million barrels.

Wine production shot up by more than 37 million gallons to 234.5 million gallons.

Whiskey production rose by more than 22.2 million gallons to a 1966 level of 140 million gallons.

Dealerships reflected an increase of more than 1,500 from the previous year, with 141,526 beer dealerships in operation during the 1966 period. There were 282,222 retail liquor dealers, an increase of 11,243 from the 1965 period.

Drew Pearson Special

DREW PEARSON SAYS: RR compulsory arbitration was adopted after heated senate-house argument; at one point it reached profanity; labor's best friends voted against RR labor.

WASHINGTON -- The events which led to the enactment of the first national compulsory arbitration law in the history of the United States are important. This was a law which labor fought tooth and nail to prevent, but which some labor unions by going on strike unwittingly helped to pass.

It was passed after three weeks of closed - door debate between senate and house conferees, so intense that it sometimes got to the point of profanity.

Toward the climax of the long hassle, young Rep. John Dingell of Detroit, a Democratic champion of labor, cursed in referring to the position of Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., leader of the senate conferees.

Chairman Harley Staggers, D-W. Va., rapped for order, and Sen. Jennings Randolph, D-W. Va., admonished his fellow Democrat.

"I know you're all excited, John, but Senator Morse is doing what he thinks best," he said.

One of the issues which sent off Dingell's temper beyond the boiling point was the fact that the house had avoided taking a roll call on the issue of compulsory arbitration while the senate had taken roll call after roll call on every phase of the bill.

The vote was overwhelming -- (70 to 15) -- for discontinuing the procrastinating postponements in the railroad dispute and bringing mediation to finality. The house, on the other hand, had taken only a teller vote, by which members file past the clerk and he records them, not by name, but by totals. This gives congressmen the advantage of not putting themselves on record regarding a ticklish question involving labor unions.

"On the final vote," confided Rep. Dan Kuykendall, D-Tenn., "We didn't even have a teller vote. We ran for the doors."

"Either we have government by lobby or by law," argued Sen. Morse, referring to labor's tremendous pressure to defeat the railway bill.

He has asked the house conferees if, in view of their original failure to go on record with a roll - call vote, they would not submit the three - week deadlock back to a full vote of the house. But chairman Staggers declined.

On Thursday at 3 p.m., at the last meeting of the conferees, Sen. Randolph again asked his fellow West Virginian to take the issue back to the house.

"In view of the notice from the unions that they are going out on strike over the weekend, won't the house take another vote on this?" asked Randolph.

ADAMANT REP. STAGGERS

Again Chairman Staggers answered no.

Staggers was adamant to the very end. On the morning after the nation woke up to find all railway transportation at a standstill, the house and senate conferees voted to accept the Morse - administration bill for limited compulsory arbitration -- with one exception. That exception was Chairman Staggers. Even intensely pro - labor Sen. Ralph Yarborough, D-Tex., voted to take the arbitration bill out of conference. But not the congressman from West Virginia. He was the only conferee who voted no. This seemed hard to understand, because there are 40,000 coal miners in West Virginia who would have been out of work in about 48 hours with the railroads unable to haul coal.

The men who were essentially responsible for putting across the limited compulsory arbitration bill were three long - time friends of labor but who argued that labor's right to strike against the public must be limited.

They were:

1. PRESIDENT JOHNSON, who as a young Texas congressman voted for the first minimum wage law in history, when almost every other southern congressman voted no.

2. SEN. WAYNE MORSE, former chairman of the war labor board, who has been labor's staunchest spokesman in the senate but who is adamant that labor cannot disrupt the nation in time of war. He helped draft the current railroad bill which provides for mandatory acceptance of a mediation board's findings even if the terms are unacceptable.

3. SEN. JENNINGS RANDOLPH, who as a young West Virginia congressman voted for the Wagner labor act and the fair labor practices act, the Magna Carta of labor, but who maintains that the right to strike cannot be put ahead of the welfare of the nation. Randolph was the only Democrat supporting Morse among the senate conferees.

Morse and Johnson disagree vigorously on the Vietnam war, but Morse contends that since we are in the war our system of transportation cannot be tied up.

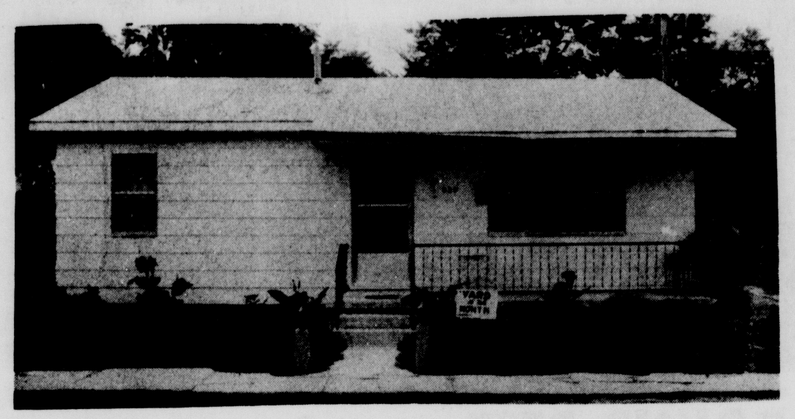
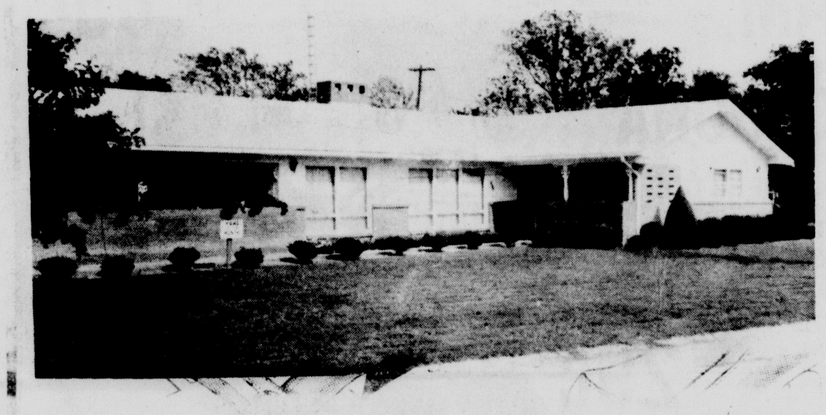
WARD TWO yard of the month winner in New Madrid was Mrs. Thelma Funk, 741 Scott St.



NEW MADRID yard of the month winner in ward one was Mrs. Pearl Arnold, 629 Mott St.



WINNER IN ward three in New Madrid's yard of the month contest was N. J. Nowell 171 South Matthews Lane.

Yard Winners Named At New Madrid

By Don Roberts

NEW MADRID - A yard of the month contest to encourage residents to take more pride in their homes began this month.

Three yards, one in each ward were selected as winners.

Mrs. Pearl Arnold, 629 Mott, received the award in ward one. Honorable mentions went to Clarence Gentry, 922 Mill, and Larry H. Rost, 330 Kingshighway, and Mrs. Bess Welshans, 511 Chruch.

In ward two, Mrs. Thelma Funk, 741 Scott, received the award. Honorable mention went to Mrs. E. H. Riley, 941 Davis, O. W. Lewis, 1101 Scott and Sam L. Hunter Jr. 951 Scott.

In ward three, N. J. Nowell, 171 South Matthews Lane received the award with R. H. Bierschwal, 180 South Matthews Lane, Miss Mavis Bellon, 430 Missouri and H.C. Ransburgh, 120 South Matthews Lane honorable mention winners.

Mrs. Carolyn Phillips, chairman of the project, said the yards were judged on shrubbery and arrangement, how well trimmed the yard is and flowers and their arrangement. Mrs. Phillips said yards were not judged on size or cost.

Three judges from each ward will select the best yard in each ward the first week in each month.

The yard of the month program derived from the Missouri Community Betterment Program. Mrs. Harriett Reeder is beautification chairman for the program.

Aviation Leader Says Cape Misled on Project

CAPE GIRARDEAU - An aviation leader has charged in a speech entered in the Congressional Record that Cape Girardeau was "bamboozled and brainwashed" in connection with the airport improvement project now underway.

The speaker was J.B. Hartranft Jr., president of the Aircraft Owners and Pilots Association, who addressed the annual conference of the American Association of Airport Executives at Louisville, Ky.

He said Cape Girardeau was an example of what he considers a poor pattern of spending of federal airport money.

He noted that no jet service is available to the community although residents were led to believe that such service would be provided.

Cape Girardeau is building a new 6,500-foot runway to cross its 4,000-foot strip. The longer runway would accommodate the larger aircraft which Ozark Air Lines, the commercial air carrier serving the city, has said it will use here when the project is completed.

The federal grant of up to $891,000 for the project was based on the prospect of the DC-9 service, which would require the 6,500-foot length.

Hartranft said the commercial airlines and political expediency are dictating the dispersal of federal airport construction funds to the detriment of general aviation's needs.

He contended that expenditures on airports are out of balance with the economic merits of the projects.

Citing the Cape Girardeau project, he used figures showing that the cost over 10 years would come to about $50 per airline passenger boarding at Cape Girardeau while the average airline ticket bought here costs $12 to $14.

Park Museum To Be Moved

PARKVILLE, Mo. (AP) — Park House, once the home of a frontier newspaper and a lookout for steamboats carrying supplies during the Civil War, will be moved from its perch of some 120 years high above the Missouri River.

It has to give way to a new highway, Missouri 9, which will cut across the river bluff and take a shortcut through the hills to link up with U. S. 71 North.

The house, now a museum of Park College history, will be moved about 1,000 feet northeast but will still overlook the river.

Colonel George S. Park, cofounder of the college, had the foundation of the house laid in 1834. A native of Vermont, Park came to northwest Missouri after serving under Sam Houston in the Texas revolt.

He platted Parkville in 1844 and in 1853 started a newspaper, the Industrial Luminary.

His paper had exposed vote fraud in the Kansas territory by Missouri's pro-slavery forces, and a mob stormed the hill toward the house.

Cool Trend Will Continue in Area

PORTAGEVILLE - A cool trend that developed during the first weeks of July remains a feature of weather anticipated over the Bootheel for the next 30 days. Temperatures are expected to average well below normal from the middle of July through mid-August. At the same time, indications point to more than normal rainfall.

Circulation patterns will favor southward penetration of cool air into the Bootheel as high pressure centers from Canada follow a path through the upper Mississippi Valley to the southern Great Lakes. Cold fronts will reach southern Missouri more frequently than usual. Both day and night temperatures will be affected when cotton would benefit from warm and humid conditions. This will impose less of a heat stress on corn and soybeans.

High pressure is not likely to be well enough established over the southern states to block the flow of moisture and warmth from the Gulf region. Conditions should be favorable for showers and thunderstorms developing ahead of cold fronts to provide several substantial rain periods. Any one of these could deliver the normal moisture total to scattered sections of the Bootheel, as happened during activity that preceded a cool flow on July 12. Unofficial totals up to 3.9 inches were reported during that storm, concentrated generally in a band from the Malden area to the vicinity of Portageville and Marston.

The normal rainfall for the Bootheel as a whole from mid-July through mid-August is 3.27 inches. Normals for individual cities are:

Cape Girardeau 3.29 inches; Dexter 3.33 inches; Morehouse 3.00 inches; Parma 3.38 inches; Sikeston 3.02 inches; Caruthersville 3.30 inches; Doniphan 3.67 inches; New Madrid 3.44 inches; and Poplar Bluff 3.23 inches.

Short term averages for other cities:

Advance 3.11 inches; Bloomfield 3.25 inches; Clearwater Dam 3.18 inches; Kennett 3.29 inches; Portageville 3.32 inches; Qulin 2.76 inches; Bernie 3.13 inches; Charleston 2.91 inches; Deering 3.32 inches; Malden 3.18 inches; Puxico 3.00 inches and Wapapello Dam 3.31.

The long period record shows the following average precipitation for the period mid-July through mid-August when heavy rainfall has occurred:

Poplar Bluff 6.64 inches; Sikeston 6.95 inches and Caruthersville 5.99 inches.

In general, the heavy precipitation category has yielded at least 4.43 to 4.73 inches.

The major portion of the Bootheel received somewhat less than normal rainfall during the first half of July. Exceptions are the middle sections which collected heavy amounts on the 12th plus parts of Mississippi county in the path of thunderstorms that dumped nearly 2 inches at Charleston July 10-11. Soil moisture ranges from excess in heavy rain areas where water still stands in some low spots, to adequate in other sections. Rainfall through the middle of August will reduce need for irrigation except possibly on sandier soils. That will depend upon the interval between showers.

Soil moisture measurements at the University of Missouri experiment field near Hayward have been consistently well above field capacity this season on a sandy loam field planted in cotton. More advanced crops such as corn are taking greater amounts of moisture from soil reserves than the cotton which had not yet blossomed by the 15th of July.

While cooler than normal temperatures tend to reduce activity of disease organisms, moisture conditions are likely to prolong the need for attention to spray schedules in peach and melon crops. Forecasts will give advance warning of shower periods to help farmers avoid wash off and to resume control programs following wetting.

Weed and grass control in cotton and soybeans may require chopping crews in the field later than usual. Farmers will want to obtain advice from their county extension directors regarding need for additional herbicide applications at layby.

Welfare Medical Director Named

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Dr. H. O. Loyd of Columbia has been appointed medical director of the state Division of Welfare, Welfare Director Proctor N. Carter announced Tuesday.

Loyd formerly practiced medicine in Jefferson City and Sacramento, Calif., and more recently was associate professor of medicine at the University of Missouri Medical Center.

He will work on development of the Medicare program recently passed by the legislature.

Memorable Date

Sept. 17, 1862, is a memorable date, being the bloodiest single day of the Civil War. More men were killed and wounded — 23,110 — at Antietam that day than on any other day of the war.

Lottery Sales Far Below Goal

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Sales of New York State lottery tickets in June — the first month of its operation — totaled only $6,447,605, compared with the $30-million goal that had been set.

State Tax Commissioner Joseph H. Murphy in announcing the official figures, contended, however, that the first month should not be regarded as a barometer because there had been "insufficient opportunity" to develop the full potential for sales, distribution and staff.

The law establishing the lottery — for educational purposes — was approved by the voters last November and went into effect April 1, but sales were put off to allow time for organization.

Republican Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, who did not endorse the lottery plan but went along with the voters and signed the implementing legislation, budgeted net proceeds of $45 million from it for state aid to education, and additional money for local school districts has been planned.

Drawings for the winners begin this week, with prizes ranging from $150 to $100,000 based on horse races previously run.

James C. Kirkpatrick

Dinner to Salute Kirkpatrick

JEFFERSON CITY -- Secretary of State James C. Kirkpatrick will be honored at a testimonial dinner Sept. 8.

Ben F. Weir, publisher of the Nevada Daily Mail, and D. Jeff Lance, St. Louis attorney and former U. S. district attorney, will serve as co-chairmen for the $25 a plate affair.

The dinner was proposed by Secretary Kirkpatrick's newspaper friends, Weir said. Strong support has come from attorneys who appreciate the improved service resulting from modernization of the corporations office, Lance said.

James W. Brown Jr., publisher of the Harrisonville Democrat-Missourian, will be treasurer of the dinner committee.

During Kirkpatrick's first two years as secretary of state he has set up two new departments, records management and archives and the uniform commercial code. The records program has resulted in an estimated savings of more than a half million dollars, in time, space and money.

The recent legislature created a commission urged by Secretary Kirkpatrick to study, revise and recodify the state's archaic election laws.

Car Lights Aid Motorists On Hazy Days

By Leonard F. Hand

PORTAGEVILLE -- Automobile headlights cost almost nothing to operate and can prevent serious accidents during daylight hours, as well as light the way at night. Most drivers use their lights in the foggy dimness near dawn. How many think to turn them on during hazy days we frequently experience during summer and autumn?

When air becomes stable and stagnant over a broad area, reduce visibility naturally follows. Dust particles and imperfectly burned wastes from industrial plants and home heating systems clog the air. No vertical currents develop to remove them from the ground layer in which we live. People sensitive to respiratory irritation are first to sense the change.

This condition promotes a serious hazard for travilers on our narrow, high - speed highways. Shades of almost any color now used to decorate our cars blend easily into the gray-blue background of haze. A driver pulling out to pass a slow moving vehicle may not see an oncoming automobile bearing down upon him out of the murky haze ahead.

It costs only a little effort to reach forward and turn on your lights when weather factors reduce the sharpness of your vision. Full headlamps penetrate the haze much better than parking lights and are reassuring sight to your fellow traveler who is trying to decide whether he has a safe margin for passing. Drivers should be seen and not hurt.

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The milkman is slowly becoming a thing of the past in the Pittsburgh area.

Why? The Greater Pittsburgh Dairy Industry Association says more and more people are buying their milk from supermarkets and because milkmen must "take terrific ear beatings from housewives."

POTATOES ARE ESPECIALLY PLENTIFUL

For the second time this year, the U. S. Department of Agriculture is calling consumer attention to an unusually large supply of potatoes.

Although not on USDA's current Plentiful Foods List, potatoes are expected to be particularly plentiful through the first three weeks of July. Prices, too, should continue reasonable, although this will depend somewhat on the quality and condition of the potatoes.

In greatest abundance are long, white spuds from California, according to USDA's Consumer and Marketing Service. However, long, red potatoes and round, whites from southeastern states also are readily available.

Furthermore, Midwest states -- particularly Minnesota and Michigan -- are expected to begin sending potatoes to market by mid-July.

GENIE IN THE KITCHEN -

If you're scouring the coffee pot some day and all of a sudden a genie appears and grants you only one wish to help with kitchen ills --what would it be?

One wish will be enough -- if you wish for lemons!

Lemons are an answer to your search for that "certain something" to put new spark in cooked vegetables, or a new garnish, a low-cal salad dressing, or a substitute seasoning.

This little kitchen factotum can do even more. Lemon is a mild bleaching agent, useful in keeping white vegetables white. For example, a little lemon can be used in the waterwhen cooking potatoes to retain the natural coloring. Celery dipped in "lemonated" water is guaranteed against browning.

Lemon juice removes stains from hands and materials. It's a hair rinse after shampoo, and a cleanser for copper, brass and aluminum.

This versatile wonder acts as a bleach for linen or muslin, can be used as an alkalizing agent with water, or even as a laxative with bicarbonate. It's a beauty treatment, an astringent, a remedy for colds when served hot, some people say.

Is all this too good to believe? Can only one fruit do all this? Not really . . . limes are reasonably priced right now, and supplies are plentiful, points out the Consumer and Marketing Service of the U.S. Department of Agriculture. So buy some of these colorful handfuls and work up a little magic of your own.

CALLS FOR CONTROLS

Washington, D. C., . . . Pointing to "a rising tide of mob terrorism and guerilla warfare", The Southern States Industrial Council called for enactment by Congress of S. 674 and other measures to reduce crime and lawlessness throughout the nation.

Speaking for the Council before the Senate Judiciary Sub-Committee on Criminal Laws and Procedure on Monday, Executive Vice President Thurman Sensing said S. 674 by Senator John L. McClellan (D., Ark.) was needed to counteract the effects of the U. S. Supreme Court decision in the Miranda case and strengthen the hand of law enforcement officials. The McClellan bill provides that voluntary confessions to crimes are admissable as evidence in court, with the trial judge having responsibility to determine whether they are truly voluntary.

By ruling out admissability of most confessions, Sensing said, the Supreme Court "virtually assured the freedom of murderers, for example, who kill without witnesses being present and who do not leave fingerprints or other evidence."

In urging passage of S. 674 as one of the major steps needed in a crusade against crime, Sensing said: "We now face in this country an almost intolerable situation. General crime and a new type of street lawlessness and rioting are sharply on the increase; the criminal and the rioter in the street are becoming more brazen and more contemptuous of the law and the lives and property of fellow citizens. Yet at the very time our laws need tightening, they are being stretched and bent and almost totally emasculated."

The Southern States Industrial Council executive declared before the Senate Sub-Committee that today's policeman is "almost defenseless, bedeviled by those who commit crimes ranging from murder to petty theft on the one side, and those who disregard the law and take to the streets on the other."

"The peaceful, private citizen is, apparently, the law's forgotten man," Sensing said.

The Southern States Industrial Council, headquartered in Nashville, Tenn., is comprised of some 2,400 industrial and business concerns, mostly in a 16-state area from Maryland to Texas. Its officers and directors include many of the top business leaders in those states, and in addition the Council has directors-at-large scattered across the country from Portland, Ore., to New York City.

STOLEN IN PITTSBURGH

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Thieves stole cash and property valued at $3,364,595 last year in Pittsburgh, according to the city's police service division.

Pastor Favors Presbyterian Church Union

By BARBARA LACY

Although he attended the General Church, U.S., the Rev. Lindy Cannon, pastor of the Hunter Memorial Presbyterian Church, returned to Sikeston with a new awareness of his responsibility to the "Church of Jesus Christ in Sikeston."

He attended the annual congress of ministers and laymen, the governing force of the church which met this year from June 11-17 in Bristol, Tenn., as an observer; next year he will return as a voting member. But even from the sidelines he caught the spirit of a new era in Christianity, which is glowing in many denominations of church unity.

"That is why this was felt to be the most important assembly in the history of the church, he said. Can you imagine what the churches could do if they had a united front? It would be an exciting experience for everyone.

"We can already see an example of this in Sikeston. The Mustard Seed Coffee House is a good example of people working together as Christians. You'd see a great many more things happen if we could all sit down together more often," he continued emphatically. "It's a shame that more of our churches aren't involved in joint efforts to serve the children and adults in our community.

The Mustard Seed is a coffee house for high school students having church support with meetings Tuesday and Thursday nights.

There were three areas of discussion at Bristol on church union, the Mr. Rev. Cannon explained. "Our church voted on entering into or continuing explorative talks with the Reformed Church of America, a northern Dutch Presbyterian church; the Consultation on Church Union involving the Methodist, Episcopal, and Disciples of Christ churches among others; and the largest branch of the Presbyterian Church USA.

"They voted 405 to 16 to continue talks with the Reformed Church and we expect a union of these two churches around 1970.

"What's involved? They have the same form of government as we do, representative; the main difference is in background. The Reformed church is from Holland, we're from Scotland. Although they emphasis liturgy a little more than we do, they are no more liberal or conservative than we are.

"Our delegates were more divided on the issue involving merging with major denominations. After a half a day of strong emotional debate they decided to continue participation in the Consultation on Church Union by a vote of 255 to 184.

"I'm all in favor of this. We have a rich heritage to share with each other. Personally, I feel the church is moving backwards which doesn't want to discuss union with other churches.

No one knows what "union" really means as there are no actual plans for union now. That's what they're discussing. Perhaps we'd keep our own labels but provide a united front on major issues.

"The main problems seem to be among the clergy. They don't always agree on the status of other clergy. Another problem is what form of church government to sanction: Episcopal, representative or pure democracy.

"As you can see, it's not so much a question of theology as it is administrative details although there could be some problems over the sacraments.

"I was disappointed with the assemblies discussion on third vote, on continuing talks on union with the Presbyterian Church USA. That was a tragic moment for Missouri Presbyterians."

"There are two branches of the Presbyterian Church in Missouri, the one at Dexter and the one in Sikeston are in different branches, which divided during the Civil War and they need each other, they need to work together to survive. But because of the conservative elements in our church, mostly in the deep south, I don't feel union will take place for many years. In my opinion this was a step backward.

"It may seem incongruous but this same assembly voted overwhelmingly to establish talks with the Roman Catholic church for information on key issues of today.

"Civil disobedience was also discussed and the church voted to support the right of the individual to disobey as long as he felt he was right. It was emphasized that this was not supporting disobedience for disobedience sake, but disobedience against the wrongs of society. It did not approve the activities of any civil rights group. That wasn't the purpose. The statement emphasized the individuals responsibility; he must know the rules. Disobedience is only right as long as it carries on the ministry of Christ. Each individual must be aware of what Christ is calling him to do.

"While affirming loyalty to the United States government, the assembly adopted a paper which raised questions about the war in Vietnam. The paper stated that the church is "deeply perplexed and anguished" by the war. Cannon says, "I really believe that statements says very little about the problem of Vietnam.

The assembly came out with these statements because people want to know where the church stands. Churches seem to be afraid of taking a stand on most issues, probably for several reasons, loss of members and money among them.

Some churches are speaking out. And, from the conference I could see our church moving forward like a mighty turtle.

What bothers me most is Christians' lack of compassion for other Christians. We let regional ideals stand between us. But, by the grace of God, causes things to happen, and I believe that in spite of people, God's church is growing.

Legislative Pay Hike Beginning Date in Doubt

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Comptroller John C. Vaughn said Tuesday he plans to ask the attorney general whether legislators can start collecting their pay increase Oct. 13 or whether they must wait until their new terms in 1969.

They also appropriated $525,000 in the final catch-all appropriation bill to start paying the increase.

A legal question was raised about the appropriation, since the constitution says an elected official cannot collect a pay increase during his current term.

But Sen. J. F. Patterson, D. Caruthersville, said a previous attorney general's opinon held that legislators were entitled to immediate payments when they raised their salaries to $4,800.

He said the money was included in the omnibus bill in case that opinion stands up. If it does not, the money would revert to the general revenue fund.

THE Outlook for Business

Austin T. Cushman, Director
Sears, Roebuck and Co.

In judging the outlook for retail business, let us take a brief look at recent trends and the current situation. As the months passed in 1966, it became increasingly apparent that the boom in retail sales was slowing down. The slackening in consumer appetites for goods has continued well into the first half of 1967. At this point, it appears that total retail business in the first six months was only 2 per cent higher than in the first half of 1966, a rather scant improvement. The decline in automobile sales was a major factor. It is reported that unit sales of domestic makes sank 13 per cent below year-ago sales in the first five months of this year. Another factor is the surprisingly small margin of gain in food store sales. This sector has enjoyed a relatively consistent rate of expansion even in periods of transition from fat to lean years.

The increased restraint in consumer appetites for goods has also been reflected in the sales results of general merchandise retailers. Markets have continued to expand for some big-ticket items: dryers, air conditioners, and color television sets, for example; but a softening in demand for certain staple major appliances, such as ranges, washers, and refrigerators, has been a partially offsetting influence in the durable goods lines. The new fabrics and fashions are still propelling soft goods sales upward although here, too, the pace has eased off. It now looks like general merchandise sales will average close to 5 per cent higher this spring than last spring, which would confirm last December's prediction.

There is reason to believe that the conservative buying behavior of consumers thus far in 1967 is only a temporary phenomenon. Consumer income has continued to show quite substantial gains, with more people at work, little unemployment, and even larger pay increases than last year. Consumers have been saving more and borrowing and spending less, particularly for items usually purchased on credit. Some types of spending, notably services, are stll advancing strongly. Past patterns of changes in consumer buying attitudes suggest an early return to a more normal spending-saving relationship. This gives us one reason to be optimistic.

An added and even stronger reason for optimism is that the general economic outlook is favorable. Recovery in home building, the strong growth in spending by all levels of government, and the needs of a growing and increasingly affluent population for goods and services will more than offset the dampening effects of the business inventory correction now in process. What this implies is that a larger number of persons will be drawing pay checks in the months ahead, and it is safe to predict their pay checks will be higher on average. In short, consumer purchasing power can be expected to continue to grow at a fairly substantial rate.

Under the conditions I have described, I believe that retail business in the next six months will exceed last year's level by about 5 per cent. Although I do not foresee a strong resurgence of demand for automobiles and big-ticket household durables this year, sales of these items should have even more reason to be optimistic about the sales outlook for the second half of 1967. Keeping my fingers crossed about international developments in the months ahead, I will even venture to predict an excellent Christmas season.

POLICY DISCORD IN THE RANKS

WASHINGTON, D. C., -- The president of the National Right to Work Committee said today that the results of a nationwide poll of union members "completely repudiate the AFL-CIO hierarchy's demand for congressional repeal of Section 14(b) of the Taft-Hartley Act."

Duke Cadwallader, himself a dues-paying member for more than 25 years and a founder of the Right to Work organization, cited widespread press reports relating to a secret poll sponsored by the AFL-CIO. Its findings reportedly disclosed that the rank and file membership disagrees with top union officials on the issue of compulsory union membership and many other legislative questions.

(Right to Work laws now in effect in 19 states prohibit the practice of compelling workers to pay union dues under threat of discharge. Section 14(b) authorizes the states to legislate against forced unionism, and sustained campaigns for additional Right to Work laws have recently been launched in several states with the assistance of the National Committee.)

Referring to the findings of the AFL-CIO poll, Cadwallader said, "This revelation verifies the arguments of members of Congress who insist that repeal of Section 14(b) is favored only by labor union professionals. It also vindicates the position taken by Minority Leader Everett M. Dirksen and his bipartisan Senate coalition during the 14(b) battles of 1965 and 1966.

"The rank and file's rejection of the compulsory union shop is borne out also by the increasing number of union members who are actively supporting the expanding Right to Work movement.

"The AFL - CIO's own poll shows that its top officials have been flagrantly guilty of misrepresenting the sentiments of the dues-paying membership. There are no visible signs indicating that the federation's present leadership is prepared to reflect the true will of the rank and file.

"The passage of several more state Right to Work laws will enable union members to exercise some control over their officers."

Girl Fights Brave Battle With Cancer

By HARRY HOFFMAN
The Joplin News Herald

JOPLIN, Mo. (AP) — When Nora Jane Hicks, 8, gained three-fourths of a pound last week, her mother, Mrs. Willard Hicks, called it "the greatest news in little Jane's long fight for her life."

So significant was the slight gain in weight and the fact the girl's blood count remained nearly steady during the week, that doctor's at Children's Mercy Hospital in Kansas City decided to let Jane return to her home in Joplin for a short period.

In Joplin, many are familiar with the girl's struggle against abdominal cancer, bone cancer, and a tumor. Her mother, noting Jane's first gain in weight in six months — in which she steadily dropped from 85 to about 45 pounds — quoted the doctors as saying the girl "has such spirit and will to live, it's amazing the fight she is making to defeat the disease."

The girl first entered the Kansas City hospital in December for exploratory surgery. At the time, doctors reported her life expectancy to be only a few weeks. They had discovered a tumor the size of a grapefruit.

She has been hospitalized twice for long periods — from December to February, and from May to June 30. Last week she returned to the hospital for two days.

She returned there last Friday for a checkup and then was brought home.

Her mother said doctors told her the cancer Jane has is normally found in adults. A new type drug is being supplied to Children's Mercy Hospital by other research centers for use in combating the cancer in her left abdomen, Mrs. Hicks said.

The girl's hospitalization and continuing treatment have proven crippling to the limited Hicks income. Her average monthly drug bill is $150, and while Jane is in the hospital, it costs her mother about $70 each week to stay near her.

Monthly disability checks from the government— the only family income— amount to $423. Nearly half is for the nursing home expenses.

Business and civic organizations in Joplin have launched fund-raising drives to assist the family. Early in the year the Joplin Exchange Club collected $1,500.

On July 7 the Joplin Globe Publishing Co. initiated the "Jane Hicks Fund," which netted nearly $300 the first two days.

A number of civic groups are planning benefits and a dance.

Other Joplinites, inspired by the girl's courage, have provided her with a portable stereo, records, books, and toys. Also joining in the small city's drive are church groups, city police, and firemen.

Mrs. A. Zachary Dies Tuesday

ORAN - Mrs. Arch Zachary, 76, died Tuesday at 10 p.m. in the Charleston Host House, where she had resided since July 6. She was born in Perry county, Tenn., March 7, 1891, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William W. Tanner.

She was a member of the First Baptist church. On July 21, 1911, she was married to W.E. Greener, London, Ark., who preceded her in death on Nov. 24, 1960. On March 30, 1962, she was married to Arch Zachary, Lamar, Ark., who survives.

Other survivors are one daughter, Mrs. Jesse C. Salee, Oran; two stepdaughters, Mrs. Burl Childers, Lamar, Ark., and Mrs. Dennis Callaway, Rogers, Ark.; two stepsons, Elmer Zachary, Lamar, Ark., and Sgt. Scott Zachary, with U.S. Army; two brothers, W.E. Tanner, Vanduser, and E.D. Tanner, London, Ark.; three grandchildren and five great-grandchildren.

Services will be held Thursday at 2 p.m. in the First Baptist church, with the Rev. W. Clayton Humphries officiating.

Burial will be in the Friend cemetery, with Smith Funeral Home in charge.

William Boyd Dies Tuesday

ADVANCE -- Wm. F. Boyd, 83, of Brownwood, died in a Cape Girardeau hospital Tuesday.

Services will be at 2 p.m. Thursday in Morgan Funeral Home with the Revs. Milas Rhodes, and Eugene Payne officiating.

Burial will be in Morgan Memorial Park.

Boyd was born in Bollinger County to Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Boyd. He was first married to Miss Maggie Grindstaff, who died in 1952. In 1954, Mr. Boyd married Miss Mary Daugherty, who survives.

Also surviving are two brothers, Henry Boyd, Arab, and Joe Boyd, Chicago, and a sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Sherfield, Bernie.

Wade Kinder, 66, Idalia, Dies

BLOOMFIELD -- Wade "Jack" Kinder, 66, retired farmer and storekeeper of the Idalia community, died Tuesday at 8:30 p.m. in the Poplar Bluff hospital.

Born in December of 1900, son of John and Ida Kinder, he spent his life in Idalia. He was a member of the St. Joseph Baptist church.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Kina Triplett Kinder; one son, Earl Kinder, route two, Essex; four grandchildren, and one greatgrandson.

Services will be in the St. Joseph Baptist church, Friday at 2 p.m., with the Rev. Don Cooper, officiating.

Burial will be in the South Pleasant Valley cemetery, with Chiles - Cooper Funeral Home in charge.

Rusty Water Blamed On Break in Line

By Leo Schade

MATTHEWS -- Residents living in the south portion of this city are concerned about the city's water supply.

A water main has broken. This is blamed by residents for colored water in their homes. Two breaks on one street have been found by neighbors.

Water mains more than seven or eight years old are said to be corroded and filled with rust, and have left a deposit in bathroom fixtures of a rust color. Home with water softeners are not affected other than causing the softeners to wear out.

Mayor Harold Burch has called council meetings in a futile effort to correct the condition.

Several families have had to bring in water for drinking and other uses.

Oran Farmer Dies Monday

ORAN - Orrin R. Shaffer, a farmer, who died at his home Monday, will be buried in the Guardian Angel Catholic cemetery after services in the church at 9 a.m. Thursday.

Shaffer, 48, was born Aug. 18, 1918, in Campbell, a son of Mr. and Mrs. James Shaffer. On Oct. 4, 1941, Shaffer married Rita Mier.

He was a member of the Guardian Angel Catholic Church and Knights of Columbus, Oran Council.

Rosaries will be recited at 7:30 p.m. and 8 p.m. Wednesday at the Earl J. Smith Funeral Home. The Rev. Robert Landewee will officiate at the rites Thursday.

Surviving Mr. Shaffer are his widow; his father, James Shaffer of Oran; a son, Bewain Shaffer; two daughters, Mrs. Gene Hanselman, Oran, and Carol Shaffer, of the home, and two sisters, Mrs. David Law, St. Louis, and Mrs. Nelda Hanks, also of Oran.

not spell out the U.S. policy on guarantees but said only the questions raised are "serious and solemn."

5. Pending agreements, worked out by United States and Panamanian negotiators, for a new system governing the Panama Canal, represent a major step toward the peaceful operation of the canal, Rusk said. He advised critics to retrain themselves until the full texts of the treaties are disclosed. The draft accords are now being reviewed by the U.S. and Panamanian governments.

6. The Soviet Union indicated three months ago it was prepared to discuss with the United States the possibility of preventing a new round in the nuclear arms race, but it has so far failed to say when or where the talks can be held.

The United States has proposed that the two great powers agree to hold down on the construction of antimissile defenses. Rusk said failure to do so would mean a massive build-up of both ballistic missiles and antiballistic missiles running into "tens of tens of billions of dollars."

crash. One body went through the roof of a nearby residence.

"There's no possibility of survivors," he said.

Witnesses said the small plane, a Cessna 310, which has two engines, exploded immediately after the collision. The airliner, one witness said, "Continued on in flight as if nothing had happened. Then, all of a sudden, it blew up too."

The airliner crashed near a boy's summer camp. Several boys were playing volleyball a short distance away. None of them was injured.

A spokesman at Piedmont Airlines headquarters in Winston-Salem said the airliner was Flight 22, which left Atlanta at 10:40 a.m. bound for Asheville-Hendersonville Airport, Roanoke, Va., and then to Washington. It was due in the nation's capital at 12:57 p.m.

A resident of the crash area, K.C. Smart, saw the collision. He said the light plane burst into flames and went down immediately after the collision. The airliner continued on in flight briefly, then blew up.

A Piedmont spokesman said the airliner carried 73 passengers and a crew of five.

Another witness, C.C. Collins, said he was mowing his lawn when he heard an explosion.

"There was a blast in the air and then the pieces started falling," he said. "I don't know whether the motor blew up, but there was a terrible amount of smoke."

Collins said he heard another explosion after the airliner fell.

Henderson County Sheriff J.F. Kilpatrick said every available piece of rescue equipment and every off-duty and reserve officer had been sent to the scene. The State Highway Patrol ordered its entire area force to report for duty.

New Grocery Being Built

Workers began laying concrete blocks today for a second Quick Shop grocery in Sikeston. It will be located on the east side of South Main, south of Reiss Dairy.

The small, modern grocery stores specialize in fast service, and are designed to handle short orders, Ratledge said.

Hayden Rites At Advance

ADVANCE -- Services were held Wednesday at 2 p.m. at the Morgan Funeral Home in Advance by the Rev. Louis Gardner for Mrs. Rosa A. Hayden, 76, of East St. Louis, Ill., a former resident of Sturdivant.

Mrs. Hayden was born June 12, 1891, in Fairfield, Ill., daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Phelps. She was married in December, 1910, to John C. Cooper, who preceded her in death in 1936.

In 1948, she married John T. Hayden, who died in 1962.

She is survived by three daughters, Mrs. James Myers, St. Louis, Mrs. Wilburn Walker, Albuquerque, and Mrs. James Gowen, East St. Louis.

Also surviving are two sons, John R. and Raymond Cooper, East St. Louis; a brother, Fred Phelps; a sister, Mrs. Ralph Kerns, Advance; 13 grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren.

Burial was in the Rock Point cemetery near Advance.

Elections Go On

Elections of a U.S. president cannot be disposed with, even in time of war. The Constitution requires that a president shall hold office "during the term of four years."

If You Were the Judge

Personal Services Pact Has Earthly Base

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

Karen always got carried away with anything in which she became involved. For example, when she decided to take dancing lessons, she signed up for no less than 10,000 hours of private tutoring.

Before she could take the first lesson, however, she was again carried away, literally this time. She died. Immediately, the executor of her estate demanded the return of the money Karen had paid for the unused lessons.

"It's not my fault she died," responded the proprietor of the dancing school. "Since I'm ready, willing and able to give her the lessons, even through a medium, I don't have to pay back a penny!"

The dispute ended up in court where the executor demanded the return of the money.

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you permit the proprietor of the school to keep the money of an angel?

This is how the judge ruled: The money had to be paid back. The judge held that legal contracts are generally binding upon people and their estates; that courts will not become involved in the wisdom or folly of provisions in such contracts.

But, the judge added, a contract for personalized services is predicted on the ability of one person to give and the other party to receive such services. If that's not possible, the contract may be cancelled.

We witnessed an interesting game of ball on the McMullin Park a few days ago. It consisted of three boys and a bird dog. One of the boys was pitcher, another catcher the third was the batter, the dog the fielder and whenever a ball was sent into the field the dog retrieved it. The dog was having just as much sport as were the boys.

Ann Landers

Neglect of Father Disturbing

Dear Ann Landers: My dad and mother had been married 40 years when Mother died. A year later Dad married a very sweet, grandmotherly woman 15 years his junior. Doris was a good wife to him and they were happy. Six years later Dad died and left everything to Doris. This was fine with me as I was very fond of Doris and she treated me just like she treated her own children.

A few weeks ago Doris died. I almost went into a state of shock when I learned that Doris had left everything to her own grandchildren. This included the money she received when she sold my dad's business, the home my dad and mother lived in for many years, all the furnishings, her jewelry, and the life insurance she received when Dad died.

My children needed that inheritance and we were counting on it. I am so bitter I don't think I will ever get over this. It kills me to learn that Dad thought so little of us that he would allow such a thing to happen. Please help me get some peace of mind. --- WORLD DESTROYED.

Dear Destroyed: I suspect most of your anxiety stems from the notion that your father "thought so little of you, etc" -- but chances are that he did not think at all. He probably expected to live longer and write a will "some day." This is of course, unrealistic. The results of such poor thinking can be disastrous. I hope your letter will be a reminder to others who are procrastinating for reasons of superstition or just plain reluctance to face the fact that they will not live forever.

Dear Ann Landers: Add me to the endless list of people who never thought they would be writing to you. I just had to respond to the man who signed his letter, "No Bargain Myself."

He is right when he says it is hell to live with an emotionally disturbed person. I know because my husband was a severe alcoholic. I tried for years to fight his battle. I lied for him when I should have been encouraging him to help himself. Finally, I cracked under the strain.

This is a rough and demanding world and while many people are making it, everyone, no matter how strong, has a breaking point. To be emotionally healthy is the greatest of all blessings. Now that I have seen the other side of the Great Divide I truly appreciate what it means. I am trying to help others who are less fortunate than I and at the same time I am fighting for my own survival every moment of every day. --- NO ONE WOULD GUESS IT

Dear N.O.W.: This world is loaded with people who are quietly fighting for survival. I am filled with admiration for these struggling heroes and heorines for whom there are no medals --- only scars.

Dear Ann Landers: I am a 19-year-old blabbermouth who simply can't stop talking. I rattle on and on about inconsequential things and I'm sure I bore all my friends to death. To tell you the truth, I bore myself.

It seems that whenever there is a lapse in a conversation, even when there are nine people present, I feel it is my duty to break the silence. I blurt out absurd statements just because I think I must say something.

At the end of an evening I am disgusted with myself. What is wrong with me? What can I do to correct this? --- YA TA TA TA

Dear Ya: You are a compulsive talker and, like most compulsive talkers, you are trying to cover up your feelings of inadequacy. You need counseling. In the meantime, try to keep your mouth shut (by using sheer WILL power) unless you can improve on the silence.

What is French kissing? Is it wrong? Who should set the necking limits -- the boy or the girl? Can a shotgun wedding succeed? Read Ann Landers' booklet, "Teen-age Sex -- Ten Ways To Cool It." Send 50¢ in coin and a long, self - addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self - addressed envelope.

Treasurer's Post May Go to Man

WASHINGTON (AP)— An 18-year tradition that a woman be treasurer of the United States could be ending.

It's been nine months since Mrs. Kathryn O'Hay Granahan, a former member of Congress from Philadelphia, resigned as treasurer because of ill health.

Her signature however, still appears on the lower left corner of all new paper money. It will remain there until her successor is named.

Government insiders now say the job will go not to another woman— the last four treasurers have been women— but to William T. Howell, a career Treasury Department employe who is now deputy treasurer. Howell, has been acting treasurer since Mrs. Granahan's retirement last Oct. 13.

Under present law, the treasurer is appointed by the President and confirmed by the Senate. But there have been rumors the post might be placed under civil service.

Several prominent women mentioned in speculation as possible treasurer have obtained other jobs. Theese include former Sen. Maurine Neuberger, D-Ore., Miss Genevieve Blatt, former secretary of internal affairs for Pennsylvania, and Mrs. Marjorie Lawson, a former District of Columbia judge.

The last man to hold the job — and he was treasurer for 16 years— was W.A. Julian, who died in 1949.

Hampton to Continue in Job Corps

GRAY RIDGE -- James Hampton, Essex route one, is home on leave from the Gary job corps after completing six months training. Three months were spent at the Trapper Creek center in Montana. He has been accepted for a six months extension after which he plans to attend college to study architecture. The job corps will share part of the college expenses and he will work as a certified draftsman.

Hampton was referred to the job corps by the Richland community action agency.

He graduated from Richland high school in 1966.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Buddy Hampton.

QUICK QUIZ

Q—Can birds see as well as humans?

A—Birds have developed powers of sight to a remarkable degree. Probably they surpass all other creatures in excellence of vision. Most birds can see clearly both at shorter and longer distances than man.

A—William Henry Harrison, who had 10 children, four of whom were alive when he became president.

A—That of Thomas Jefferson.

Q—Is the Appalachian Trail both a motor road and a hiking trail?

Copper May Be Reduced In Shells

It's a matter of economics.

Copper is more expensive than iron and the United States has been investing quite a lot of the metal around Southeast Asia in the form of artillery shells and small arms rounds.

Pentagon spokesmen say that in the case of larger shells— the 90mm, 105mm and 155mm— about two pounds of copper is expended per shot. Virtually all of this is in the shell's rotating band, which metallurgists believe can just as well be made of iron.

According to the Pentagon, U. S. forces in Vietnam fired roughly 15 million rounds of 90mm, and 155mm artillery shells between January 1966 and last May.

At two pounds of copper per shell, this indicates the United States shot off roughly 30 million pounds of copper in an 18-month period.

Pentagon spokesmen say defense supplies currently pay about 38 cents per pound for copper either from government stockpiles or from domestic producers. This is two cents higher than last year's price.

Just by saving that two cents per pound through iron substitution the Pentagon could, at current consumption rates, save $32,000 a month or $384,000 a year. Actual cost figures for the iron still are indefinite.

The General Services Administration says there is no shortage of copper. But its figures show a severe decline in copper stockpiles the past two years.

New Madrid Doctor Awarded Fellowship

Herman A. Crisler

PHILADELPHIA -- Dr. Herman A. Crisler, Jr., of 1030 Scott St., New Madrid, Mo., has been awarded a residency fellowship in pediatrics by Wyeth Laboratories, it is announced by Dr. Philip S. Barba, chairman of the selection committee and adjunct professor of pediatrics, Temple University school of medicine.

Dr. Crisler served his internship at the City of Memphis Hospital and undertakes his residency there. He received his medical education at the University of Tennessee.

The fellowship, one of 15 sponsored by the Wyeth Fund for postgraduate medical education this year, provides $4,800 during a two - year period to enable each physician to complete advanced study in the care and treatment of children. Dr. Crisler is in the tenth group to be awarded Wyeth fellowships under the program established in 1958 by the Philadelphia pharmaceutical manufacturer.

"Continuing medical education is important for every physician, and at Wyeth we are pleased we can encourage young doctors like Dr. Crisler to devote at least two more years to training while serving young patients at fine institutions such as the City of Memphis Hospital," Herbert W. Blados, president of Wyeth, commented when the fellowship was announced. "We would like to encourage many more young people to pursue medical careers, so that the medical profession and the hospitals may maintain the high levels of patient care they have established in this country."

Dr. Barba, emeritus associate professor of the University of Pennsylvania school of medicine, and past president of the American Academy of Pediatrics, said the selection of the Fellowship recipients is based on evidence of good character, academic achievement, performance of duty and need for financial assistance. The Wyeth Fellows may train in any hospital whose residency program is accredited by the residency review committee of the American Board of Pediatrics and the Council on Medical Education and Hospitals of the American Medical Association.

Delays Threaten Final I-55 Link

CAPE GIRARDEAU - Construction of the final link of Interstate 55 from Fruitland north to the newly opened section at Festus might be delayed if the federal government demands new built-in highway safety standards.

News reports out of Jefferson City today said the state highway department is disturbed by the new requirements, which would greatly increase costs and require redesign of highways now set for construction.

Highway officials in Jefferson City say it is almost certain the federal standards will be imposed and when they are it will mean a delay in the state's interstate highway system.

Completion was originally set for 1972, but it is now thought likely 1975 will be the earliest date.

Recently, after complaints about the timetable for completing the Fruitland - Fistus link of I-55, the state highway department said it would be advanced one year to 1971. But it gave no assurance that even that would be met, pointing out numerous factors could delay the start.

News reports said the Festus-Fruitland I-55 link is now in the design stage. It is feared if the government insists on the new safety standards, the work will have to be redone with a resulting delay.

New federal standards include additional right of way, wider bridges and a more gentle slope. These are time consuming features if highways already planned or in the desing stage must be made to meet new standards.

Cadets Visit Washington

WASHINGTON (ANF)—A group of United States Military Academy Cadets visited the Office of the Army Chief of Information recently and attended orientation briefings on the Army's Information Program.

Maj. Gen. Keith L. Ware, Chief of Public Information and Chief of Information, discussed Army information activities, and representatives of the divisions of the Office of the Chief of Information outlined specific information objectives during the Cadets' visit.

The Cadets represented "Pointer," the monthly Cadet magazine; "Howitzer," the Cadet yearbook; the Cadet Public Information Detail, and the Cadet Public Relations Council.

MAIL BOX

EDITOR:

Please print the following letter for the kids I know from the University. I told some of them (I won't mention any names) that I would write one letter for all of them sometime during the summer and, this is it.

Thank you very much
Ethelyn Hart

I didn't know if the name of your paper was "Sikeston Daily Gazette," "Sikeston Journal" or "Sikeston Weekly". All I remember is Mary Liebel, Deidre Harber, Carol Werneck, and Kay Walton all gathered around its ten pages or so reading the news to each other and other listeners. I think it was a daily chore, so that would rule out the name "Sikeston Weekly."

This letter is to say "Hi" to; Mary, Kay, C.J. Deidre, Randy, Wayne, Alan, Skip and everyone else I've met from "Gods' Country".

I promised I would write you sooner, but that's the way it goes, I guess. I have been busy and everytime I'd start to write something would come up. Then, I decided to go ahead and mail this letter. It is saving me writing and time. Of course I'd never write this much in one letter to one person. Since this is to everyone of you that I know or have heard so much about that I feel like I know you, I had to make it a little longer. Quite a bit longer. Also I had to write something worth printing in the paper. I've got to go now. I'll see most of you in September, I hope. If any of you take a notion to write a letter to me, go ahead. I'll be glad to hear from you.

From you'all's friend,
Ethelyn

P.S. Mary Liebel please take care of Gary Wayne. I left him out earlier in the letter. Hi, Gary Wayne. (You take care of Mary, too!)

CRICKETEER

The sweet songs of the summertime
Grow fainter every day;
Rhythms, that call some poets to rhyme.
Fade with that symphony.
No longer is the sedgebrush green,
Soon, frost will kiss the lea--
Thou cricket, are you leave the scene,
Chirp one last note for me.

MUTINY of the native army and police force in British-protected South Arabian Federation and continued sniping at British forces in the colony of Aden may upset London's plans to grant full independence next Jan. 9. Long a British Middle East stronghold, the federation (Aden and 16 other states) has recently been wracked by Arab nationalist strife spilling over from neighboring Yemen's civil war between Egyptian and Saudi Arabian-backed sides.

Today In U. S. History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Wednesday, July 19, the 200th day of 1967. There are 165 more days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1941, the "V for Victory" campaign in Europe was launched at midnight with a broadcast by Prime Minister Winston Churchill of Great Britain.

On this date:

In 1776, Congress resolved "the declaration adopted on the fourth be fairly engrossed on parchment with the title and stile (sic) of 'The Unanimous Declaration of the Thirteen United States of America'."

In 1870, the Franco-Prussian War began.

In 1918, German armies began to retreat across the Marne River in France after their last great World War I offensive in that country was successfully repulsed by the Allies.

Chances of Survivors Rated Dim

HENDERSONVILLE, N.C. (AP) - - A Piedmont Airlines Boeing 727 with 78 persons aboard crashed near this mountain city today after colliding in flight with a smaller plane.

A Sheriff's Department spokesman said there appeared to be no survivors.

A sheriff's deputy at the scene said bodies were strewn "all over the area" just off Interstate 26, about 2.5 miles northeast of the city.

The deputy said 35 bodies had been counted two hours after the

Rail Service Near Normal

NEW YORK (AP) — The nation's railroads picked up momentum today as they rolled back toward normal operations. But some lines said full service was still a day or so away.

In the isolated instances where pickets still refused to bow to the congressional back-to-work order, the railroads were seeking relief in the courts.

By Tuesday night picketing had apparently stopped in California, but protest rallies were being planned by some machinists.

Sigmund Arywitz, head of the Los Angeles County Labor Federation, said: "By its action, Congress has substantially diminished our freedoms in this country."

In Cleveland, the New York Central System said shopcraft employes reported for work on regular shifts today, after the line obtained a restraining order from U.S. District Judge Ben C. Green to get 1,200 men at its Collinwood yards back on the job.

The Louisville & Nashville reported its trains running again in Kentucky but said it would take a day or two to get back into full operations.

The Southern Railway secured a temporary injunction against the unions in U.S. District Court in Chattanooga Tuesday, claiming irreparable damage to the company and the public.

The Southern claimed the strike was causing damages of $75,000 a day to Southern alone and asked that the unions be required to make it up.

President Johnson Tuesday appointed a five-man panel headed by Sen. Wayne Morse, D.-Ore., to mediate the wage dispute that resulted in the first nationwide rail strike in 20 years.

Others on the panel will be Fred Kappel, retired president of the American Telephone & Telegraph Co.; Theodore Kheel, New York labor mediator) Leverett Saltonstall, former Republican senator from Massachusetts and George Meany, president of the AFL-CIO.

The back-to-work legislation signed Monday by Johnson calls for a government-written settlement if the six shopcraft unions and management are unable to reach agreement in 90 days.

The workers, who now average from $2.94 to $3.05 per hour, were seeking increases of 6.5 per cent this year and 5 per cent next year, plus 12.5 cents per hour each year for higher skilled men.

The railroads reportedly offered a 6 per cent wage hike over 18 months plus one five-cent raise for skilled workers.

Collegians to Be Coffee House Guests

By Carol Miller

The Mustard Seed, usually limited to high school students, will open its doors to college students and young careerists at a special session tonight at 7:30 p.m.

There will be a panel discussion of the new morality, live guitar music and folk singing.

The coffee house, experimentally operated by five churches as a wholesome recreational outlet for teenagers, is open on Tuesday and Thursday nights from 7:30 p.m. to 10:30 p.m. to high school students.

St. Francis Xavier, Hunter Memorial First Presbyterian, First Christian, Trinity Baptist and first Methodist churches sponsor the biweekly meetings in the parish house of First Methodist.

"It is a pleasant, informal place where students can meet and talk about anything and find concern from interested adults," Mrs. Keith Collins, 9 Bel Air Drive, one of the originators, commented.

The mode is casual in dress and decor. Under colored lights participants sit in air-conditioned atmosphere on pillows with a coffee bar available. It is patterned after coffee houses for collegians.

Each night there is a happening. In past weeks this happening has consisted of original drama, music, discussions, play readings, and "anything to challenge youth to the awareness of the values of contemporary life," said Mrs. Collins.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Rubey, 609 Vernon St., have been employed by the coffee house committee to be managers for the summer.

The Mustard Seed will remain open until August and may be reopened next summer.

Student Association Having Trouble Since CIA Split

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Student Association, which huffily divorced the Central Intelligence Agency in February, is having typical marital estrangement difficulties: Who gets the house and who pays the bills?

Both sides were embarrassed when the student-CIA tie was disclosed by former NSA officers. The NSA got brickbats from its members for accepting money from a government agency that spies and influences; the CIA blushed like an undercover agent who drops his badge at a Mafia meeting.

But the student association still has its national headquarters in two expensive interconnected townhouses, and it is paying nothing for them under an agreement with the Independence Foundation of Boston.

W. Eugene Groves, president of the NSA, says the foundation is not trying to collect rent. It simply wants to be rid of its tenant. The students want to keep their headquarters, but they don't want the CIA to pay for it.

"They are in the hot seat and want us out of the building," says Groves. "We had one meeting with the attorney for the CIA. He was rather nasty, using a lot of bluff, threats that we punctured very easily."

What kind of threats?

"One is drying up the Independence Foundation in order that the leasor would no longer own the building."

The CIA, being in the secrecy business, won't comment one way or another. But a source familiar with CIA operations says any thoughts of threats would be ridiculous.

The Independence Foundation in the years 1962 through 1964 listed contributions to the NSA of $50,584.52, $55,101.15 and $48,988.09 in its income tax records.

New Violence Sends Guards to Cairo

CAIRO, Ill. (AP)— A new outbreak of flames, gunfire and a stabbing brought National Guardsmen to duty in this historic city today.

Peace was restored after Gov. Otto Kerner ordered out 50 troops. His office said he acted at the request of the sheriff and the chief of police.

Violence occurred Tuesday for the second time in three nights in Cairo, a city where Negroes make up about half of the population of about 9,800.

Police said a fire broke out at 10:20 p. m. Tuesday at the White-Coleman Lumber Co. A watchman fired several shots at persons he suspected were involved.

No cases of wounds were reported at hospitals.

The fires were extinguished.

There also was sporadic sniping during the night. Police returned the fire.

A white woman, Mrs. Alma Witaker, went into the Pyramid Court public housing project on the West Side just before dark Tuesday night to pick up her laundry. She told police that, as she got out of her car, a young Negro girl stabbed her in the arm and fled.

The housing project is occupied by Negroes.

Troops surrounded the housing project, but the number on duty there at midmorning was reduced to four.

Lt. Jerry Lebo, commander of the guard unit, said his soldiers were under orders to return any gunfire.

The troops are members of 1st Battalion, 130th Infantry. They live in Southern Illinois, including Cairo.

"This is not a race riot," said Preston Ewing, president of the Cairo chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People. "It was a limited number of people, and it wasn't spontaneous."

He attributed the violence to about 100 persons, most of them teen agers who are jobless and have nothing to do.

Volence first broke out Sunday night, when fire destroyed a warehouse and damaged three stores.

Withdrawal of the state police Ewing said, was a factor in the renewed vandalism.

Ewing said job discrimination and a dearth of recreation rank first on his list of Negro problems in this city in a cotton-growing region at the confluence of the Ohio and Mississippi rivers 337 miles south of Chicago.

He said Negroes respect the state police and National Guardsmen but dislike Cairo police for what he termed police brutality.

"Nobody in the white power structure wants to take any affirmative action," Ewing told a newsman, "because they are afraid of the white backlash."

Mayor Lee Stenzel has ordered an investigation of Negro grievances.

"No police brutality will be tolerated." he stated.

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — America's Lunar Explorer spacecraft streaked toward the moon today on a mission viewed as the "last chance" to learn about potential radiation hazards facing moon-bound astronauts.

The windmill-shaped craft, officially named Explorer 35, bolted skyward at 10:19 a.m. (EDT) on a fiery Delta rocket to begin a planned three-day trip toward an egg-shaped orbit about the moon.

There it is to spend two to three years studying radiation dangers and investigating whether a cone-shaped tail that trails earth-caused by this planet's magnetic field— could shield Apollo astronauts from radiation spewed into space by storms on the sun.

"All indications are that we have a good start to the flight," a National Aeronautics and Space Administration spokesman said as the mooncraft raced toward its target 225,608 miles away.

If there are no problems, a retro-rocket will be triggered Saturday morning to slow the speed so the payload will be caught in the grasp of the moon's gravity field.

The spokesman said all aspects of the mission appeared normal at that time.

Police Report Three Accidents

Three accidents were reported by police Tuesday afternoon. None were injured.

A car driven by Stephen Penrod, 53, 611 South Kingshighway, struck the front end of an automobile driven by Miss Elva Manche, 231 Moore, at 3:49 p.m. at Malone and Kingshighway. No summons was issued. Police are investigating.

An automobile driven by Pluit Wiggins, 106 Thompson, struck a parked car owned by Samuel A. Baker, 33, 410 West North St., at 5:53 p.m. Tuesday. The accident occurred in front of the Baker residence.

Minor damage was caused to both vehicles when a car driven by Vernice M. Simmons, Senath, backed into a parked car at 12:25 p.m. Tuesday on the Cream Castle Parking lot. Her car struck a vehicle owned by Gary Boyer, 809 Harvard, police reported.

British Decision Grieved

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Dean Rusk said today the United States regrets Britain's decision to cut its defense commitments in the Far East by the mid-1970s but warned the Communists not to "take any comfort" from the British announcement.

Rusk told a news conference that the countries in that part of the world are determined to defend their freedom and they have the help of various nations including the United States, and he added:

Speaking at his first on-the-record Washington news conference in four months, Rusk also declared:

1. The United States still hopes very much to get an agreed limitation — with Russia and others — on the arms buildup in the Middle East, but "I cannot say that I am encouraged about the prospects."

2. The United States is prepared to try to find points of agreement with the Soviet Union whether they be on small issues such as cultural exchanges, or world crises such as Vietnam and the Middle East. But, he added, the United States has no illusions of easy accords nor does it misjudge "the depth and importance of the matters which separate us."

3. The United States and South Vietnam are making progress in their fight against Communist conquest of South Vietnam, and Rusk said the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong forces are being hurt "very badly." Toll Road Assn. Meets

The purpose of the organization and the meeting is to show community interest and ask for an early feasibility study for a toll road from northwest to southeast Missouri.

Representatives from Kansas City, Sedalia, Rolla, Perryville, Jackson, and Cape Girardeau also had arrived before noon.

The group organized in a Rolla meeting about a month ago, Allen Robinson, Cape Girardeau Chamber of Commerce manager said.

Underwood on Air Tour of Costa Rica

He placed first in a recent examination of air cadets in Missouri, and was accompanied by Richard Neal, Cape Girardeau, who scored second.

The two cadets flew from St. Louis to Washington, D.C., where they joined other cadets of the 50 wings in the nation. They were briefed last night before departing for the Central American country Thursday.

They were flown to Costa Rica by members of the air force and senior civil air patrol members.

Underwood is a son of Mr. and Mrs. John M. Underwood, route two. He graduated from Sikeston high school in May. He received a four - year schoiarship to Missouri University, where he will be in the naval reserve officers training corps.

Pony Killed On Interstate

A pony was struck and killed on Interstate 55, two and one-half miles south of Benton at 3:30 a.m. Tuesday, by a Northbound 1967 Chevrolet, driven by Bill Anderson, 32, Charleston.

A driver of a 1959 Farmall tractor, Robert Silman Jr., 23, Portageville, was bruised and scratched in a collision with a car Tuesday at 1:10 p.m. on highway 61, one quarter mile south of Marston.

A 1960 Oldsmobile, driven by Ruby Marie Thurman, 40, Earle, Ark., started to pass the tractor, pulling a cultivator, when he dropped back because of the approach of a car. The Oldsmobile struck the tractor, injuring Silman, who was treated at the Painter Clinic in Portageville.

Jet liner Crashes With 78 Aboard

Chances of Survivors Rated Dim

HENDERSONVILLE, N.C. (AP) - - A Piedmont Airlines Boeing 727 with 78 persons aboard crashed near this mountain city today after colliding in flight with a smaller plane.

A Sheriff's Department spokesman said there appeared to be no survivors.

A sheriff's deputy at the scene said bodies were strewn "all over the area" just off Interstate 26, about 2.5 miles northeast of the city.

The deputy said 35 bodies had been counted two hours after the

Rail Service Near Normal

NEW YORK (AP) — The nation's railroads picked up momentum today as they rolled back toward normal operations. But some lines said full service was still a day or so away.

In the isolated instances where pickets still refused to bow to the congressional back-to-work order, the railroads were seeking relief in the courts.

By Tuesday night picketing had apparently stopped in California, but protest rallies were being planned by some machinists.

Sigmund Arywitz, head of the Los Angeles County Labor Federation, said: "By its action, Congress has substantially diminished our freedoms in this country."

In Cleveland, the New York Central System said shopcraft employes reported for work on regular shifts today, after the line obtained a restraining order from U.S. District Judge Ben C. Green to get 1,200 men at its Collinwood yards back on the job.

The Louisville & Nashville reported its trains running again in Kentucky but said it would take a day or two to get back into full operations.

The Southern Railway secured a temporary injunction against the unions in U.S. District Court in Chattanooga Tuesday, claiming irreparable damage to the company and the public.

The Southern claimed the strike was causing damages of $75,000 a day to Southern alone and asked that the unions be required to make it up.

President Johnson Tuesday appointed a five-man panel headed by Sen. Wayne Morse, D.-Ore., to mediate the wage dispute that resulted in the first nationwide rail strike in 20 years.

Others on the panel will be Fred Kappel, retired president of the American Telephone & Telegraph Co.; Theodore Kheel, New York labor mediator) Leverett Saltonstall, former Republican senator from Massachusetts and George Meany, president of the AFL-CIO.

The back-to-work legislation signed Monday by Johnson calls for a government-written settlement if the six shopcraft unions and management are unable to reach agreement in 90 days.

The workers, who now average from $2.94 to $3.05 per hour, were seeking increases of 6.5 per cent this year and 5 per cent next year, plus 12.5 cents per hour each year for higher skilled men.

The railroads reportedly offered a 6 per cent wage hike over 18 months plus one five-cent raise for skilled workers.

Collegians to Be Coffee House Guests

By Carol Miller

The Mustard Seed, usually limited to high school students, will open its doors to college students and young careerists at a special session tonight at 7:30 p.m.

There will be a panel discussion of the new morality, live guitar music and folk singing.

The coffee house, experimentally operated by five churches as a wholesome recreational outlet for teenagers, is open on Tuesday and Thursday nights from 7:30 p.m. to 10:30 p.m. to high school students.

St. Francis Xavier, Hunter Memorial First Presbyterian, First Christian, Trinity Baptist and first Methodist churches sponsor the biweekly meetings in the parish house of First Methodist.

"It is a pleasant, informal place where students can meet and talk about anything and find concern from interested adults," Mrs. Keith Collins, 9 Bel Air Drive, one of the originators, commented.

The mode is casual in dress and decor. Under colored lights participants sit in air-conditioned atmosphere on pillows with a coffee bar available. It is patterned after coffee houses for collegians.

Each night there is a happening. In past weeks this happening has consisted of original drama, music, discussions, play readings, and "anything to challenge youth to the awareness of the values of contemporary life," said Mrs. Collins.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Rubey, 609 Vernon St., have been employed by the coffee house committee to be managers for the summer.

The Mustard Seed will remain open until August and may be reopened next summer.

Student Association Having Trouble Since CIA Split

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Student Association, which huffily divorced the Central Intelligence Agency in February, is having typical marital estrangement difficulties: Who gets the house and who pays the bills?

Both sides were embarrassed when the student-CIA tie was disclosed by former NSA officers. The NSA got brickbats from its members for accepting money from a government agency that spies and influences; the CIA blushed like an undercover agent who drops his badge at a Mafia meeting.

But the student association still has its national headquarters in two expensive interconnected townhouses, and it is paying nothing for them under an agreement with the Independence Foundation of Boston.

W. Eugene Groves, president of the NSA, says the foundation is not trying to collect rent. It simply wants to be rid of its tenant. The students want to keep their headquarters, but they don't want the CIA to pay for it.

"They are in the hot seat and want us out of the building," says Groves. "We had one meeting with the attorney for the CIA. He was rather nasty, using a lot of bluff, threats that we punctured very easily."

What kind of threats?

"One is drying up the Independence Foundation in order that the leasor would no longer own the building."

The CIA, being in the secrecy business, won't comment one way or another. But a source familiar with CIA operations says any thoughts of threats would be ridiculous.

The Independence Foundation in the years 1962 through 1964 listed contributions to the NSA of $50,584.52, $55,101.15 and $48,988.09 in its income tax records.

New Violence Sends Guards to Cairo

CAIRO, Ill. (AP)— A new outbreak of flames, gunfire and a stabbing brought National Guardsmen to duty in this historic city today.

Peace was restored after Gov. Otto Kerner ordered out 50 troops. His office said he acted at the request of the sheriff and the chief of police.

Violence occurred Tuesday for the second time in three nights in Cairo, a city where Negroes make up about half of the population of about 9,800.

Police said a fire broke out at 10:20 p. m. Tuesday at the White-Coleman Lumber Co. A watchman fired several shots at persons he suspected were involved.

No cases of wounds were reported at hospitals.

The fires were extinguished.

There also was sporadic sniping during the night. Police returned the fire.

A white woman, Mrs. Alma Witaker, went into the Pyramid Court public housing project on the West Side just before dark Tuesday night to pick up her laundry. She told police that, as she got out of her car, a young Negro girl stabbed her in the arm and fled.

The housing project is occupied by Negroes.

Troops surrounded the housing project, but the number on duty there at midmorning was reduced to four.

Lt. Jerry Lebo, commander of the guard unit, said his soldiers were under orders to return any gunfire.

The troops are members of 1st Battalion, 130th Infantry. They live in Southern Illinois, including Cairo.

"This is not a race riot," said Preston Ewing, president of the Cairo chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People. "It was a limited number of people, and it wasn't spontaneous."

He attributed the violence to about 100 persons, most of them teen agers who are jobless and have nothing to do.

Volence first broke out Sunday night, when fire destroyed a warehouse and damaged three stores.

Withdrawal of the state police Ewing said, was a factor in the renewed vandalism.

Ewing said job discrimination and a dearth of recreation rank first on his list of Negro problems in this city in a cotton-growing region at the confluence of the Ohio and Mississippi rivers 337 miles south of Chicago.

He said Negroes respect the state police and National Guardsmen but dislike Cairo police for what he termed police brutality.

"Nobody in the white power structure wants to take any affirmative action," Ewing told a newsman, "because they are afraid of the white backlash."

Mayor Lee Stenzel has ordered an investigation of Negro grievances.

"No police brutality will be tolerated," he stated.

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — America's Lunar Explorer spacecraft streaked toward the moon today on a mission viewed as the "last chance" to learn about potential radiation hazards facing moon-bound astronauts.

The windmill-shaped craft, officially named Explorer 35, bolted skyward at 10:19 a.m. (EDT) on a fiery Delta rocket to begin a planned three-day trip toward an egg-shaped orbit about the moon.

There it is to spend two to three years studying radiation dangers and investigating whether a cone-shaped tail that trails earth-caused by this planet's magnetic field— could shield Apollo astronauts from radiation spewed into space by storms on the sun.

"All indications are that we have a good start to the flight," a National Aeronautics and Space Administration spokesman said as the mooncraft raced toward its target 225,608 miles away.

If there are no problems, a retro-rocket will be triggered Saturday morning to slow the speed so the payload will be caught in the grasp of the moon's gravity field.

The spokesman said all aspects of the mission appeared normal at that time.

Police Report Three Accidents

Three accidents were reported by police Tuesday afternoon. None were injured.

A car driven by Stephen Penrod, 53, 611 South Kingshighway, struck the front end of an automobile driven by Miss Elva Manche, 231 Moore, at 3:49 p.m. at Malone and Kingshighway. No summons was issued. Police are investigating.

An automobile driven by Pluit Wiggins, 106 Thompson, struck a parked car owned by Samuel A. Baker, 33, 410 West North St., at 5:53 p.m. Tuesday. The accident occurred in front of the Baker residence.

Minor damage was caused to both vehicles when a car driven by Vernice M. Simmons, Senath, backed into a parked car at 12:25 p.m. Tuesday on the Cream Castle Parking lot. Her car struck a vehicle owned by Gary Boyer, 809 Harvard, police reported.

British Decision Grieved

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Dean Rusk said today the United States regrets Britain's decision to cut its defense commitments in the Far East by the mid-1970s but warned the Communists not to "take any comfort" from the British announcement.

Rusk told a news conference that the countries in that part of the world are determined to defend their freedom and they have the help of various nations including the United States, and he added:

Speaking at his first on-the-record Washington news conference in four months, Rusk also declared:

1. The United States still hopes very much to get an agreed limitation — with Russia and others — on the arms buildup in the Middle East, but "I cannot say that I am encouraged about the prospects."

2. The United States is prepared to try to find points of agreement with the Soviet Union whether they be on small issues such as cultural exchanges, or world crises such as Vietnam and the Middle East. But, he added, the United States has no illusions of easy accords nor does it misjudge "the depth and importance of the matters which separate us."

Rusk praised the Glassboro conference as a contribution to greater understanding between President Johnson and Premier Alexei N. Kosygin.

3. The United States and South Vietnam are making progress in their fight against Communist conquest of South Vietnam, and Rusk said the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong forces are being hurt "very badly." POOR CHARLIE SAYS!
STILL WAITING

In his current newsletter, the junior U.S. Senator from Missouri, Edward V. Long, passes along some valuable information, not excluding his wife's recipe for "Honey Dew Salad." At the end of the newsletter, almost as an afterthought, the junior Senator adds these words:

"Want you to know that recent charges against me and my Senate Subcommittee have increased my determination to keep up the fight for the citizen's right of privacy. As your Senator, I do not intend to let attempts to smear me and intimidate me halt my work in behalf of my State and the people of this nation."

This is an interesting paragraph, even if it only serves to point up the fact that our junior Senator apparently does not realize the gravity of the disclosures - not smears - that have been made against him.

In order that those who might have received Senator Long's newsletter will not be deceived, we think it would be well to place several points in proper perspective.

First of all, there have been no charges brought against Senator Long, as of this moment. Although it is reported the Senate Ethics Committee is investigating the Missouri lawmaker, there are now no formal charges placed against him.

Secondly, there have been disclosures, starting with an article in Life Magazine, that Sen. Long has been on the receiving end of large legal fees paid by a St. Louis law firm specializing in representing criminal and union labor elements, including Jimmy Hoffa and St. Louis Steamfitter officials.

Third, as far as we know, there have been no charges or disclosures against the sub-committee that Long heads. Members of the subcommittee are not the subject of disclosures nor did other Senators on the unit receive legal fees from the Shenker law firm.

Fourth, Sen. Long says he intends to keep up "the fight for citizen's right of privacy." Sen. Long has been in the upper legislative chamber since 1960, and his "fight" may be the longest one in history. Most observers say there are already sufficient laws on the books to protect personal privacy; what is needed now is strict enforcement of existing laws. This is hardly in Sen. Long's realm as a legislator; his function is to investigate the need for new laws, not enforce those already enacted.

The junior Senator has said he does not intend to halt his work in the Congress. We presume he means until the citizens of Missouri have an opportunity to judge his performance at the polls.

Strangely, he makes no mention of whether he intends to halt his fee taking from the Shenker law firm.

Strangely, he makes no disclosure of why he received the fees and what kind of work he did for the St. Louis firm while on the public's payroll as a legislator.

Several weeks ago Sen. Long indicated he would vindicate himself by bringing forth documents to show that he was innocent of any conflicts of interest.

The people of Missouri are still waiting.

JOHNSON MORE POPULAR?

We can't believe that seeing President Johnson shake hands with Soviet Premier Aleksei Kosygin at Glassboro, N.J., has caused the American people to send LBJ's popularity rating to a new high.

The fact is that anyone who read Kosygin's words in his news conference at the U.N. after the summit meeting should know the Communist line hasn't changed one bit. He called Israelis the "aggressor" and admitted that the Soviets were re-equipping Nasser with planes and tanks. He denounced Stalin's daughter who escaped to the United States as a "sick person" and "morally unstable."

In spite of this, the Johnson Administration is pretending that a new era of Soviet-American reconcilliation may have blossomed with the "spirit of Hollybush."

This is pure, unadulterated political baloney. Just ask any American service man in Vietnam where men are being killed by Soviet-made guns and ammunition delivered under the nose of our naval fleet in the Gulf of Tonkin.

The Communist leaders in Russia are not our friends and the Russian people enslaved by them would be our friends if they could get rid of their inhuman government. Only if this happens will we eventually have peace on this earth. - Atchison Kansas Globe.

It's ironic and incredible that the pinch of the nationwide railroad strike isn't felt most severely in the spot where it will do the most good - Congress.

With the railroads stalled while there is a war on and rioting in many city streets - even nearby Cairo - the combined chaos is too closely comparable to pre-DeGaulle France for comfort.

Americans have always prided themselves on their common sense and stability. But where are these admirable and necessary ingredients today? They certainly are submerged temporarily or at the worst absent from our society today.

Sen. Ralph Yarborough, Texas Democrat, is the author of a profound statement in commenting on the latest crisis inflicted by labor unions on the general welfare of the American people:

He said that striking unions and the railroads "have forced the hand of Congress."

Oh, yeh?

The hand of Congress has been forced time after time. The Johnson administration and many of its predecessors have appeased again and again. The process will be repeated throughout the days and months and the years ahead.

Why? Because politicians refuse to accept any responsibility to help the people who elect them to office if their action will offend any special interest groups.

A major catastrophe. A complete and sweeping breakdown in government. By then it could be too late.

But yesterday after repeated warnings time had run out on Congress. The long predicted railroad strike had materialized.

What did Congress do?

Senate and House conferees could not agree even on a formula for legislation to end this particular strike let alone measures to end such walkouts, which will directly affect the national welfare and security in the future.

So at a time when the nation's solvency is threatened, business is limping, a recession is threatened, the flow of arms to Vietnam is imperiled, metropolitan workers can't report for work, traffic is snarled and the innocent are punished for a strike that is not of their making.

All of this so that greedy union leaders can deliver a wage increase to railroad shop-craft workers.

What the country needs is a federal law requiring compulsory arbitration of management - labor disputes as a last resort device to prevent strikes affecting the national welfare and security.

It also needs fewer spineless politicians.

BOOK CLUB "DROPOUT"

An Indianapolis man found it is easier to get into than out of a book club, writes Bill Wildhack in the Indianapolis News.

This fellow had belonged to the club for some time but decided to cancel his membership. He sent a letter to the outfit telling it he was dropping out.

The only response was more books.

So he set another letter or resignation to the club. He received more books.

He stopped sending the books back...and didn't pay for them. He received more books accompanied by messages to "please remit."

Finally the fellow's wife returned home one day to find a letter from the book club addressed to her.

The letter said the club was sorry to hear about the death of her husband and extended its sympathy. The balance due would be forgiven, the letter said.

"You didn't!" she said to her husband.

He nodded and grinned.

The only thing we can add to this story is that perhaps this technique should be applied to the numerous requests for donations that come in the mail.

INDUSTRY PLANS BILLIONS FOR POLLUTION CURB

Industry has invested more than $1 billion in water pollution control facilities, spends more than $100 million per year to operate them, and will undoubtedly spend "billions" to control pollution in the future, the President of the National Association of Manufacturers said in a recent Pittsburgh, Penna., speech.

Addressing the 50th anniversary meeting of the Hydraulic Institute, W. P. Gullander said that both the percentage of the plants treating their wastes and dollar figures for pollution abatement will continue to rise as the states set water quality standards under the Water Quality Act of 1965. NAM and its affiliated National Industrial Council are "endeavoring to render every assistance and encouragement to the states in their standard - setting activities," he added.

However, investments in control facilities, while having social benefits, in most cases do not contribute to profits, Mr. Gullander said. For this reason, the NAM president explained, NAM advocates that recognition of the costs involved take the form of accelerated amortization, up to and including immediate write-off, at the option of the taxpayer without loss of investment credit.

In praising the hydraulic pump manufactuers in helping to satisfy industry's huge demands for water, Mr. Gullander quoted an NAM 1965 survey which stated that the average plant recirculated and reused a gallon of water almost three times, thereby reducing industry's water intake needs from 80 billion gallons to 30 billion gallons per day.

The NAM report, "Water in Industry," indicated that only 6 percent of industry's total water intake was consumed or lost. The remainder was returned to streams, lakes and oceans, he said.

Mr. Gullander urged industrial management to exert leadership in the activities of river basin planning commissions by contributing to and participating in fact - finding studies, presenting facts and viewpoints at commission hearings, and submitting recommendations concerning future development of water resources within the river basin.

"Such participation is vitally necessary to assure that private enterprise will not be bypassed in future water resources development, and to insure the construction of economically feasible projects based on sound engineering investigation," he stated.

NEW YORK (AP) — Jumping to conclusions:

You have a better likelihood of living longer if you spend your rainy Sunday mornings in a church rather than on a golf course. Very few people have been struck by lightning while sitting in a pew and listening to a sermon.

If all the people who've rushed away to the country knew how pleasant Manhattan is without them, they'd all come rushing right back.

A REAL OPPORTUNITY

Prospects for labor reform legislation are improving, but no hasty action is anticipated. There probably never was a more receptive public attitude toward labor reform, due to the costly New York transit strike and the more recent damaging rail strike.

Some proposals offered for consideration are: 1. Abolish NLRB and assign its functions to a Labor Court; 2. Extend protection against compulsory union membership, now in 19 states, to the 50 states; 3. Guarantee secret elections in deciding on whether to have a union; 4. Protect members against union fines in exercising right to work; 5. Restore free speech to employers; 6. Relieve employers from having to rehire strikers who engage in violence or coercive activity.

There is a real opportunity to protect both the public and the workman from destructive labor warfare that is so damaging to the nation and the time to start is now. The Washington Report of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, says that the prospect for "labor reform legislation" is improving, but that it won't come tomorrow.

INDUSTRIALIST LAUNCHES URBAN RENEWAL PLANS

While official Washington is considering ways and means of implementing the Demonstration Cities act, to renew rundown cities, private initiative in the person of Joyce C. Hall, founder and chairman of Hallmark Cards, demonstrates how he is going to do it.

Taking 85 acres near the Kansas City business district, plans have been filed to upgrade this area around his headquarters into a model urban community, at a cost estimated to exceed $100 million, which will be financed entirely by a Hallmark subsidiary unless other suitable private investors can be found.

The project provides essentially for offices and apartments rather than retail or commercial facilities. Included are a luxury hotel of 400 rooms, two motels, numerous office buildings totaling 1.1 million square feet and 2,500 residential units. Only 150,000 square feet have been earmarked for retail sales. The plan also calls for 7,040 parking spaces, mostly underground or in covered facilities.

The estimated cost of this initial phase is $45 million. A construction start is scheduled for early next year. The three other phases would follow. They would include clusters of apartment and commerical buildings plus parking.

TIME TO TAKE STOCK

When a nation is up to its ears in debt, and taking some one third of the income of its people for taxes, and running deficits, you would thinks its managers (the elected public officials) would welcome and encourage taxpaying private industry that provides revenue for federal, state and local governments. But, many political proposals today restrict the operation of the taxpaying private enterprise system -- the foundation of a free society.

The impression given is that political management can in some manner serve the people better than can private management. The proponents of tax-exempt government competition with citizens never point out that such policies kill taxpaying industries that provide jobs and support government. They never show that under such policies, government puts some of its best customers (taxpaying enterprise) out of business. It is as senseless for government to harass and discourage business by such practices as it would be for managers of industry to promote policies to put their customers out of business. We have spent billions of tax dollars and thousands of lives opposing the spread of the totalitarian government philosophy in two world wars and other conflicts. But our politicians go merrily on promoting its inroads in our own land. Is it not reasonable to ask -- where are we headed?

Freedom dies without resistance to political forces working to restrict free enterprise.

H. L. Hunt Says

Never has the inability of the United Nations to act effectively in a world crisis been more convincingly demonstrated than in recent weeks. Only the naive or the uninformed can be truly surprised by this. The UN was never fashioned to advance the cause of peace with freedom.

This disorganized organization was built on a quicksand foundation. Its flaws have been sharply pointed up by the influx of many small nations into the General Assembly. When the UN was organized in 1945 it had 50 members. Seventy - two have been added since then, the number including 46 newly independent nations shopped out of former colonial areas. Out of a present total membership of 122, there are 69 nations with populations smaller than that of New York City.

Each of these "nations," no matter how tiny, has one vote in the UN General Assembly. The Maldive Islands, with a population of 97,000 is a full member of the UN. Its vote in the General Assembly carried the same weight as the vote of the United States. It is significant that these small member - nations want to keep questions of crisis in the General Assembly instead of placing them before the Security Council. Most of them lean toward the communist world.

Also, to be noted is the fact that of the more than 6000 people employed in UN headquarters in New York more than two-thirds are either from communist countries or from countries closely allied with communism. The cards are stacked against the free world in the UN with respect to both the membership and the staff. HLH.

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON - Major American policy is sometimes influenced by minor conversations, and it's now revealed that the clinching talk by which President Johnson decided the time and place of the Summit Conference with Premier Kosygin was held in a phone booth in a filling station beside a New Jersey highway.

Of course a lot of discussion took place before the conversation in the phone booth. And since the Glassboro meeting was one of the most important in a decade of American diplomacy, it seems worth while to report the hitherto unrecorded facts of exactly what happened.

Privately President Johnson favored the meeting, but he wasn't sure what the international repercussions would be. So he played hard to get. First he asked some of his key foreign policy advisers to put their views in writing as to what was to be gained or risked from seeing Kosygin. Walt Rostow wrote the longest letter; secretary of Defense McNamara the shortest. But all recommended that he hold the meeting. For the sake of argument he still opposed the conference.

He then sent Secretary of State Dean Rusk to New York to sound out the Russians. Rusk phoned that he had talked with Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko, who believed the meeting should be held.

"Have you talked to Kosygin?" the President asked.

Rusk had not.

"Well, talk to him," instructed the President.

Rusk reported that Kosygin's reaction was favorable.

Gov. Richard Hughes of New Jersey, meanwhile, had told Presidential Assistant Walter Rostow that it was too bad Johnson and Kosygin couldn't meet for lack of a meeting place. He suggested three possible rendezvous in New Jersey: Morven, the old Colonial Mansion near Princeton which serves as the governor's residence; second, Princeton University; third, Rutgers University.

However, the President wanted some place which would be near an airport, not too near a big city where there might be demonstrations and security risks. The White House suggested some New Jersey estate.

Gov. Hughes canvassed the latter situation but reported back: "I'm a poor boy and don't know any rich people with big estates."

It was lucky he didn't, because the Russians in the end were highly impressed with the modest surroundings of Glassboro State College, which the Governor finally suggested to the White House.

CLEAR IT WITH THE DOCTOR

The President finally asked Hughes whether he had cleared the meeting with the President of the college, Dr. Thomas E. Robinson. Hughes had not. The President cautioned that this be done.

What the governor had actually done was to tell Dr. Robinson that he wanted a meeting place for a group of New Jersey and Pennsylvania legislators, and that he was considering Glassboro State College in this connection. He gave this as the excuse for asking Robinson whether helicopters could be landed on the college campus, what communications facilities were available, etc. Never did he tell Robinson that the world's two most powerful men were going to descend upon him. Later, Gov. Hughes apologized to Robinson for this phony story, and the two have joked about it.

Meanwhile, as the telephone calls were going back and forth between New Jersey and Washington, newsmen had sensed that the Johnson - Kosygin meeting was definitely in the works, and were clamoring for official confirmation. George Christian, the unruffled White House press secretary, urged the President to give him definite word.

"I've got a hundred newspapermen climbing the wall," he said.

But Gov. Hughes had not called back to report that he had cleared the meeting with Dr. Robinson. Instead, he left his office in Trenton. The President tried to telephone him but got word that the governor was en route home.

There were more demands from newspapermen for a final announcement on the meeting. But LBJ refused until the Governor had called back that he had cleared with Dr. Robinson.

Gov. Hughes was still not available.

Finally, the President himself got on the phone.

"Honey," he told the operator, "The Governor of New Jersey must have a radiotelephone in his car. Get him on the phone and say I want to speak to him."

The message finally reached the Governor of New Jersey. He got out of his car and went to a phone booth in a filling station to call back the President of the United States. If he had called back from the radiophone in his car any ham operator could have picked up the conversation.

The Governor told the President that everything was set, and that he was en route to Glassboro to notify Dr. Robinson, who was still in the dark that the two most powerful men in the world were to be his guests.

It was at this point that the White House announced the meeting.

Immediately the calls began deluging Dr. Robinson. The London Times, Tass, AP, UPI, all phoned the President of Glassboro State College.

Dr. and Mrs. Robinson had been sitting in their living room, having a cup of tea. They were a little stunned at first, but took the news gracefully.

A few minutes later, Gov. Hughes arrived to tell them the whole story.

WAR OVER COMPULSORY ARBITRATION

Washington, D.C.: -- The crash had to come. Finally, a union president, soft-spoken Roy Siemiller, who couldn't be pressured, and a President of the U. S., table-pounding Lyndon Johnson, who wouldn't be pressured, met head on in the rail strike. The stoppage is not the issue. The massive stakes, unseen by the public for the moment, are the issues which will bring collision after collision right through the 1968 election.

What Roy Siemiller, the Machinists' president, is fighting for is big labor's right to strike regardless of what is hit -- ball powder plants, painfully vital jet engines, all systems of transportation, aircraft carriers, nuclear submarines, fuel supplies, critical ammunition, the waterfront, rubber, copper and steel mills, jet fighter plane production as well as railroads.

What Siemiller really is fronting for is American labor's demand for the right to strike without interference from the White House or the Congress -- Vietnam or no Vietnam.

This, President Johnson --- though he's closer to American labor than any other president ever has been --- simply cannot permit. There is the war. There is the national election.

The labor leaders have their constituencies. The President has his.

So, from his command post inside the White House, he told presidential aide Joe Califano and Labor Secretary Willard Wirtz, among others, to stand pat, telephone (as did Wirtz to Siemiller on Sunday) but don't compromise on the strike. He told the machine gun-tongued Sen. Wayne Morse to hold tight. Thus in seven sessions of the Senate-House conferences on the bill, labor's Congressional allies made nine specific efforts to move Morse and the White House. The President did not budge.

Mr. Johnson knew if he did yield to his labor friends, next year would be the most crisis laden-presidential campaign-wartime period since the British burned the White House.

The duel with 137,000 members of six shop craft unions led directly by lame duck Machinists vice president Joe Ramsey is just the first skirmish on the lines. In January, the lines (now led by lame duck negotiator Doc Wolfe) must open their contracts with the tough trainmen, the firemen and enginemen, the switchmen and the railway clerks.

Most of them, especially Charles Luna's militant trainmen (largest of the rail unions), would just as lief strike as not for higher wages and new working conditions -- especially for more cash.

Then, six months later, just about the time the Jan. 1st crisis ripens, new contracts expire involving the engineers, conductors, brakemen and four "non-ops" (off train railway unions).

Meanwhile, of course, Walter Reuther will have heated up the industrial front with his assault on the auto corporations. A few months later he will be plunging back into new attacks on the aerospace and aircraft industry. And finally, the self-effacing, laconic leader of the big steel labor, I. W. Abel, will be advancing on the huge steel industry.

What Siemiller and Reuther and Abel want is the unadulterated right to strike without being called in to face the President and a network of his cabinet members, ranging from Dean Rusk, Robert McNamara and Willard Wirtz to the newcomer, Alan Boyd, Secretary of Transportation.

They say, in effect, when the issue of Vietnam is raised -- seize the rail lines, take over the aerospace industry, operate the steel plants, if you're going to have Congress run the labor relations business. Siemiller knew that 40 per cent of the Vietnamese military cargo is carried on rail freight cars. But his argument is "seizure" until the lines share some of their profits.

This, too, will be "Abe" Abel's answer next year. Not too long ago, he told his AFL-CIO Executive Council colleagues that he is sick of being told by the White House that the steelworkers can't strike -- and he told them the United Steelworkers of America will walk out in '68 to win big cash increases. Abel means this. He and his late chief Phil Murray called out some 135,000 steelworkers during the height of World War II.

There's more here than a rail dispute. The President is boxed in. So he has tossed the hot coal to Congress. They don't want to settle every crisis with a new law. So they'll keep tossing it right back to him. They know that the Machinists now have rollcall votes in the Congress on which to base political action in the next national campaign. And the Machinists won't be alone. They'll all punish their enemies -- those who vote for compulsory arbitration -- and reward their friends.

As for the presidency, an intimate of Roy Siemiller said the other day "the machinists and their families and a lot of other labor people simply will stay home on Election Day -- 1968."

And so there was a might collision. But as the late Al Jolson ad-libbed in an old movie, "you ain't heard nothing yet."

The crises are yet to come.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

STILL WAITING

In his current newsletter, the junior U.S. Senator from Missouri, Edward V. Long, passes along some valuable information, not excluding his wife's recipe for "Honey Dew Salad." At the end of the newsletter, almost as an afterthought, the junior Senator adds these words:

"Want you to know that recent charges against me and my Senate Subcommittee have increased my determination to keep up the fight for the citizen's right of privacy. As your Senator, I do not intend to let attempts to smear me and intimidate me halt my work in behalf of my State and the people of this nation."

This is an interesting paragraph, even if it only serves to point up the fact that our junior Senator apparently does not realize the gravity of the disclosures - not smears - that have been made against him.

In order that those who might have received Senator Long's newsletter will not be deceived, we think it would be well to place several points in proper perspective.

First of all, there have been no charges brought against Senator Long, as of this moment. Although it is reported the Senate Ethics Committee is investigating the Missouri lawmaker, there are now no formal charges placed against him.

Secondly, there have been disclosures, starting with an article in Life Magazine, that Sen. Long has been on the receiving end of large legal fees paid by a St. Louis law firm specializing in representing criminal and union labor elements, including Jimmy Hoffa and St. Louis Steamfitter officials.

Third, as far as we know, there have been no charges or disclosures against the sub-committee that Long heads. Members of the subcommittee are not the subject of disclosures nor did other Senators on the unit receive legal fees from the Shenker law firm.

Fourth, Sen. Long says he intends to keep up "the fight for citizen's right of privacy." Sen. Long has been in the upper legislative chamber since 1960, and his "fight" may be the longest one in history. Most observers say there are already sufficient laws on the books to protect personal privacy; what is needed now is strict enforcement of existing laws. This is hardly in Sen. Long's realm as a legislator; his function is to investigate the need for new laws, not enforce those already enacted.

The junior Senator has said he does not intend to halt his work in the Congress. We presume he means until the citizens of Missouri have an opportunity to judge his performance at the polls.

Strangely, he makes no mention of whether he intends to halt his fee taking from the Shenker law firm.

Strangely, he makes no disclosure of why he received the fees and what kind of work he did for the St. Louis firm while on the public's payroll as a legislator.

Several weeks ago Sen. Long indicated he would vindicate himself by bringing forth documents to show that he was innocent of any conflicts of interest.

The people of Missouri are still waiting.

JOHNSON MORE POPULAR?

We can't believe that seeing President Johnson shake hands with Soviet Premier Aleksei Kosygin at Glassboro, N.J., has caused the American people to send LBJ's popularity rating to a new high.

The fact is that anyone who read Kosygin's words in his news conference at the U.N. after the summit meeting should know the Communist line hasn't changed one bit. He called Israelis the "aggressor" and admitted that the Soviets were re-equipping Nasser with planes and tanks. He denounced Stalin's daughter who escaped to the United States as a "sick person" and "morally unstable."

In spite of this, the Johnson Administration is pretending that a new era of Soviet-American reconcilliation may have blossomed with the "spirit of Hollybush."

This is pure, unadulterated political baloney. Just ask any American service man in Vietnam where men are being killed by Soviet-made guns and ammunition delivered under the nose of our naval fleet in the Gulf of Tonkin.

The Communist leaders in Russia are not our friends and the Russian people enslaved by them would be our friends if they could get rid of their inhuman government. Only if this happens will we eventually have peace on this earth. - Atchison Kansas Globe.

* * *

It's ironic and incredible that the pinch of the nationwide railroad strike isn't felt most severely in the spot where it will do the most good - Congress.

With the railroads stalled while there is a war on and rioting in many city streets - even nearby Cairo - the combined chaos is too closely comparable to pre-DeGaulle France for comfort.

Americans have always prided themselves on their common sense and stability. But where are these admirable and necessary ingredients today? They certainly are submerged temporarily or at the worst absent from our society today.

Sen. Ralph Yarborough, Texas Democrat, is the author of a profound statement in commenting on the latest crisis inflicted by labor unions on the general welfare of the American people:

He said that striking unions and the railroads "have forced the hand of Congress."

Oh, yeh?

The hand of Congress has been forced time after time. The Johnson administration and many of its predecessors have appeased again and again. The process will be repeated throughout the days and months and the years ahead.

Why? Because politicians refuse to accept any responsibility to help the people who elect them to office if their action will offend any special interest groups.

A major catastrophe. A complete and sweeping breakdown in government. By then it could be too late.

But yesterday after repeated warnings time had run out on Congress. The long predicted railroad strike had materialized.

What did Congress do?

Senate and House conferees could not agree even on a formula for legislation to end this particular strike let alone measures to end such walkouts, which will directly affect the national welfare and security in the future.

So at a time when the nation's solvency is threatened, business is limping, a recession is threatened, the flow of arms to Vietnam is imperiled, metropolitan workers can't report for work, traffic is snarled and the innocent are punished for a strike that is not of their making.

All of this so that greedy union leaders can deliver a wage increase to railroad shop-craft workers.

What the country needs is a federal law requiring compulsory arbitration of management - labor disputes as a last resort device to prevent strikes affecting the national welfare and security.

It also needs fewer spineless politicians.

BOOK CLUB "DROPOUT"

An Indianapolis man found it is easier to get into than out of a book club, writes Bill Wildhack in the Indianapolis News.

This fellow had belonged to the club for some time but decided to cancel his membership. He sent a letter to the outfit telling it he was dropping out.

The only response was more books.

So he set another letter or resignation to the club. He received more books.

He stopped sending the books back...and didn't pay for them. He received more books accompanied by messages to "please remit."

Finally the fellow's wife returned home one day to find a letter from the book club addressed to her.

The letter said the club was sorry to hear about the death of her husband and extended its sympathy. The balance due would be forgiven, the letter said.

"You didn't!" she said to her husband.

He nodded and grinned.

NO DOUBT YOU'VE figured out by now whether you're an extrovert or an introvert. But are you aware an extrovert can't handle as much liquor as an introvert? A couple of drinks tends to fog up an extrovert and make him giddy. That is why few extroverts become alcoholics. They can't hold enough to get into said condition. Or such is the claim of the researchers.

INDUSTRY PLANS BILLIONS FOR POLLUTION CURB

Industry has invested more than $1 billion in water pollution control facilities, spends more than $100 million per year to operate them, and will undoubtedly spend "billions" to control pollution in the future, the President of the National Association of Manufacturers said in a recent Pittsburgh, Penna., speech.

Addressing the 50th anniversary meeting of the Hydraulic Institute, W. P. Gullander said that both the percentage of the plants treating their wastes and dollar figures for pollution abatement will continue to rise as the states set water quality standards under the Water Quality Act of 1965. NAM and its affiliated National Industrial Council are "endeavoring to render every assistance and encouragement to the states in their standard - setting activities," he added.

However, investments in control facilities, while having social benefits, in most cases do not contribute to profits, Mr. Gullander said. For this reason, the NAM president explained, NAM advocates that recognition of the costs involved take the form of accelerated amortization, up to and including immediate write-off, at the option of the taxpayer without loss of investment credit.

In praising the hydraulic pump manufactuers in helping to satisfy industry's huge demands for water, Mr. Gullander quoted an NAM 1965 survey which stated that the average plant recirculated and reused a gallon of water almost three times, thereby reducing industry's water intake needs from 80 billion gallons to 30 billion gallons per day.

The NAM report, "Water in Industry," indicated that only 6 percent of industry's total water intake was consumed or lost. The remainder was returned to streams, lakes and oceans, he said.

Mr. Gullander urged industrial management to exert leadership in the activities of river basin planning commissions by contributing to and participating in fact - finding studies, presenting facts and viewpoints at commission hearings, and submitting recommendations concerning future development of water resources within the river basin.

"Such participation is vitally necessary to assure that private enterprise will not be bypassed in future water resources development, and to insure the construction of economically feasible projects based on sound engineering investigation," he stated.

A REAL OPPORTUNITY

Prospects for labor reform legislation are improving, but no hasty action is anticipated. There probably never was a more receptive public attitude toward labor reform, due to the costly New York transit strike and the more recent damaging rail strike.

Some proposals offered for consideration are: 1. Abolish NLRB and assign its functions to a Labor Court; 2. Extend protection against compulsory union membership, now in 19 states, to the 50 states; 3. Guarantee secret elections in deciding on whether to have a union; 4. Protect members against union fines in exercising right to work; 5. Restore free speech to employers; 6. Relieve employers from having to rehire strikers who engage in violence or coercive activity.

There is a real opportunity to protect both the public and the workman from destructive labor warfare that is so damaging to the nation and the time to start is now. The Washington Report of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, says that the prospect for "labor reform legislation" is improving, but that it won't come tomorrow.

INDUSTRIALIST LAUNCHES URBAN RENEWAL PLANS

While official Washington is considering ways and means of implementing the Demonstration Cities act, to renew rundown cities, private initiative in the person of Joyce C. Hall, founder and chairman of Hallmark Cards, demonstrates how he is going to do it.

Taking 85 acres near the Kansas City business district, plans have been filed to upgrade this area around his headquarters into a model urban community, at a cost estimated to exceed $100 million, which will be financed entirely by a Hallmark subsidiary unless other suitable private investors can be found.

The project provides essentially for offices and apartments rather than retail or commercial facilities. Included are a luxury hotel of 400 rooms, two motels, numerous office buildings totaling 1.1 million square feet and 2,500 residential units. Only 150,000 square feet have been earmarked for retail sales. The plan also calls for 7,040 parking spaces, mostly underground or in covered facilities.

The estimated cost of this initial phase is $45 million. A construction start is scheduled for early next year. The three other phases would follow. They would include clusters of apartment and commerical buildings plus parking.

TIME TO TAKE STOCK

When a nation is up to its ears in debt, and taking some one third of the income of its people for taxes, and running deficits, you would thinks its managers (the elected public officials) would welcome and encourage taxpaying private industry that provides revenue for federal, state and local governments. But, many political proposals today restrict the operation of the taxpaying private enterprise system -- the foundation of a free society.

The impression given is that political management can in some manner serve the people better than can private management. The proponents of tax-exempt government competition with citizens never point out that such policies kill taxpaying industries that provide jobs and support government. They never show that under such policies, government puts some of its best customers (taxpaying enterprise) out of business. It is as senseless for government to harass and discourage business by such practices as it would be for managers of industry to promote policies to put their customers out of business. We have spent billions of tax dollars and thousands of lives opposing the spread of the totalitarian government philosophy in two world wars and other conflicts. But our politicians go merrily on promoting its inroads in our own land. Is it not reasonable to ask -- where are we headed?

Freedom dies without resistance to political forces working to restrict free enterprise.

H. L. Hunt Says

Never has the inability of the United Nations to act effectively in a world crisis been more convincingly demonstrated than in recent weeks. Only the naive or the uninformed can be truly surprised by this. The UN was never fashioned to advance the cause of peace with freedom.

This disorganized organization was built on a quicksand foundation. Its flaws have been sharply pointed up by the influx of many small nations into the General Assembly. When the UN was organized in 1945 it had 50 members. Seventy - two have been added since then, the number including 46 newly independent nations shopped out of former colonial areas. Out of a present total membership of 122, there are 69 nations with populations smaller than that of New York City.

Each of these "nations," no matter how tiny, has one vote in the UN General Assembly. The Maldive Islands, with a population of 97,000 is a full member of the UN. Its vote in the General Assembly carried the same weight as the vote of the United States. It is significant that these small member - nations want to keep questions of crisis in the General Assembly instead of placing them before the Security Council. Most of them lean toward the communist world.

Also, to be noted is the fact that of the more than 6000 people employed in UN headquarters in New York more than two-thirds are either from communist countries or from countries closely allied with communism. The cards are stacked against the free world in the UN with respect to both the membership and the staff. HLH.

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON - Major American policy is sometimes influenced by minor conversations, and it's now revealed that the clinching talk by which President Johnson decided the time and place of the Summit Conference with Premier Kosygin was held in a phone booth in a filling station beside a New Jersey highway.

Of course a lot of discussion took place before the conversation in the phone booth. And since the Glassboro meeting was one of the most important in a decade of American diplomacy, it seems worth while to report the hitherto unrecorded facts of exactly what happened.

Privately President Johnson favored the meeting, but he wasn't sure what the international repercussions would be. So he played hard to get. First he asked some of his key foreign policy advisers to put their views in writing as to what was to be gained or risked from seeing Kosygin. Walt Rostow wrote the longest letter; secretary of Defense McNamara the shortest. But all recommended that he hold the meeting. For the sake of argument he still opposed the conference.

He then sent Secretary of State Dean Rusk to New York to sound out the Russians. Rusk phoned that he had talked with Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko, who believed the meeting should be held.

"Have you talked to Kosygin?" the President asked.

Rusk had not.

"Well, talk to him," instructed the President.

Rusk reported that Kosygin's reaction was favorable.

Gov. Richard Hughes of New Jersey, meanwhile, had told Presidential Assistant Walter Rostow that it was too bad Johnson and Kosygin couldn't meet for lack of a meeting place. He suggested three possible rendezvous in New Jersey: Morven, the old Colonial Mansion near Princeton which serves as the governor's residence; second, Princeton University; third, Rutgers University.

However, the President wanted some place which would be near an airport, not too near a big city where there might be demonstrations and security risks. The White House suggested some New Jersey estate.

Gov. Hughes canvassed the latter situation but reported back; "I'm a poor boy and don't know any rich people with big estates."

It was lucky he didn't, because the Russians in the end were highly impressed with the modest surroundings of Glassboro State College, which the Governor finally suggested to the White House.

CLEAR IT WITH THE DOCTOR

The President finally asked Hughes whether he had cleared the meeting with the President of the college, Dr. Thomas E. Robinson. Hughes had not. The President cautioned that this be done.

What the governor had actually done was to tell Dr. Robinson that he wanted a meeting place for a group of New Jersey and Pennsylvania legislators, and that he was considering Glassboro State College in this connection. He gave this as the excuse for asking Robinson whether helicopters could be landed on the college campus, what communications facilities were available, etc. Never did he tell Robinson that the world's two most powerful men were going to descend upon him. Later, Gov. Hughes apologized to Robinson for this phony story, and the two have joked about it.

Meanwhile, as the telephone calls were going back and forth between New Jersey and Washington, newsmen had sensed that the Johnson - Kosygin meeting was definitely in the works, and were clamoring for official confirmation. George Christian, the unruffled White House press secretary, urged the President to give him definite word.

"I've got a hundred newspapermen climbing the wall," he said.

But Gov. Hughes had not called back to report that he had cleared the meeting with Dr. Robinson. Instead, he left his office in Trenton. The President tried to telephone him but got word that the governor was en route home.

There were more demands from newspapermen for a final announcement on the meeting. But LBJ refused until the Governor had called back that he had cleared with Dr. Robinson.

Gov. Hughes was still not available.

Finally, the President himself got on the phone.

"Honey," he told the operator, "The Governor of New Jersey must have a radiotelephone in his car. Get him on the phone and say I want to speak to him."

The message finally reached the Governor of New Jersey. He got out of his car and went to a phone booth in a filling station to call back the President of the United States. If he had called back from the radiophone in his car any ham operator could have picked up the conversation.

The Governor told the President that everything was set, and that he was en route to Glassboro to notify Dr. Robinson, who was still in the dark that the two most powerful men in the world were to be his guests.

It was at this point that the White House announced the meeting.

Immediately the calls began deluging Dr. Robinson. The London Times, Tass, AP, UPI, all phoned the President of Glassboro State College.

Dr. and Mrs. Robinson had been sitting in their living room, having a cup of tea. They were a little stunned at first, but took the news gracefully.

A few minutes later, Gov. Hughes arrived to tell them the whole story.

WAR OVER COMPULSORY ARBITRATION

Washington, D.C.: -- The crash had to come. Finally, a union president, soft-spoken Roy Siemiller, who couldn't be pressured, and a President of the U. S., table-pounding Lyndon Johnson, who wouldn't be pressured, met head on in the rail strike. The stoppage is not the issue. The massive stakes, unseen by the public for the moment, are the issues which will bring collision after collision right through the 1968 election.

What Roy Siemiller, the Machinists' president, is fighting for is big labor's right to strike regardless of what is hit -- ball powder plants, painfully vital jet engines, all systems of transportation, aircraft carriers, nuclear submarines, fuel supplies, critical ammunition, the waterfront, rubber, copper and steel mills, jet fighter plane production as well as railroads.

What Siemiller really is fronting for is American labor's demand for the right to strike without interference from the White House or the Congress -- Vietnam or no Vietnam.

This, President Johnson --- though he's closer to American labor than any other president ever has been --- simply cannot permit. There is the war. There is the national election.

The labor leaders have their constituencies. The President has his.

So, from his command post inside the White House, he told presidential aide Joe Califano and Labor Secretary Willard Wirtz, among others, to stand pat, telephone (as did Wirtz to Siemiller on Sunday) but don't compromise on the strike. He told the machine gun-tongued Sen. Wayne Morse to hold tight. Thus in seven sessions of the Senate-House conferences on the bill, labor's Congressional allies made nine specific efforts to move Morse and the White House. The President did not budge.

Mr. Johnson knew if he did yield to his labor friends, next year would be the most crisis laden presidential campaign-wartime period since the British burned the White House.

The duel with 137,000 members of six shop craft unions led directly by lame duck Machinists vice president Joe Ramsey is just the first skirmish on the lines. In January, the lines (now led by lame duck negotiator Doc Wolfe) must open their contracts with the tough trainmen, the firemen and enginemen, the switchmen and the railway clerks.

Most of them, especially Charles Luna's militant trainmen (largest of the rail unions), would just as lief strike as not for higher wages and new working conditions -- especially for more cash.

Then, six months later, just about the time the Jan. 1st crisis ripens, new contracts expire involving the engineers, conductors, brakemen and four "non-ops" (off train railway unions).

Meanwhile, of course, Walter Reuther will have heated up the industrial front with his assault on the auto corporations. A few months later he will be plunging back into new attacks on the aerospace and aircraft industry. And finally, the self-effacing, laconic leader of the big steel labor, I. W. Abel, will be advancing on the huge steel industry.

What Siemiller and Reuther and Abel want is the unadulterated right to strike without being called in to face the President and a network of his cabinet members, ranging from Dean Rusk, Robert McNamara and Willard Wirtz to the newcomer, Alan Boyd, Secretary of Transportation.

They say, in effect, when the issue of Vietnam is raised -- seize the rail lines, take over the aerospace industry, operate the steel plants, if you're going to have Congress run the labor relations business. Siemiller knew that 40 per cent of the Vietnamese military cargo is carried on rail freight cars. But his argument is "seizure" until the lines share some of their profits.

This, too, will be "Abe" Abel's answer next year. Not too long ago, he told his AFL-CIO Executive Council colleagues that he is sick of being told by the White House that the steelworkers can't strike -- and he told them the United Steelworkers of America will walk out in '68 to win big cash increases. Abel means this. He and his late chief Phil Murray called out some 135,000 steelworkers during the height of World War II.

There's more here than a rail dispute. The President is boxed in. So he has tossed the hot coal to Congress. They don't want to settle every crisis with a new law. So they'll keep tossing it right back to him. They know that the Machinists now have rollcall votes in the Congress on which to base political action in the next national campaign. And the Machinists won't be alone. They'll all punish their enemies -- those who vote for compulsory arbitration -- and reward their friends.

As for the presidency, an intimate of Roy Siemiller said the other day "the machinists and their families and a lot of other labor people simply will stay home on Election Day -- 1968."

And so there was a slight collision. But as the late Al Jolson ad-libbed in an old movie, "you ain't heard nothing yet."

The crises are yet to come.

Stiritz, Bartholomew Take Wedding Vows In Marion

Mr. and Mrs. James H. Bartholomew Jr.

Miss Jeanne Kay Stiritz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T.C. Stiritz, Marion, Ill., became the bride of James H. Bartholomew Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. James H. Bartholomew, 503 Matthews Street, June 24 in the First Methodist church in Marion.

The double-ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Henry Clay Wright before an altar decorated with twin tree candelabra and bouquets of white gladioli and baby's breath. The bridal aisle was covered with a white carpet and lined with white saint bows.

Nuptial music was provided by Mrs. Ruel Bracy, Marion. She accompanied Mrs. J.B. Heyde, York, Pa., who sang "A Wedding Prayer" and "The Lord's Prayer" as the couple knelt at the altar.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She chose a formal length sheath gown of imported organza with fitted bodice, long tapering sleeves and scooped neckline. Appliques of organza flowers adorned the bodice and lower part of the skirt.

The double train flowed from the midback to chapel length and was highlighted with the same appliques as the gown. Her headpiece was a halo of flowers matching those on the gown, and it secured the bouffant veil of silk illusion which was also appliqued wth flowers.

They wore identical A-line chiffon gowns with deep folds of fullness at the back in candy pink. The bodices were fashioned with scooped necklines, empire waistlines and long shirtwaist sleeves.

White daisy-patterned tulle was under the sheer chiffon on the bodice and sleeves. Shoes were tinted to match the dresses. They wore matching bouffant nose veils attached to a single row of pearls and carried cascade bouquets of light pink daisies.

Miss Jan Stiritz, sister of the bride, lighted the alter candles. She wore a white gown fashioned like those of the bridesmaids trimmed in candy pink and featuring a wide pink bow and streamers at the back of the empire waistline. A pink carnation corsage and pink tinted shoes completed her attire.

Attending Bartholomew as best man was John Lacy, Vincennes, Ind., close friend of the groom. Groomsmen were Mike Sherry and Kenneth Davis. Serving as ushers were Larry Worthen and Robert Johnston, Marion, Ill., cousins of the bride, and John Heacox and Ronald Galemore, brother-in-law of the groom.

Men of the wedding party wore black formal tuxedoes and white carnation boutonnieres.

Mrs. Stiritz wore a pink coat dress with matching pink accessories and a pink-throated orchid corsage.

Mrs. Mabel Worthen, the bride's grandmother, and Mrs. Jerome Taylor, close friend of the groom's family, wore carnation corsages with their attire.

RECEPTION

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the church fellowships hall. The table was laid with a white linen tablecloth. The four-tiered wedding cake was surrounded by flowers and topped with pink wedding bells. Glowing white tapers held in silver candelabra flanked either side of the cake. At each end of the table were a silver punch bowl and a silver coffee server.

The reception was catered by Collins' Catering Service of Ridgeway, Ill. Serving at the reception were Miss Cathy Welge, Chester, Ill.; Miss Debbie Shaw, Altamont, Ill.; Miss Carol Brunner, Carbondale, Ill.; and Miss Joyce Thomas, Tuscola, Ill. Miss Marinna Martin, Lawrenceville, Ill., was in charge of the gift table. Presiding at the guest book was Miss Connie Whan, Peoria, Ill. All are college friends of the bride. They wore white carnation corsages accented in pink.

Mr. and Mrs. Bartholomew departed that evening for a wedding trip to Kentucky Lake. The new Mrs. Bartholomew chose for her going away outfit a navy blue and white striped summer knit. The couple is now at home to friends at 207 Greer Ave.

Mrs. Bartholomew is a former student at Southern Illinois University. Both will attend Murray State University in the fall.

REHEARSAL DINNER

Mr. and Mrs. James H. Bartholomew were host and hostess at a rehearsal dinner given June 23 at the Uptowner in Marion, Ill. The dinner was in honor of their son and his fiancee. The table was laid with a white linen tablecloth. The centerpiece, an arrangement of pink and white carnations and baby's breath, was flanked on either side by glowing pink tapers.

SHOWER

The bride was honored with a miscellaneous shower June 19 at the Security National Bank. Hostesses were Mrs. Iona Taylor, Mrs. Hattie Moore, Mrs. Carter Bell, Mrs. Lois Hart, Mrs. Lonnie Reed, Mrs. Ralph McElroy and Mrs. Murl Long.

Before Miss Stiritz opened and displayed her gifts, refreshments of punch, nuts and mints were served. The table was decorated with a large floral bouquet and glowing pink tapers. Behind the table was a large pink heart with the names, "Jeanne and Sonny."

Those attending or sending gifts were Mrs. Lovine Carter, Mrs. Dorothy Springs, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Sims, Mrs. Paul DuSablon and Yvonne, Mrs. Elva Depro, Mr. and Mrs. Johnny Scott and Rusty, Mrs. Henritta Beal, Mr. and Mrs. Gene Johnson and Susan.

Mrs. Nancy Dewitt, Mrs. Opal Briggs, Mrs. Perry Allen and Judy, Mrs. Mary Lee Switala, Miss Eva Newton, Mrs. Ed Schweppe, Mrs. Vina Haynes, Mrs. Ralph Moody, Mrs. Eugene Palmer, Mrs. Mary Townsend, Mrs. Frank Peyton, Mrs. Joe Galemore, Mrs. Thomas Williams, Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Sherry.

Mrs. Vivian Cauthorn and family, Mrs. Birdie Beck, Mrs. Ora Houck, Mrs. Iva Houck, Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Sherry, Mr. and Mrs. Elzie Boardman, Mrs. Clarence Taylor, Mrs. Lela Boardman, Mrs. Lola Jines, Mrs. Lois Fenimore, Mrs. Ted Kelley, Mrs. Floyd Reed, Mrs. Jennie Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Lee, Mrs. Ronald Galemore.

Mrs. Henry Bartholomew, Mrs. T. C. Stiritz, Mrs. Carter Bell, Mrs. Lois Hart, Mr. and Mrs. Lonnie Reed, Mrs. Ralph Moody, Mrs. Murl Long, Mrs. Iona Taylor, Mrs. Hattie Moore, Mrs. Mildred LeSieur.

Salads Capture Sunshine

by Mrs. Mattie E. Aslin
Extension home Economist
University Extension Center

CARUTHERSVILLE -- You're all set to scoop up fresh air and sunshine -- the sunshine of spring vegetable gardens and autumn fruit - laden orchards. In salads you capture the beauty, the vitality and goodness of nature, and you serve it beautifully to your family and guests.

Guides For Successful Salad Making:

1. Use fresh crisp greens. Full flavored fruits.
2. Keep your salad simple.
3. Pick the right dressing to enhance the salad flavors. Pass it in attractive server to spoon on dressing.
4. Be generous when you slice or chunk salad ingredients. This makes your creation more beautiful, more interesting, and reflects Nature's abundance.
5. Chill the plates or bowls. Slide them in refrigeration till ready to use.
6. Serve salad with salad. Chicken salad with raspberry ring.
7. Begin with a salad, serve it as the main dish or the accompaniment or let it be the lovely finish of a meal.
8. Keep trims simple.
9. Summer masterpiece - lush fruit tray.

Tricks to Bring Out the Best in Fruit Salads:

1. Serve salads on chilled plates.
2. For a glamour touch bring salad to the table in a crushed ice jacket (nestle bowl of salad in a larger bowl of crushed ice.) Everything will look, taste twice as cool.
3. Dressings are important
Some built in

TIPS

Use ice to get a molded salad off to a flying start. Dissolve each package fruit flavored gelatin in one cup boiling water; then add 8 to 12 ice cubes and stir constantly 2 to 3 minutes till gelatin begins to thicken. Remove unmelted ice. Let stand 3 to 5 minutes; add fruit. Chill frim.

SUPPER SALAD WHEEL

Cook a variety of vegetables just till done, then pour oil, vinegar style, French or garlic dressing over each; chill about 2 hours, turning vegetables occasionally. Drain.

Suggestions - Peas, green beans, baby limas and carrots arranged in separate dishes on Lazy Susan, with whole marinated cauliflower in center. Top cauliflower with curried chutney dressing.

Arrange tomato and onion slices in one dish, pepper strips and pimiento in another.

Curried Chutney Dressing: Combine 3/4 cup mayonnaise or salad dressing, 2 tablespoons chopped chutney, and 1/2 teaspoon curry powder. Top with pimiento diamonds.

All Favorite Tossed Salad

1. First, put the garlic in! Crush garlic cloves into salt in bowl with pestle. If you prefer, rub garlic clove over bowl, or mince in press then add to dressing.
2. Then break up lettuce by hand. Break lettuce in bit size pieces. For treat, use various greens. Bibb lettuce, curly endive. Add nippy bits of water cress, chives.
3. Last, add dressing, toss. Before serving pour an Italian or French dressing, bottled or home mixed. Add fresh pepper, salt. Put in tomato wedges. Toss.

Ready to serve-green and crisp. Trim with tomato wedges, green peppers. With French bread, a perfect accent to main dish.

Fontana Sisters Surprise Fashion World With Vim

These shrewd stylists would be the first to admit that a sporty young look has not been their image. But suddenly that has been changed with the collaboration of a talented young man who calls himself "Yorn."

Country casuals in tawny tweeds teamed pedal pusher pants with dashing jackets and chunky turtle-collar sweaters. The models showed them at a spanking pace which pepped up the clothes even more.

Cute little "Alice in Wonderland" boots in white patent leather were laced up to the ankle. Stockings were in white rib, with turnover cuffs.

Capes in cream-smooth gabardine swung over calf-length skirts clasped round the waist with wide leather belts. Gold ball-bearing buttons studded patch pockets, cuff tabs and martingale belts.

Funnel-necked dresses were belted well south of the waist with big, shiny oval buckles in the same shade as the dress.

Stiritz, Bartholomew Take Wedding Vows In Marion

Mr. and Mrs. James H. Bartholomew Jr.

Miss Jeanne Kay Stiritz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T.C. Stiritz, Marion, Ill., became the bride of James H. Bartholomew Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. James H. Bartholomew, 503 Matthews Street, June 24 in the First Methodist church in Marion.

The double-ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Henry Clay Wright before an altar decorated with twin tree candelabra and bouquets of white gladioli and baby's breath. The bridal aisle was covered with a white carpet and lined with white saint bows.

Nuptial music was provided by Mrs. Ruel Bracy, Marion. She accompanied Mrs. J.B. Heyde, York, Pa., who sang "A Wedding Prayer" and "The Lord's Prayer" as the couple knelt at the altar.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She chose a formal length sheath gown of imported organza with fitted bodice, long tapering sleeves and scooped neckline. Appliques of organza flowers adorned the bodice and lower part of the skirt.

The double train flowed from the midback to chapel length and was highlighted with the same appliques as the gown. Her headpiece was a halo of flowers matching those on the gown, and it secured the bouffant veil of silk illusion which was also appliqued wth flowers.

They wore identical A-line chiffon gowns with deep folds of fullness at the back in candy pink. The bodices were fashioned with scooped necklines, empire waistlines and long shirtwaist sleeves.

White daisy-patterned tulle was under the sheer chiffon on the bodice and sleeves. Shoes were tinted to match the dresses. They wore matching bouffant nose veils attached to a single row of pearls and carried cascade bouquets of light pink daisies.

Miss Jan Stiritz, sister of the bride, lighted the alter candles. She wore a white gown fashioned like those of the bridesmaids trimmed in candy pink and featuring a wide pink bow and streamers at the back of the empire waistline. A pink carnation corsage and pink tinted shoes completed her attire.

Attending Bartholomew as best man was John Lacy, Vincennes, Ind., close friend of the groom. Groomsmen were Mike Sherry and Kenneth Davis. Serving as ushers were Larry Worthen and Robert Johnston, Marion, Ill., cousins of the bride, and John Heacox and Ronald Galemore, brother-in-law of the groom.

Men of the wedding party wore black formal tuxedoes and white carnation boutonnieres.

Mrs. Stiritz wore a pink coat dress with matching pink accessories and a pink-throated orchid corsage.

Mrs. Mabel Worthen, the bride's grandmother, and Mrs. Jerome Taylor, close friend of the groom's family, wore carnation corsages with their attire.

RECEPTION

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the church fellowships hall. The table was laid with a white linen tablecloth. The four-tiered wedding cake was surrounded by flowers and topped with pink wedding bells. Glowing white tapers held in silver candelabra flanked either side of the cake. At each end of the table were a silver punch bowl and a silver coffee server.

The reception was catered by Collins' Catering Service of Ridgeway, Ill. Serving at the reception were Miss Cathy Welge, Chester, Ill.; Miss Debbie Shaw, Altamont, Ill.; Miss Carol Brunner, Carbondale, Ill.; and Miss Joyce Thomas, Tuscola, Ill. Miss Marinna Martin, Lawrenceville, Ill., was in charge of the gift table. Presiding at the guest book was Miss Connie Whan, Peoria, Ill. All are college friends of the bride. They wore white carnation corsages accented in pink.

Mr. and Mrs. Bartholomew departed that evening for a wedding trip to Kentucky Lake. The new Mrs. Bartholomew chose for her going away outfit a navy blue and white striped summer knit. The couple is now at home to friends at 207 Greer Ave.

Mrs. Bartholomew is a former student at Southern Illinois University. Both will attend Murray State University in the fall.

REHEARSAL DINNER

Mr. and Mrs. James H. Bartholomew were host and hostess at a rehearsal dinner given June 23 at the Uptowner in Marion, Ill. The dinner was in honor of their son and his fiancee. The table was laid with a white linen tablecloth. The centerpiece, an arrangement of pink and white carnations and baby's breath, was flanked on either side by glowing pink tapers.

SHOWER

The bride was honored with a miscellaneous shower June 19 at the Security National Bank. Hostesses were Mrs. Iona Taylor, Mrs. Hattie Moore, Mrs. Carter Bell, Mrs. Lois Hart, Mrs. Lonnie Reed, Mrs. Ralph McElroy and Mrs. Murl Long.

Before Miss Stiritz opened and displayed her gifts, refreshments of punch, nuts and mints were served. The table was decorated with a large floral bouquet and glowing pink tapers. Behind the table was a large pink heart with the names, "Jeanne and Sonny."

Those attending or sending gifts were Mrs. Lovine Carter, Mrs. Dorothy Springs, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Sims, Mrs. Paul DuSablon and Yvonne, Mrs. Elva Depro, Mr. and Mrs. Johnny Scott and Rusty, Mrs. Henritta Beal, Mr. and Mrs. Gene Johnson and Susan.

Mrs. Nancy Dewitt, Mrs. Opal Briggs, Mrs. Perry Allen and Judy, Mrs. Mary Lee Switala, Miss Eva Newton, Mrs. Ed Schweppe, Mrs. Vina Haynes, Mrs. Ralph Moody, Mrs. Eugene Palmer, Mrs. Mary Townsend, Mrs. Frank Peyton, Mrs. Joe Galemore, Mrs. Thomas Williams, Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Sherry.

Mrs. Vivian Cauthorn and family, Mrs. Birdie Beck, Mrs. Ora Houck, Mrs. Iva Houck, Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Sherry, Mr. and Mrs. Elzie Boardman, Mrs. Clarence Taylor, Mrs. Lela Boardman, Mrs. Lola Jines, Mrs. Lois Fenimore, Mrs. Ted Kelley, Mrs. Floyd Reed, Mrs. Jennie Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Lee, Mrs. Ronald Galemore.

Looked Like Faces

A man's face is sometimes called a "mug" in allusion to the small jars used in 17th-century England. Mugs at that time were made to look like the human face in many instances.

Salads Capture Sunshine

by Mrs. Mattie E. Aslin
Extension home Economist
University Extension Center

CARUTHERSVILLE -- You're all set to scoop up fresh air and sunshine -- the sunshine of spring vegetable gardens and autumn fruit - laden orchards. In salads you capture the beauty, the vitality and goodness of nature, and you serve it beautifully to your family and guests.

Guides For Successful Salad Making:

1. Use fresh crisp greens. Full flavored fruits.
2. Keep your salad simple.
3. Pick the right dressing to enhance the salad flavors. Pass it in attractive server to spoon on dressing.
4. Be generous when you slice or chunk salad ingredients. This makes your creation more beautiful, more interesting, and reflects Nature's abundance.
5. Chill the plates or bowls. Slide them in refrigeration till ready to use.
6. Serve salad with salad. Chicken salad with raspberry ring.
7. Begin with a salad, serve it as the main dish or the accompaniment or let it be the lovely finish of a meal.
8. Keep trims simple.
9. Summer masterpiece - lush fruit tray.

Tricks to Bring Out the Best in Fruit Salads:

1. Serve salads on chilled plates.
2. For a glamour touch bring salad to the table in a crushed ice jacket (nestle bowl of salad in a larger bowl of crushed ice.) Everything will look, taste twice as cool.
3. Dressings are important
Some built in

TIPS

Use ice to get a molded salad off to a flying start. Dissolve each package fruit flavored gelatin in one cup boiling water; then add 8 to 12 ice cubes and stir constantly 2 to 3 minutes till gelatin begins to thicken. Remove unmelted ice. Let stand 3 to 5 minutes; add fruit. Chill frim.

SUPPER SALAD WHEEL

Cook a variety of vegetables just till done, then pour oil, vinegar style, French or garlic dressing over each; chill about 2 hours, turning vegetables occasionally. Drain.

Suggestions - Peas, green beans, baby limas and carrots arranged in separate dishes on Lazy Susan, with whole marinated cauliflower in center. Top cauliflower with curried chutney dressing.

Arrange tomato and onion slices in one dish, pepper strips and pimiento in another.

Curried Chutney Dressing: Combine 3/4 cup mayonnaise or salad dressing, 2 tablespoons chopped chutney, and 1/2 teaspoon curry powder. Top with pimiento diamonds.

All Favorite Tossed Salad

1. First, put the garlic in! Crush garlic cloves into salt in bowl with pestle. If you prefer, rub garlic clove over bowl, or mince in press then add to dressing.
2. Then break up lettuce by hand. Break lettuce in bit size pieces. For treat, use various greens. Bibb lettuce, curly endive. Add nippy bits of water cress, chives.
3. Last, add dressing, toss. Before serving pour an Italian or French dressing, bottled or home mixed. Add fresh pepper, salt. Put in tomato wedges. Toss. Ready to serve-green and crisp. Trim with tomato wedges, green peppers. With French bread, a perfect accent to main dish.

His Innovation

Fontana Sisters Surprise Fashion World With Vim

These shrewd stylists would be the first to admit that a sporty young look has not been their image. But suddenly that has been changed with the collaboration of a talented young man who calls himself "Yorn."

Country casuals in tawny tweeds teamed pedal pusher pants with dashing jackets and chunky turtle-collar sweaters. The models showed them at a spanking pace which pepped up the clothes even more.

Cute little "Alice in Wonderland" boots in white patent leather were laced up to the ankle. Stockings were in white rib, with turnover cuffs.

Capes in cream-smooth gabardine swung over calf-length skirts clasped round the waist with wide leather belts. Gold ball-bearing buttons studded patch pockets, cuff tabs and martingale belts.

Funnel-necked dresses were belted well south of the waist with big, shiny oval buckles in the same shade as the dress.

Shepherds' smocks attached to brief pleated skirts gave blousing a boost. The smocks were shirred in honeycomb stitch around the neck and at the dropped waist line.

Sports Corner

By RON JAYNES

This writer understands how . . . or tries to understand how . . . league officials feel when chances for a nationwide or statewide title depend on a scorebook that has been misplaced . . . but how any "proud father" can take it on himself to keep other "proud fathers" from seeing their boy's names in the paper is beyond my conception . . .

In a letter to the editor of the DAILY STANDARD in Tuesday's paper . . . a "proud father". . . wrote that he is probably more responsible than anyone else for the Babe Ruth games not being printed in the paper for the past week.

That statement could not be truer . . . since I (Ron Jaynes) took over the position as sports writer for this paper . . and as far as this writer knows . . . it's been the practice of each of the five leagues in Sikeston to leave the scorebooks at the police station . . . and this was not a policy started by me.

Many people may not know . . . but each reporter has a deadline that his news contribution to the paper must be in . . . and a 9:30 a.m. deadline applies to sports.

What I'm trying to get at is this . . . I report for work at 7 a.m. and have to have every piece of material for that day's paper into the news editor by 9:30 a.m.

For that reason . . . We can't spend all day . . . for we do not have all day to spend . . . in trying to find the Babe Ruth scorebook.

This writer tried . . . and when a telephone call to the scorekeeper failed to produce the book . . . he went to the league commissioner . . . who brought the book into the office . . . The scorekeeper didn't have time to pick up the book and bring it by the office or even leave it at the police station or would he drop by the concession stand at VFW stadium so that this writer could pick it up . . . We were late in getting our news back . . . therefore causing a late paper that day.

And for attending each session of baseball in Sikeston . . . Well, mister . . . there are more than one league in the city and attending each game would almost be impossible . . . and if we singled out just one league . . . and attended its games . . . the others would have a legitimate gripe. . . and demand as much coverage as the other . . . Can you see our point?

During the baseball season . . . this writer is trying to concentrate on the current sports picture and at the same time . . . plan for coming sports seasons.

It's my desire to print the box scores of each game played in the local leagues . . . but as for looking for the books . . . As I said . . . It was the policy when I came here and to the best of my knowledge it still is . . . for the scorebooks to be left at the police station if the game reports are printed in the paper . . .

This writer attended the final game . . . but had no official scorebook to take a box score from and used only notes to write a story . . .

I'm sure that every proud father and mother . . . and there are many in Sikeston . . . with the fine programs for youth in baseball . . . would like to have the best possible coverage of every game played by every league . . . But with only one writer . . . a complete coverage is impossible . . . and since there is more than baseball . . . going on around the area . . . We will have to stay with the present coverage . . .

I know I can't and haven't satisfied everyone with my work . . . but people learn by their mistakes . . .

For the scorebook being lost . . . or misplaced . . . It was recovered at the police station . . . where this writer was instructed to take the books when all the material was gathered. . .

Maybe next season can be a better one . . . for me and for each league in Sikeston. . .

7-Run 7th Fatal To Cards

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Dick Simpson's three-run double was the clincher as Cincy won 7-4 despite back-to-back home runs by Roger Maris and Orlando Cepeda. The defeat cut St. Louis' National League lead over Chicago to one game.

Simpson's shot came in the seven-run seventh inning and sent Cardinal newcomer Jack Lamabe to his fifth loss in five decisions, and second loss with the Cardinals in three days. The double also helped Jim Maloney pick up his eighth victory.

St. Louis starter Steve Carlton had a three-hit, 3-0 lead going into the Reds' seventh. But Tony Perez and Don Pavletich opened with singles and Lee May doubled for the run that chased Carlton from the mound.

Lamabe came in and got one man but walked the next. Simpson then got his hit off the second reliever of the inning, Joe Hoerner.

Maris lashed number seven as he led off the fifth and Cepeda followed with number 14. St. Louis got a run in the fourth on a Mike Shannon single and another in the ninth when Tim McCarver singled.

The Cardinals scheduled Larry Jaster to pitch tonight. Cincinnati went with young Gary Nolan who has beaten the Cardinals twice.

Relief specialist Phil Regan, who earned the "Vulture" tag last season by swooping out of the Los Angeles bullpen for 14 late-inning victories, beat Philadelphia 2-1 Tuesday night in his first start in nearly two years.

"I have no illusion. I still like the bullpen," Regan said after working seven strong innings in his National League debut as a starter. "But this start did me good. It helped me straighten myself out."

It also prevented the Dodgers from folding up after they dropped the twi-night doubleheader opener 5-0 to Rick Wise, who scattered four hits for his first major league shutout.

Regan's clutch performance — with an assist from Ron Perranoski in the last two innings — kept the eighty-place Dodgers one game in front of the New York Mets, who trimmed Houston 4-2 and sent the Astros into the cellar.

The Pittsburgh Pirates gave new Manager Danny Murtaugh a winning sendoff with an 8-6 verdict over San Francisco before the Giants came back to take the doubleheader nightcap 3-2. The Chicago Cubs beat Atlanta 9-3 and moved within one game of first-place St. Louis, beaten by Cincinnati 7-4.

Manager Walter Alston gave Regan his first starting assignment in 96 appearances for the Dodgers after rookie Bill Singer came up with a sore arm. The 30-year-old right-hander, who had been struggling along with a 2-4 record, responded by holding the Phils to five hits and striking out six before giving way to Perranoski.

Len Gabrielson provided the margin of victory with a two-run homer in the second inning.

Regan last started for Detroit in September 1965. The Tigers traded him to Los Angeles that winter and he came through with a 14-1 mark in 65 relief stints last year.

New York's Hal Reniff came out of the bullpen in the sixth inning and blanked Houston on two hits the rest of the way, protecting the Mets' two-run edge and extending his scoreless string to 18 innings. He has not yielded a run in nine appearances since the Mets acquired him from the Yankees three weeks ago.

Bud Harrelson stole home in the fifth inning, snapping a 2-2 tie, after Ed Mathews' two-run homer had pulled the Astros even in the top of the fifth.

Murtaugh, who managed Pittsburgh from 1957 through 1964, replaced Harry Walker Tuesday morning, then watched the Pirates erupt for six runs against Juan Marichal in the fifth inning of the first game, with Donn Clendenon's two-run double and a two-run homer by Gene Alley the big blows.

The Giants gained a split when Willie McCovey greeted reliever Billy O'Dell with a two-run homer in the seventh, erasing Pittsburgh's 2-1 lead.

Don Kessinger drove in five runs with two doubles and two singles and right-hander Ferguson Jenkins boosted his pitching mark to 12-7 as the Cubs rolled to their fourth straight victory and snapped Atlanta's four-game winning string.

Golf Championship

Entries Needed

Al Chandler, tournament director, said that any Missouri junior resident between the ages of 14 and 18 is eligible to enter and his entry and $15.00 entry fee should be forwarded immediately to Mr. Don Faurot, Missouri Junior Boys Tournament, 20 Rothwell Gym, Columbia, Missouri as soon as possible. The tournament is limited to the first 200 entries and will be held on the University Golf Course August 5 and 6.

Accommodations for overnight stay in Columbia will be handled at the University dormitories. Included in the entry information should be the boy's age and date of birth and his 18-hole handicap.

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Mike DeLozier of Sedalia, playing the course for the first time, fired a 68 Tuesday to lead sectional qualifying for the USGA Junior golf championships Aug. 1-5 at Oklahoma City.

The lanky 17-year-old shot 34-34 on the 6,229-yard, par 71 layout at Meadowbrook Country Club. He had six birdies, three bogeys and nine pars. Only two spots were open for the USGA nationals. Jack Davis of Kansas City shot a 75 to win the other berth, edging Scott Bess of Columbia, Mo., by two strokes.

WATERVILLE, Maine (AP) — Richard J. McGee, 36, was named head football coach at Colby College Tuesday. He succeeds John Simpson, who will become director of the college's summer and special programs.

12th Annual Society Horse Show Set July 29

The 12th annual society horse show sponsored by the SEMO Shrine Horse Patrol will be held at the rodeo grounds July 29.

Melvin Dace, captain of the patrol, reports that more than 150 entrants are expected.

Nine classes will be judged.

Proceeds from the show will go to help offse. expenses members of the patrol have when traveling to area parades and to the Shrine Hospital in St. Louis.

The organization was formed by the state Shrine's Moolah Temple in St. Louis.

Each member takes care of his own expenses when traveling. Captain Dace and the Patrol have their own barn where each horse is kept and each member attends a practice session every Tuesday night.

Pirates Fire Walker

All it took was two pitches by Billy O'Dell that ruined a good pitching job by Tommie Sisk and turned a Pirate doubleheader sweep against San Francisco into a split Tuesday night.

Willie McCovey slammed O'Dell's second pitch for a two-run homer and a 3-2 Giant victory after Pittsburgh won the first game 8-6.

That marked the fourth time in eight games since the All-Star break that baseball's best hitting team got good pitching and lost.

Walker pinpointed it as he unwound in the living room of his suburban home Tuesday afternoon before Murtaugh even put on a uniform.

"Just one more hit a day, that's all it would have taken," he said. "But that's baseball."

Murtaugh, who stepped down in 1964 after managing the Pirates for 7½ seasons, was talked out of retirement by General Manager Joe Brown only 19 days after Brown said Walker would be his manager for a "long time."

That "long time" ended Monday when, Brown said, he decided Walker would have to go if the Pirates were to escape from the second division.

Tuesday morning Brown told Walker he was fired and Murtaugh was announced as interim manager at a hastily called afternoon news conference. The coaching staff remained intact.

The 49-year-old Murtaugh, who had been a special administrative assistant to Brown, guided Pittsburgh to its only world championship in the past 40 years in 1960. His over-all record was 605 wins and 548 defeats.

At the end of the 1964 season, he said he wouldn't manage again because of a weak stomach, saying managing put too much of a strain on his health.

Walker's record for 2½ years was 224-184. His 1965 and 1966 clubs both placed third.

Chuvalo-Frazier Tangle In 12-Round Match Tonight

NEW YORK (AP) — "I'll be out there smoking. That means working every minute, every second. I know nobody ever knocked him down but there always is the first time," said Joe Frazier, unbeaten No. 2 heavyweight contender.

"It's do or die. I know I've got to win. I'm in the prime of life and I have the style to beat him. I think I can knock him out," said George Chuvalo, oft-beaten Canadian champion.

Frazier, winner of 16 straight, is a 2½-1 favorite over Chuvalo, who went 15 rounds with Cassius Clay a year ago, when they meet tonight in a 12-round match at Madison Square Garden.

Because both are aggressive fighters who like to walk in and punch, a crowd of 15,000 is expected to pay over $100,000 to see the bout which will be televised nationally, with New York blacked out, on a special Garden-RKO General network. Ring time is 10 p.m. EDT.

Both fighters are passing up the World Boxing Association's eight-man tournament to determine a successor to Clay who was stripped of his title by the WBA and the New York State Athletic Commission. However, the winner will be in a good shouting position, especially if it is Frazier, the 23-year-old former Olympic champion from Philadelphia.

"If George wins, he'll claim the world championship in New York," said Irv Ungerman, Chuvalo's manager. However, there was no indication that New York's commission was thinking that way.

"No, I won't claim anything if I win," said Frazier. There's quite a few men in there — Karl Mildenberger, Floyd Patterson, Ernie Terrell and quite a few. As soon as they settle what they're trying to prove (all the men he mentioned are in the WBA tournament) I'll be waiting, just like Old Man River."

Sports Corner

By RON JAYNES

This writer understands how . . . or tries to understand how . . . league officials feel when chances for a nationwide or statewide title depend on a scorebook that has been misplaced . . . but how any "proud father" can take it on himself to keep other "proud fathers" from seeing their boy's names in the paper is beyond my conception . . .

In a letter to the editor of the DAILY STANDARD in Tuesday's paper . . . a "proud father" . . . wrote that he is probably more responsible than anyone else for the Babe Ruth games not being printed in the paper for the past week.

That statement could not be truer . . . since I (Ron Jaynes) took over the position as sports writer for this paper . . and as far as this writer knows . . . it's been the practice of each of the five leagues in Sikeston to leave the scorebooks at the police station . . . and this was not a policy started by me.

Many people may not know . . . but each reporter has a deadline that his news contribution to the paper must be in . . . and a 9:30 a.m. deadline applies to sports.

What I'm trying to get at is this . . . I report for work at 7 a.m. and have to have every piece of material for that day's paper into the news editor by 9:30 a.m.

For that reason . . . We can't spend all day . . . for we do not have all day to spend . . . in trying to find the Babe Ruth scorebook.

This writer tried . . . and when a telephone call to the scorekeeper failed to produce the book . . . he went to the league commissioner . . . who brought the book into the office . . . The scorekeeper didn't have time to pick up the book and bring it by the office or even leave it at the police station or would he drop by the concession stand at VFW stadium so that this writer could pick it up . . . We were late in getting our news back . . . therefore causing a late paper that day.

And for attending each session of baseball in Sikeston . . . Well, mister . . . there are more than one league in the city and attending each game would almost be impossible . . . and if we singled out just one league . . . and attended its games . . . the others would have a legitimate gripe . . . and demand as much coverage as the other . . . Can you see our point?

During the baseball season . . . this writer is trying to concentrate on the current sports picture and at the same time . . . plan for coming sports seasons.

It's my desire to print the box scores of each game played in the local leagues . . . but as for looking for the books . . . As I said . . . It was the policy when I came here and to the best of my knowledge it still is . . . for the scorebooks to be left at the police station if the game reports are printed in the paper . . .

This writer attended the final game . . . but had no official scorebook to take a box score from and used only notes to write a story . . .

I'm sure that every proud father and mother . . . and there are many in Sikeston . . . with the fine programs for youth in baseball . . . would like to have the best possible coverage of every game played by every league . . . But with only one writer . . . a complete coverage is impossible . . . and since there is more than baseball . . . going on around the area . . . We will have to stay with the present coverage . . .

I know I can't and haven't satisfied everyone with my work . . . but people learn by their mistakes . . .

For the scorebook being lost . . . or misplaced . . . It was recovered at the police station . . . where this writer was instructed to take the books when all the material was gathered. . .

Maybe next season can be a better one . . . for me and for each league in Sikeston. . .

7-Run 7th Fatal To Cards

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Dick Simpson's three-run double was the clincher as Cincy won 7-4 despite back-to-back home runs by Roger Maris and Orlando Cepeda. The defeat cut St. Louis' National League lead over Chicago to one game.

Simpson's shot came in the seven-run seventh inning and sent Cardinal newcomer Jack Lamabe to his fifth loss in five decisions, and second loss with the Cardinals in three days. The double also helped Jim Maloney pick up his eighth victory.

St. Louis starter Steve Carlton had a three-hit, 3-0 lead going into the Reds' seventh. But Tony Perez and Don Pavletich opened with singles and Lee May doubled for the run that chased Carlton from the mound.

Lamabe came in and got one man but walked the next. Simpson then got his hit off the second reliever of the inning, Joe Hoerner.

Maris lashed number seven as he led off the fifth and Cepeda followed with number 14. St. Louis got a run in the fourth on a Mike Shannon single and another in the ninth when Tim McCarver singled.

The Cardinals scheduled Larry Jaster to pitch tonight. Cincinnati went with young Gary Nolan who has beaten the Cardinals twice.

Relief specialist Phil Regan, who earned the "Vulture" tag last season by swooping out of the Los Angeles bullpen for 14 late-inning victories, beat Philadelphia 2-1 Tuesday night in his first start in nearly two years.

"I have no illusion. I still like the bullpen," Regan said after working seven strong innings in his National League debut as a starter. "But this start did me good. It helped me straighten myself out."

It also prevented the Dodgers from folding up after they dropped the twi-night doubleheader opener 5-0 to Rick Wise, who scattered four hits for his first major league shutout.

Regan's clutch performance — with an assist from Ron Perranoski in the last two innings — kept the eighty-place Dodgers one game in front of the New York Mets, who trimmed Houston 4-2 and sent the Astros into the cellar.

The Pittsburgh Pirates gave new Manager Danny Murtaugh a winning sendoff with an 8-6 verdict over San Francisco before the Giants came back to take the doubleheader nightcap 3-2. The Chicago Cubs beat Atlanta 9-3 and moved within one game of first-place St. Louis, beaten by Cincinnati 7-4.

Manager Walter Alston gave Regan his first starting assignment in 96 appearances for the Dodgers after rookie Bill Singer came up with a sore arm. The 30-year-old right-hander, who had been struggling along with a 2-4 record, responded by holding the Phils to five hits and striking out six before giving way to Perranoski.

Len Gabrielson provided the margin of victory with a two-run homer in the second inning.

Regan last started for Detroit in September 1965. The Tigers traded him to Los Angeles that winter and he came through with a 14-1 mark in 65 relief stints last year.

New York's Hal Reniff came out of the bullpen in the sixth inning and blanked Houston on two hits the rest of the way, protecting the Mets' two-run edge and extending his scoreless string to 18 innings. He has not yielded a run in nine appearances since the Mets acquired him from the Yankees three weeks ago.

Bud Harrelson stole home in the fifth inning, snapping a 2-2 tie, after Ed Mathews' two-run homer had pulled the Astros even in the top of the fifth.

Murtaugh, who managed Pittsburgh from 1957 through 1964, replaced Harry Walker Tuesday morning, then watched the Pirates erupt for six runs against Juan Marichal in the fifth inning of the first game, with Donn Clendenon's two-run double and a two-run homer by Gene Alley the big blows.

The Giants gained a split when Willie McCovey greeted reliever Billy O'Dell with a two-run homer in the seventh, erasing Pittsburgh's 2-1 lead.

Don Kessinger drove in five runs with two doubles and two singles and right-hander Ferguson Jenkins boosted his pitching mark to 12-7 as the Cubs rolled to their fourth straight victory and snapped Atlanta's four-game winning string.

The lanky 17-year-old shot 34-34 on the 6,229-yard, par 71 layout at Meadowbrook Country Club. He had six birdies, three bogeys and nine pars. Only two spots were open for the USGA nationals. Jack Davis of Kansas City shot a 75 to win the other berth, edging Scott Bess of Columbia, Mo., by two strokes.

WATERVILLE, Maine (AP) — Richard J. McGee, 36, was named head football coach at Colby College Tuesday. He succeeds John Simpson, who will become director of the college's summer and special programs.

Pirates Fire Walker

All it took was two pitches by Billy O'Dell that ruined a good pitching job by Tommie Sisk and turned a Pirate doubleheader sweep against San Francisco into a split Tuesday night.

Willie McCovey slammed O'Dell's second pitch for a two-run homer and a 3-2 Giant victory after Pittsburgh won the first game 8-6.

That marked the fourth time in eight games since the All-Star break that baseball's best hitting team got good pitching and lost.

Walker pinpointed it as he unwound in the living room of his suburban home Tuesday afternoon before Murtaugh even put on a uniform.

"Just one more hit a day, that's all it would have taken," he said. "But that's baseball."

Murtaugh, who stepped down in 1964 after managing the Pirates for 7½ seasons, was talked out of retirement by General Manager Joe Brown only 19 days after Brown said Walker would be his manager for a "long time."

That "long time" ended Monday when, Brown said, he decided Walker would have to go if the Pirates were to escape from the second division.

Tuesday morning Brown told Walker he was fired and Murtaugh was announced as interim manager at a hastily called afternoon news conference. The coaching staff remained intact.

The 49-year-old Murtaugh, who had been a special administrative assistant to Brown, guided Pittsburgh to its only world championship in the past 40 years in 1960. His over-all record was 605 wins and 548 defeats.

At the end of the 1964 season, he said he wouldn't manage again because of a weak stomach, saying managing put too much of a strain on his health.

Walker's record for 2½ years was 224-184. His 1965 and 1966 clubs both placed third.

Chuvalo-Frazier Tangle In 12-Round Match Tonight

NEW YORK (AP) — "I'll be out there smoking. That means working every minute, every second. I know nobody ever knocked him down but there always is the first time," said Joe Frazier, unbeaten No. 2 heavyweight contender.

"It's do or die. I know I've got to win. I'm in the prime of life and I have the style to beat him. I think I can knock him out," said George Chuvalo, oft-beaten Canadian champion.

Frazier, winner of 16 straight, is a 2½-1 favorite over Chuvalo, who went 15 rounds with Cassius Clay a year ago, when they meet tonight in a 12-round match at Madison Square Garden.

Because both are aggressive fighters who like to walk in and punch, a crowd of 15,000 is expected to pay over $100,000 to see the bout which will be televised nationally, with New York blacked out, on a special Garden-RKO General network. Ring time is 10 p.m. EDT.

Both fighters are passing up the World Boxing Association's eight-man tournament to determine a successor to Clay who was stripped of his title by the WBA and the New York State Athletic Commission. However, the winner will be in a good shouting position, especially if it is Frazier, the 23-year-old former Olympic champion from Philadelphia.

"If George wins, he'll claim the world championship in New York," said Irv Ungerman, Chuvalo's manager. However, there was no indication that New York's commission was thinking that way.

"No, I won't claim anything if I win," said Frazier. There's quite a few men in there — Karl Mildenberger, Floyd Patterson, Ernie Terrell and quite a few. As soon as they settle what they're trying to prove (all the men he mentioned are in the WBA tournament) I'll be waiting, just like Old Man River."

ODE TO A SONIC BOOM

How are you fixed for plaster
Now that we're in this jet age
Does it seem to crack much faster
Now that airplanes are the rage

Is your ceiling now much lower
And the roof now showing bare
So the Elements may enter
From the monsters in the air

Do you find your eardrums ring
Do you jump at every sound
Do your nerves feel all a zing
Is this sickness going around

Lets go back and take a look
And forget these sonic booms
This has probably even shook
The Wright brothers in their tombs

Had they known how their invention
Was to SHAKE our world today
I feel sure they'd never mentioned
The name of Kitty Hawk anyway

So I throw out this small thought
Let us hope it will be used
By Emily Post who has taught
Us with her book of "dos"

That we won't be frowned upon
Or considered impolite
If our hats indoors we don
So our ceilings won't alight
On our heads so soft and bare
And our scalps which are so weak
And for safety we'd best wear
A nightcap even when we sleep.

State Park Visits Climb

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Reports for the first six months of this year show an increase in visitors to Missouri state parks of 486,462.

The total so far is over four million visitors in spite of the unusual spring and summer weather, Joseph Jaeger, park director, reported.

The five leading parks are Table Rock, Thousand Hills, Roaring River, Knob Noster and Meramec.

Overnight tent and trailer camping also increased with Meramec Park being the most popular, followed by the Lake of the Ozarks, Bennett Spring, Roaring River and Table Rock.

Jaeger said attendance at state parks this year may reach 11 or 12 million compared with 10 million a year ago.

Destroyer Named for First Officer Killed

SAN PEDRO, Calif. (AP) — The Navy has named a destroyer after its first officer killed in the Vietnam War.

The lieutenant was killed March 16, 1965 when Viet Cong ambushed a Vietnamese naval unit he was advising.

WHAT ABOUT THE $48,000?

Senator Long of Missouri recently issued a news release which contained the following pronouncement: "Democracy will flourish in this country only so long as the people have reasonable knowledge of what their government is doing at all times and at all levels."

In view of these noble sentiments, I wonder if it would be unreasonable to ask the Senator why he has stalled so long in giving a complete explanation of the $48,000 in "referral fees" received by him from Morris Shenker?

When an impromptu exam was sprung by our English professor, one of my classmates wrote a note on his paper explaining that, rather than bluff, he would like to confess that he had not read the assignment. "DIRTY FORTNIGHT"

AUCKLAND, N.Z. (AP) — Kawerau had an anti-litter campaign which misfired.

Kawerau, population 5768, is a proud little town in the timber milling and pulp and paper-making country in the center of New Zealand's North Island.

To impress upon shoppers just how much rubbish they were scattering along the streets the borough council decided to hold a "dirty fortnight". In that time the council staff would empty the litter baskets but would not sweep the streets.

Mayor Roy Stoneham expected that by the end of the two weeks the streets would be knee deep in rubbish and shoppers would have learned their lesson.

But it did NOT work out that way. When the fortnight ended the streets were cleaner than at the beginning. Right from the start people made a point of using the litter baskets. And if the odd person sometimes forgot, there always seemed to be someone else right behind who did the job for him.

By the time the big cleanup day planned as the climax to the fortnight came around there was hardly a thing to clean up. But a ceremonial hosing and sweeping of the streets went ahead just the same.

Although Kawerau admits its "dirty fortnight" was a clean flop, there is no doubt that its people got the message.

One angel to another; "Quick! Here comes a Jet. Let's sneak in and see a movie for nothing."

MRS. MAX MICHAEL of Charleston prepares to serve garlic grits. Looking on is her son, Ronnie, 12. The silver serving dish was given to the Michaels by the Methodist Young Folks of which they were counselors.

Mrs. Max Michael, Charleston Homemaker, Wife, Mother

Editor's Note: This is the 46th in a series of articles about the home life of Sikeston area families.

BY RUTH DILLENDER

She is secretary of the Order of the Eastern Star.

Her husband, Max, is a postal clerk. The couple has lived in Charleston 25 years. They have two sons, Max, Jr., 22, who is serving in the army, stationed at Lackland Air Force Base, Texas, and Ronnie, 12, a seventh grade student. Ronnie is a Boy Scout and a member of the band.

Mrs. Michael is a member of a Parent-Teacher association and the Lusk extension club.

The family attends the Methodist church where Mrs. Michael has helped with the kindergarten. The Michaels have been counselors for the Methoidst Young Folks.

Mrs. Michael likes to make tote bags. She collects spoons. She has several spoons that came from the 1915 World's Fair in San Francisco. Other spoons in her collection were Michael's grandmothers.

Other treasurers in the Michael home are a pocket watch that belonged to her great-grandfather. The watch was plowed under in a field by her great-grandfather and found one year later. The watch is still in working condition.

The family has a set of salt and pepper shakers which belonged to Mrs. Michael's maternal grandfather, a table from Michael's family, a vase from the Isle of Crete, a Dresdan doll wearing a glass dress and small kerosene lamps that belonged to his aunt.

Mrs. Michael is proud of a gavel that was made from the big oak tree cut down near East Prairie now the site of Big Oak State Park. The gavel was given to her when she was worthy matron of the Eastern Star chapter.

They have an old, well cared for piano and bench, a heirloom washing set and an olf flower vase that was given to Mrs. Michael by a friend.

They prize a praying hands plaque that was given to the family when it was the Methodist family of the year.

ANGEL PIE

4 eggs
1 cup whipping cream
Juice of 1 lemon and grated rind, optional
1 teaspoon cream tartar
1-1/2 cups sugar

Separate eggs and beat whites until frothy. Add cream tartar and beat until stiff. Add one cup sugar gradually. Butter pie pan and pile in egg whites. Form crust and bake slowly 60 minutes. Start oven at 250 degrees and later turn to 300 degrees.

Beat egg yolks, and add lemon juice, rind and 1/2 cup sugar. Beat until light and cook until stiff. When mixture cools, whip cream and add sugar to taste. Place layer of cream in pie shell, then lemon sauce and then top with more cream.

GARLIC GRITS

1 cup hominy grits
4 cups boiling water
1 teaspoon salt

Cook about five minutes. Remove from stove and add one roll garlic cheese, one stick butter or oleo and let melt.

Add two eggs beaten and 3/4 cup milk. Pour into greased casserole and bake about one hour 350-degree oven.

WATERMELON PICKLES

2 pounds watermellon rind
4 cups sugar
2 cups white vinegar
2 cups water
1 lemon thinly sliced
2 tablespoons cinnamon bark
1 tablespoon whole cloves

Trim dark green and pink parts off rind. Cut rind in 1-inch cubes. Soak overnight in salt water, 1/4 cup coarse salt to 1 quart water. Drain, rinse and cover with cold water. Cook until just tender and drain.

Combine sugar, vinegar, water, lemon and spices, tied in a bag. Simmer 10 mununtes. Remove spice bag. Add rind and simmer until clear. Fill hot sterilized jars to 1/2 inch from top. Seal.

FLOATING COBBLER

Mix:
2 cups fruit
1/2 cup sugar or 1 cup, depending on fruit
1 tablespoon flour or cornstarch

Bring to boil.
1/2 cup flour
1/2 cup milk
1 teaspoon baking power
1/2 cup sugar
1/4 teaspoon salt

Mix above ingredients well.

Mix 3/4 stick butter in baking dish. Pour batter over butter and fruit over batter. Bake about 20 minutes in 325 degree oven.

SPICED GRAPE SALAD

1 package lime Jello
1 cup boiling water
Juice of small can of spiced grapes.
1/2 cup broken pecans
1/4 cup of shredded cabbage
1/4 cup of chopped celery
Small can crushed pineapple

After preparing the mixture, add the spiced grapes. These may be cut in half.

DROP DOUGHNUTS
(Golden Puffs)

Sift together into mixing bowl: 2 cups sifted flour, 1/4 cup sugar, 3 teaspoons baking powder and 1 teaspoon nutmeg.

Make hole in middle and drop in: 1/4 cup Wesson oil, 3/4 cup milk and one unbeaten egg.

Mix well and drop by teaspoon into hot shortening.

Use electric skillet with melted shortening about an inch deep and set at 400 degrees. Whole doughnuts are golden brown, remove from pan, place on paper towel for a few minutes. While still hot, shake lightly in bag with powdered sugar or sprinkle with sugar.

APPLESAUCE - FRUIT CAKE

1/2 cup butter
1 cup unsweetened applesauce
2 cups flour
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1/2 cup chopped nuts
1 cup raisins
1 cup sugar
1 teaspoon soda
1/2 teasoon cloves
1 cup candied fruit

Cream butter and gradually add sugar and applesauce. Sift flour with soda and spices; add to creamed mixture with nuts, candied fruit and raisins. Pour into greased and floured cake pan. Bake for 40 minutes at 350 degrees. Cool, Wrap cake in brandy soaked cheesecloth and foil. Makes two one-pound cakes.

Drew Pearson Special

DREW PEARSON SAYS: RR compulsory arbitration was adopted after heated senate-house argument; at one point it reached profanity; labor's best friends voted against RR labor.

WASHINGTON -- The events which led to the enactment of the first national compulsory arbitration law in the history of the United States are important. This was a law which labor fought tooth and nail to prevent, but which some labor unions by going on strike unwittingly helped to pass.

It was passed after three weeks of closed - door debate between senate and house conferees, so intense that it sometimes got to the point of profanity.

Toward the climax of the long hassle, young Rep. John Dingell of Detroit, a Democratic champion of labor, cursed in referring to the position of Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., leader of the senate conferees.

"I know you're all excited, John, but Senator Morse is doing what he thinks best," he said.

One of the issues which sent off Dingell's temper beyond the boiling point was the fact that the house had avoided taking a roll call on the issue of compulsory arbitration while the senate had taken roll call after roll call on every phase of the bill.

The vote was overwhelming -- (70 to 15) -- for discontinuing the procrastinating postponements in the railroad dispute and bringing mediation to finality. The house, on the other hand, had taken only a teller vote, by which members file past the clerk and he records them, not by name, but by totals. This gives congressmen the advantage of not putting themselves on record regarding a ticklish question involving labor unions.

"On the final vote," confided Rep. Dan Kuykendall, D-Tenn., "We didn't even have a teller vote. We ran for the doors."

"Either we have government by lobby or by law," argued Sen. Morse, referring to labor's tremendous pressure to defeat the railway bill.

He has asked the house conferees if, in view of their original failure to go on record with a roll - call vote, they would not submit the three - week deadlock back to a full vote of the house. But chairman Staggers declined.

On Thursday at 8 p.m., at the last meeting of the conferees, Sen. Randolph again asked his fellow West Virginian to take the issue back to the house.

"In view of the notice from the unions that they are going out on strike over the weekend, won't the house take another vote on this?" asked Randolph.

ADAMANT REP. STAGGERS

Again Chairman Staggers answered no.

Staggers was adamant to the very end. On the morning after the nation woke up to find all railway transportation at a standstill, the house and senate conferees voted to accept the Morse - administration bill for limited compulsory arbitration -- with one exception. That exception was Chairman Staggers. Even intensely pro - labor Sen. Ralph Yarborough, D-Tex., voted to take the arbitration bill out of conference. But not the congressman from West Virginia. He was the only conferee who voted no. This seemed hard to understand, because there are 40,000 coal miners in West Virginia who would have been out of work in about 48 hours with the railroads unable to haul coal.

The men who were essentially responsible for putting across the limited compulsory arbitration bill were three long - time friends of labor but who argued that labor's right to strike against the public must be limited.

They were:

1. PRESIDENT JOHNSON, who as a young Texas congressman voted for the first minimum wage law in history, when almost every other southern congressman voted no.

2. SEN. WAYNE MORSE, former chairman of the war labor board, who has been labor's staunchest spokesman in the senate but who is adamant that labor cannot disrupt the nation in time of war. He helped draft the current railroad bill which provides for mandatory acceptance of a mediation board's findings even if the terms are unacceptable.

3. SEN. JENNINGS RANDOLPH, who as a young West Virginia congressman voted for the Wagner labor act and the fair labor practices act, the Magna Carta of labor, but who maintains that the right to strike cannot be put ahead of the welfare of the nation. Randolph was the only Democrat supporting Morse among the senate conferees.

Morse and Johnson disagree vigorously on the Vietnam war, but Morse contends that since we are in the war our system of transportation cannot be tied up.

Miss Aline Carrington of Flint, Mich., is spending three weeks visiting Mr. and Mrs. Bill Gurley and other relatives and friends in the Morehouse-Sikeston area. Saturday visitors at the Gurley home were Mrs. Floyd Berry, children and mother-in-law of Chaffee and Central City, Ky.

The Morehouse Kiwanis went on an overnight fishing trip in place of the regular meeting Thursday. They were guests at the Hendon cottage near Lake Wappapello. Those going were Gene Hendon, Charles Rauch, Jack Taylor, Otis Daniels, Melvin Clark, Thad Ryan, Estle Rogers, Doyle Miller and Arvil Christopher, all of Morehouse, Roger Ayers of Sikeston, Mr. and Mrs. G.D. Body of Essex and Terry Christopher of Midland, Tex.

MORE TO DRINK

Rising with them are the total number of retail beer dealers and retail liquor dealers in the nation, according to an analysis of U.S. Treasury data by Commerce Clearing House.

Beer, after 1966, showed an increase of more than 1.7 million barrels over the 1965 level of 108 million barrels.

Wine production shot up by more than 37 million gallons to 234.5 million gallons.

Whiskey production rose by more than 22.2 million gallons to a 1966 level of 140 million gallons.

Dealerships reflected an increase of more than 1,500 from the previous year, with 141,526 beer dealerships in operation during the 1966 period. There were 282,222 retail liquor dealers, an increase of 11,243 from the 1965 period.

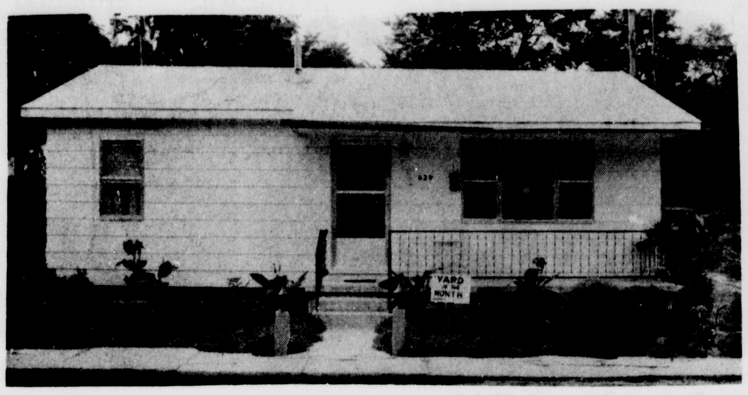
WARD TWO yard of the month winner in New Madrid was Mrs. Thelma Funk, 741 Scott St.



NEW MADRID yard of the month winner in ward one was Mrs. Pearl Arnold, 629 Mott St.

Yard Winners Named At New Madrid

By Don Roberts

NEW MADRID - A yard of the month contest to encourage residents to take more pride in their homes began this month.

Three yards, one in each ward were selected as winners.

Mrs. Pearl Arnold, 629 Mott, received the award in ward one. Honorable mentions went to Clarence Gentry, 922 Mill, and Larry H. Rost, 330 Kingshighway, and Mrs. Bess Welshans, 511 Chruch.

In ward two, Mrs. Thelma Funk, 741 Scott, received the award. Honorable mention went to Mrs. E. H. Riley, 941 Davis, O. W. Lewis, 1101 Scott and Sam L. Hunter Jr. 951 Scott.

In ward three, N. J. Nowell, 171 South Matthews Lane received the award with R. H. Bierschwal, 180 South Matthews Lane, Miss Mavis Bellon, 430 Missouri and H.C. Ransburgh, 120 South Matthews Lane honorable mention winners.

Mrs. Carolyn Phillips, chairman of the project, said the yards were judged on shrubbery and arrangement, how well trimmed the yard is and flowers and their arrangement. Mrs. Phillips said yards were not judged on size or cost.

Three judges from each ward will select the best yard in each ward the first week in each month.

The yard of the month program derived from the Missouri Community Betterment Program. Mrs. Harriett Reeder is beautification chairman for the program.

Aviation Leader Says Cape Misled on Project

CAPE GIRARDEAU - An aviation leader has charged in a speech entered in the Congressional Record that Cape Girardeau was "bamboozled and brainwashed" in connection with the airport improvement project now underway.

The speaker was J.B. Hartranft Jr., president of the Aircraft Owners and Pilots Association, who addressed the annual conference of the American Association of Airport Executives at Louisville, Ky.

He said Cape Girardeau was an example of what he considers a poor pattern of spending of federal airport money.

He noted that no jet service is available to the community although residents were led to believe that such service would be provided.

Cape Girardeau is building a new 6,500-foot runway to cross its 4,000-foot strip. The longer runway would accommodate the larger aircraft which Ozark Air Lines, the commercial air carrier serving the city, has said it will use here when the project is completed.

The federal grant of up to $891,000 for the project was based on the prospect of the DC-9 service, which would require the 6,500-foot length.

Hartranft said the commercial airlines and political expediency are dictating the dispersal of federal airport construction funds to the detriment of general aviation's needs.

He contended that expenditures on airports are out of balance with the economic merits of the projects.

Citing the Cape Girardeau project, he used figures showing that the cost over 10 years would come to about $50 per airline passenger boarding at Cape Girardeau while the average airline ticket bought here costs $12 to $14.

Park Museum To Be Moved

PARKVILLE, Mo. (AP) — Park House, once the home of a frontier newspaper and a lookout for steamboats carrying supplies during the Civil War, will be moved from its perch of some 120 years high above the Missouri River.

It has to give way to a new highway, Missouri 9, which will cut across the river bluff and take a shortcut through the hills to link up with U. S. 71 North.

The house, now a museum of Park College history, will be moved about 1,000 feet northeast but will still overlook the river.

Colonel George S. Park, cofounder of the college, had the foundation of the house laid in 1834. A native of Vermont, Park came to northwest Missouri after serving under Sam Houston in the Texas revolt.

He platted Parkville in 1844 and in 1853 started a newspaper, the Industrial Luminary.

His paper had exposed vote fraud in the Kansas territory by Missouri's pro-slavery forces, and a mob stormed the hill toward the house.

Cool Trend Will Continue in Area

PORTAGEVILLE - A cool trend that developed during the first weeks of July remains a feature of weather anticipated over the Bootheel for the next 30 days. Temperatures are expected to average well below normal from the middle of July through mid-August. At the same time, indications point to more than normal rainfall.

Circulation patterns will favor southward penetration of cool air into the Bootheel as high pressure centers from Canada follow a path through the upper Mississippi Valley to the southern Great Lakes. Cold fronts will reach southern Missouri more frequently than usual. Both day and night temperatures will be affected when cotton would benefit from warm and humid conditions. This will impose less of a heat stress on corn and soybeans.

High pressure is not likely to be well enough established over the southern states to block the flow of moisture and warmth from the Gulf region. Conditions should be favorable for showers and thunderstorms developing ahead of cold fronts to provide several substantial rain periods. Any one of these could deliver the normal moisture total to scattered sections of the Bootheel, as happened during activity that preceded a cool flow on July 12. Unofficial totals up to 3.9 inches were reported during that storm, concentrated generally in a band from the Malden area to the vicinity of Portageville and Marston.

The normal rainfall for the Bootheel as a whole from mid-July through mid-August is 3.27 inches. Normals for individual cities are:

Cape Girardeau 3.29 inches; Dexter 3.33 inches; Morehouse 3.00 inches; Parma 3.38 inches; Sikeston 3.02 inches; Caruthersville 3.30 inches; Doniphan 3.67 inches; New Madrid 3.44 inches; and Poplar Bluff 3.23 inches.

Short term averages for other cities:

Advance 3.11 inches; Bloomfield 3.25 inches; Clearwater Dam 3.18 inches; Kennett 3.29 inches; Portageville 3.32 inches; Qulin 2.76 inches; Bernie 3.13 inches; Charleston 2.91 inches; Deering 3.32 inches; Malden 3.18 inches; Puxico 3.00 inches and Wapapello Dam 3.31.

The long period record shows the following average precipitation for the period mid-July through mid-August when heavy rainfall has occurred:

Poplar Bluff 6.64 inches; Sikeston 6.95 inches and Caruthersville 5.99 inches.

In general, the heavy precipitation category has yielded at least 4.43 to 4.73 inches.

The major portion of the Bootheel received somewhat less than normal rainfall during the first half of July. Exceptions are the middle sections which collected heavy amounts on the 12th plus parts of Mississippi county in the path of thunderstorms that dumped nearly 2 inches at Charleston July 10-11. Soil moisture ranges from excess in heavy rain areas where water still stands in some low spots, to adequate in other sections. Rainfall through the middle of August will reduce need for irrigation except possibly on sandier soils. That will depend upon the interval between showers.

Soil moisture measurements at the University of Missouri experiment field near Hayward have been consistently well above field capacity this season on a sandy loam field planted in cotton. More advanced crops such as corn are taking greater amounts of moisture from soil reserves than the cotton which had not yet blossomed by the 15th of July.

While cooler than normal temperatures tend to reduce activity of disease organisms, moisture conditions are likely to prolong the need for attention to spray schedules in peach and melon crops. Forecasts will give advance warning of shower periods to help farmers avoid wash off and to resume control programs following wetting.

Weed and grass control in cotton and soybeans may require chopping crews in the field later than usual. Farmers will want to obtain advice from their county extension directors regarding need for additional herbicide applications at layby.

Welfare Medical Director Named

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Dr. H. O. Loyd of Columbia has been appointed medical director of the state Division of Welfare, Welfare Director Proctor N. Carter announced Tuesday.

Loyd formerly practiced medicine in Jefferson City and Sacramento, Calif., and more recently was associate professor of medicine at the University of Missouri Medical Center.

He will work on development of the Medicare program recently passed by the legislature.

Memorable Date

Sept. 17, 1862, is a memorable date, being the bloodiest single day of the Civil War. More men were killed and wounded — 23,110 — at Antietam that day than on any other day of the war.

Lottery Sales Far Below Goal

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Sales of New York State lottery tickets in June — the first month of its operation — totaled only $6,447,605, compared with the $30-million goal that had been set.

State Tax Commissioner Joseph H. Murphy in announcing the official figures, contended, however, that the first month should not be regarded as a barometer because there had been "insufficient opportunity" to develop the full potential for sales, distribution and staff.

The law establishing the lottery — for educational purposes — was approved by the voters last November and went into effect April 1, but sales were put off to allow time for organization.

Republican Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, who did not endorse the lottery plan but went along with the voters and signed the implementing legislation, budgeted net proceeds of $45 million from it for state aid to education, and additional money for local school districts has been planned.

Drawings for the winners begin this week, with prizes ranging from $150 to $100,000 based on horse races previously run.

James C. Kirkpatrick

Dinner to Salute Kirkpatrick

JEFFERSON CITY -- Secretary of State James C. Kirkpatrick will be honored at a testimonial dinner Sept. 8.

Ben F. Weir, publisher of the Nevada Daily Mail, and D. Jeff Lance, St. Louis attorney and former U. S. district attorney, will serve as co-chairmen for the $25 a plate affair.

The dinner was proposed by Secretary Kirkpatrick's newspaper friends, Weir said. Strong support has come from attorneys who appreciate the improved service resulting from modernization of the corporations office, Lance said.

James W. Brown Jr., publisher of the Harrisonville Democrat-Missourian, will be treasurer of the dinner committee.

During Kirkpatrick's first two years as secretary of state he has set up two new departments, records management and archives and the uniform commercial code. The records program has resulted in an estimated savings of more than a half million dollars, in time, space and money.

The recent legislature created a commission urged by Secretary Kirkpatrick to study, revise and recodify the state's archaic election laws.

By Leonard F. Hand

PORTAGEVILLE -- Automobile headlights cost almost nothing to operate and can prevent serious accidents during daylight hours, as well as light the way at night. Most drivers use their lights in the foggy dimness near dawn. How many think to turn them on during hazy days we frequently experience during summer and autumn?

When air becomes stable and stagnant over a broad area, reduce visibility naturally follows. Dust particles and imperfectly burned wastes from industrial plants and home heating systems clog the air. No vertical currents develop to remove them from the ground layer in which we live. People sensitive to respiratory irritation are first to sense the change.

This condition promotes a serious hazard for travilers on our narrow, high - speed highways. Shades of almost any color now used to decorate our cars blend easily into the gray-blue background of haze. A driver pulling out to pass a slow moving vehicle may not see an oncoming automobile bearing down upon him out of the murky haze ahead.

It costs only a little effort to reach forward and turn on your lights when weather factors reduce the sharpness of your vision. Full headlamps penetrate the haze much better than parking lights and are reassuring sight to your fellow traveler who is trying to decide whether he has a safe margin for passing. Drivers should be seen and not hurt.

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The milkman is slowly becoming a thing of the past in the Pittsburgh area.

Why? The Greater Pittsburgh Dairy Industry Association says more and more people are buying their milk from supermarkets and because milkmen must "take terrific ear beatings from housewives."

PORTAGEVILLE --Automobile headlights cost almost nothing to operate and can prevent serious accidents during daylight hours, as well as light the way at night. Most drivers use their lights in the foggy dimness near dawn. How many think to turn them on during hazy days we frequently experience during summer and autumn?

When air becomes stable and stagnant over a broad area, reduce visibility naturally follows. Dust particles and imperfectly burned wastes from industrial plants and home heating systems clog the air. No vertical currents develop to remove them from the ground layer in which we live. People sensitive to respiratory irritation are first to sense the change.

This condition promotes a serious hazard for travilers on our narrow, high - speed highways. Shades of almost any color now used to decorate our cars blend easily into the gray-blue background of haze. A driver pulling out to pass a slow moving vehicle may not see an oncoming automobile bearing down upon him out of the murky haze ahead.

It costs only a little effort to reach forward and turn on your lights when weather factors reduce the sharpness of your vision. Full headlamps penetrate the haze much better than parking lights and are reassuring sight to your fellow traveler who is trying to decide whether he has a safe margin for passing. Drivers should be seen and not hurt.

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The milkman is slowly becoming a thing of the past in the Pittsburgh area.

Why? The Greater Pittsburgh Dairy Industry Association says more and more people are buying their milk from supermarkets and because milkmen must "take terrific ear beatings from housewives."

POTATOES ARE ESPECIALLY PLENTIFUL

For the second time this year, the U. S. Department of Agriculture is calling consumer attention to an unusually large supply of potatoes.

Although not on USDA's current Plentiful Foods List, potatoes are expected to be particularly plentiful through the first three weeks of July. Prices, too, should continue reasonable, although this will depend somewhat on the quality and condition of the potatoes.

In greatest abundance are long, white spuds from California, according to USDA's Consumer and Marketing Service. However, long, red potatoes and round, whites from southeastern states also are readily available.

Furthermore, Midwest states -- particularly Minnesota and Michigan -- are expected to begin sending potatoes to market by mid-July.

GENIE IN THE KITCHEN -

If you're scouring the coffee pot some day and all of a sudden a genie appears and grants you only one wish to help with kitchen ills --what would it be?

One wish will be enough -- if you wish for lemons!

Lemons are an answer to your search for that "certain something" to put new spark in cooked vegetables, or a new garnish, a low-cal salad dressing, or a substitute seasoning.

This little kitchen factotum can do even more. Lemon is a mild bleaching agent, useful in keeping white vegetables white. For example, a little lemon can be used in the waterwhen cooking potatoes to retain the natural coloring. Celery dipped in "lemonated" water is guaranteed against browning.

Lemon juice removes stains from hands and materials. It's a hair rinse after shampoo, and a cleanser for copper, brass and aluminum.

This versatile wonder acts as a bleach for linen or muslin, can be used as an alkalizing agent with water, or even as a laxative with bicarbonate. It's a beauty treatment, an astringent, a remedy for colds when served hot, some people say.

Is all this too good to believe? Can only one fruit do all this? Not really . . . limes are reasonably priced right now, and supplies are plentiful, points out the Consumer and Marketing Service of the U.S. Department of Agriculture. So buy some of these colorful handfuls and work up a little magic of your own.

CALLS FOR CONTROLS

Washington, D. C., . . . Pointing to "a rising tide of mob terrorism and guerilla warfare", The Southern States Industrial Council called for enactment by Congress of S. 674 and other measures to reduce crime and lawlessness throughout the nation.

Speaking for the Council before the Senate Judiciary Sub-Committee on Criminal Laws and Procedure on Monday, Executive Vice President Thurman Sensing said S. 674 by Senator John L. McClellan (D., Ark.) was needed to counteract the effects of the U. S. Supreme Court decision in the Miranda case and strengthen the hand of law enforcement officials. The McClellan bill provides that voluntary confessions to crimes are admissable as evidence in court, with the trial judge having responsibility to determine whether they are truly voluntary.

By ruling out admissability of most confessions, Sensing said, the Supreme Court "virtually assured the freedom of murderers, for example, who kill without witnesses being present and who do not leave fingerprints or other evidence."

In urging passage of S. 674 as one of the major steps needed in a crusade against crime, Sensing said: "We now face in this country an almost intolerable situation. General crime and a new type of street lawlessness and rioting are sharply on the increase; the criminal and the rioter in the street are becoming more brazen and more contemptuous of the law and the lives and property of fellow citizens. Yet at the very time our laws need tightening, they are being stretched and bent and almost totally emasculated."

The Southern States Industrial Council executive declared before the Senate Sub-Committee that today's policeman is "almost defenseless, bedeviled by those who commit crimes ranging from murder to petty theft on the one side, and those who disregard the law and take to the streets on the other."

"The peaceful, private citizen is, apparently, the law's forgotten man," Sensing said.

The Southern States Industrial Council, headquartered in Nashville, Tenn., is comprised of some 2,400 industrial and business concerns, mostly in a 16-state area from Maryland to Texas. Its officers and directors include many of the top business leaders in those states, and in addition the Council has directors-at-large scattered across the country from Portland, Ore., to New York City.

STOLEN IN PITTSBURGH

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Thieves stole cash and property valued at $3,364,595 last year in Pittsburgh, according to the city's police service division.

Pastor Favors Presbyterian Church Union

By BARBARA LACY

Although he attended the General Church, U.S., the Rev. Lindy Cannon, pastor of the Hunter Memorial Presbyterian Church, returned to Sikeston with a new awareness of his responsibility to the "Church of Jesus Christ in Sikeston."

He attended the annual congress of ministers and laymen, the governing force of the church which met this year from June 11-17 in Bristol, Tenn., as an observer; next year he will return as a voting member. But even from the sidelines he caught the spirit of a new era in Christianity, which is glowing in many denominations of church unity.

"That is why this was felt to be the most important assembly in the history of the church, he said. Can you imagine what the churches could do if they had a united front? It would be an exciting experience for everyone.

"We can already see an example of this in Sikeston. The Mustard Seed Coffee House is a good example of people working together as Christians. You'd see a great many more things happen if we could all sit down together more often." he continued emphatically. "It's a shame that more of our churches aren't involved in joint efforts to serve the children and adults in our community.

The Mustard Seed is a coffee house for high school students having church support with meetings Tuesday and Thursday nights.

There were three areas of discussion at Bristol on church union, the Mr. Rev. Cannon explained. "Our church voted on entering into or continuing explorative talks with the Reformed Church of America, a northern Dutch Presbyterian church; the Consultation on Church Union involving the Methodist, Episcopal, and Disciples of Christ churches among others; and the largest branch of the Presbyterian Church USA.

"They voted 405 to 16 to continue talks with the Reformed Church and we expect a union of these two churches around 1970.

"What's involved? They have the same form of government as we do, representative; the main difference is in background. The Reformed church is from Holland, we're from Scotland. Although they emphasis liturgy a little more than we do, they are no more liberal or conservative than we are.

"Our delegates were more divided on the issue involving merging with major denominations. After a half a day of strong emotional debate they decided to continue participation in the Consultation on Church Union by a vote of 255 to 184.

"I'm all in favor of this. We have a rich heritage to share with each other. Personally, I feel the church is moving backwards which doesn't want to discuss union with other churches.

No one knows what "union" really means as there are no actual plans for union now. That's what they're discussing. Perhaps we'd keep our own labels but provide a united front on major issues.

"The main problems seem to be among the clergy. They don't always agree on the status of other clergy. Another problem is what form of church government to sanction; Episcopal, representative or pure democracy.

"As you can see, it's not so much a question of theology as it is administrative details although there could be some problems over the sacraments.

"I was disappointed with the assemblies discussion on third vote, on continuing talks on union with the Presbyterian Church USA. That was a tragic moment for Missouri Presbyterians."

"There are two branches of the Presbyterian Church in Missouri, the one at Dexter and the one in Sikeston are in different branches, which divided during the Civil War and they need each other, they need to work together to survive. But because of the conservative elements in our church, mostly in the deep south, I don't feel union will take place for many years. In my opinion this was a step backward.

"It may seem incongruous but this same assembly voted overwhelmingly to establish talks with the Roman Catholic church for information on key issues of today.

"Civil disobedience was also discussed and the church voted to support the right of the individual to disobey as long as he felt he was right. It was emphasized that this was not supporting disobedience for disobedience sake, but disobedience against the wrongs of society. It did not approve the activities of any civil rights group. That wasn't the purpose. The statement emphasized the individuals responsibility; he must know the rules. Disobedience is only right as long as it carries on the ministry of Christ. Each individual must be aware of what Christ is calling him to do.

"While affirming loyalty to the United States government, the assembly adopted a paper which raised questions about the war in Vietnam. The paper stated that the church is "deeply perplexed and anguished" by the war. Cannon says, "I really believe that statements says very little about the problem of Vietnam.

The assembly came out with these statements because people want to know where the church stands. Churches seem to be afraid of taking a stand on most issues, probably for several reasons, loss of members and money among them.

Some churches are speaking out. And, from the conference I could see our church moving forward like a mighty turtle.

What bothers me most is Christians' lack of compassion for other Christians. We let regional ideals stand between us. But, by the grace of God, causes things to happen, and I believe that in spite of people, God's church is growing.

Legislative Pay Hike Beginning Date in Doubt

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Comptroller John C. Vaughn said Tuesday he plans to ask the attorney general whether legislators can start collecting their pay increase Oct. 13 or whether they must wait until their new terms in 1969.

They also appropriated $525,000 in the final catch-all appropriation bill to start paying the increase.

A legal question was raised about the appropriation, since the constitution says an elected official cannot collect a pay increase during his current term.

But Sen. J. F. Patterson, D. Caruthersville, said a previous attorney general's opinon held that legislators were entitled to immediate payments when they raised their salaries to $4,800.

He said the money was included in the omnibus bill in case that opinion stands up. If it does not, the money would revert to the general revenue fund.

THE Outlook for Business

Austin T. Cushman, Director
Sears, Roebuck and Co.

In judging the outlook for retail business, let us take a brief look at recent trends and the current situation. As the months passed in 1966, it became increasingly apparent that the boom in retail sales was slowing down. The slackening in consumer appetites for goods has continued well into the first half of 1967. At this point, it appears that total retail business in the first six months was only 2 per cent higher than in the first half of 1966, a rather scant improvement. The decline in automobile sales was a major factor. It is reported that unit sales of domestic makes sank 13 per cent below year-ago sales in the first five months of this year. Another factor is the surprisingly small margin of gain in food store sales. This sector has enjoyed a relatively consistent rate of expansion even in periods of transition from fat to lean years.

The increased restraint in consumer appetites for goods has also been reflected in the sales results of general merchandise retailers. Markets have continued to expand for some big-ticket items: dryers, air conditioners, and color television sets, for example; but a softening in demand for certain staple major appliances, such as ranges, washers, and refrigerators, has been a partially offsetting influence in the durable goods lines. The new fabrics and fashions are still propelling soft goods sales upward although here, too, the pace has eased off. It now looks like general merchandise sales will average close to 5 per cent higher this spring than last spring, which would confirm last December's prediction.

There is reason to believe that the conservative buying behavior of consumers thus far in 1967 is only a temporary phenomenon. Consumer income has continued to show quite substantial gains, with more people at work, little unemployment, and even larger pay increases than last year. Consumers have been saving more and borrowing and spending less, particularly for items usually purchased on credit. Some types of spending, notably services, are stll advancing strongly. Past patterns of changes in consumer buying attitudes suggest an early return to a more normal spending-saving relationship. This gives us one reason to be optimistic.

An added and even stronger reason for optimism is that the general economic outlook is favorable. Recovery in home building, the strong growth in spending by all levels of government, and the needs of a growing and increasingly affluent population for goods and services will more than offset the dampening effects of the business inventory correction now in process. What this implies is that a larger number of persons will be drawing pay checks in the months ahead, and it is safe to predict their pay checks will be higher on average. In short, consumer purchasing power can be expected to continue to grow at a fairly substantial rate.

Under the conditions I have described, I believe that retail business in the next six months will exceed last year's level by about 5 per cent. Although I do not foresee a strong resurgence of demand for automobiles and big-ticket household durables this year, sales of these items should have even more reason to be optimistic about the sales outlook for the second half of 1967. Keeping my fingers crossed about international developments in the months ahead, I will even venture to predict an excellent Christmas season.

POLICY DISCORD IN THE RANKS

WASHINGTON, D. C., -- The president of the National Right to Work Committee said today that the results of a nationwide poll of union members "completely repudiate the AFL-CIO hierarchy's demand for congressional repeal of Section 14(b) of the Taft-Hartley Act."

Duke Cadwallader, himself a dues-paying member for more than 25 years and a founder of the Right to Work organization, cited widespread press reports relating to a secret poll sponsored by the AFL-CIO. Its findings reportedly disclosed that the rank and file membership disagrees with top union officials on the issue of compulsory union membership and many other legislative questions.

(Right to Work laws now in effect in 19 states prohibit the practice of compelling workers to pay union dues under threat of discharge. Section 14(b) authorizes the states to legislate against forced unionism, and sustained campaigns for additional Right to Work laws have recently been launched in several states with the assistance of the National Committee.)

Referring to the findings of the AFL-CIO poll, Cadwallader said, "This revelation verifies the arguments of members of Congress who insist that repeal of Section 14(b) is favored only by labor union professionals. It also vindicates the position taken by Minority Leader Everett M. Dirksen and his bipartisan Senate coalition during the 14(b) battles of 1965 and 1966.

"The rank and file's rejection of the compulsory union shop is borne out also by the increasing number of union members who are actively supporting the expanding Right to Work movement.

"The AFL - CIO's own poll shows that its top officials have been flagrantly guilty of misrepresenting the sentiments of the dues-paying membership. There are no visible signs indicating that the federation's present leadership is prepared to reflect the true will of the rank and file.

"The passage of several more state Right to Work laws will enable union members to exercise some control over their officers."

Girl Fights Brave Battle With Cancer

By HARRY HOFFMAN
The Joplin News Herald

JOPLIN, Mo. (AP) — When Nora Jane Hicks, 8, gained three-fourths of a pound last week, her mother, Mrs. Willard Hicks, called it "the greatest news in little Jane's long fight for her life."

So significant was the slight gain in weight and the fact the girl's blood count remained nearly steady during the week, that doctor's at Children's Mercy Hospital in Kansas City decided to let Jane return to her home in Joplin for a short period.

In Joplin, many are familiar with the girl's struggle against abdominal cancer, bone cancer, and a tumor. Her mother, noting Jane's first gain in weight in six months — in which she steadily dropped from 85 to about 45 pounds — quoted the doctors as saying the girl "has such spirit and will to live, it's amazing the fight she is making to defeat the disease."

The girl first entered the Kansas City hospital in December for exploratory surgery. At the time, doctors reported her life expectancy to be only a few weeks. They had discovered a tumor the size of a grapefruit.

She has been hospitalized twice for long periods — from December to February, and from May to June 30. Last week she returned to the hospital for two days.

She returned there last Friday for a checkup and then was brought home.

Her mother said doctors told her the cancer Jane has is normally found in adults. A new type drug is being supplied to Children's Mercy Hospital by other research centers for use in combating the cancer in her left abdomen, Mrs. Hicks said.

The girl's hospitalization and continuing treatment have proven crippling to the limited Hicks income. Her average monthly drug bill is $150, and while Jane is in the hospital, it costs her mother about $70 each week to stay near her.

Monthly disability checks from the government— the only family income— amount to $423. Nearly half is for the nursing home expenses.

Business and civic organizations in Joplin have launched fund-raising drives to assist the family. Early in the year the Joplin Exchange Club collected $1,500.

On July 7 the Joplin Globe Publishing Co. initiated the "Jane Hicks Fund," which netted nearly $300 the first two days.

A number of civic groups are planning benefits and a dance.

Other Joplinites, inspired by the girl's courage, have provided her with a portable stereo, records, books, and toys. Also joining in the small city's drive are church groups, city police, and firemen.

At this point, it appears that total retail business in the first six months was only 2 per cent higher than in the first half of 1966, a rather scant improvement. The decline in automobile sales was a major factor. It is reported that unit sales of domestic makes sank 13 per cent below year-ago sales in the first five months of this year. Another factor is the surprisingly small margin of gain in food store sales. This sector has enjoyed a relatively consistent rate of expansion even in periods of transition from fat to lean years.

The increased restraint in consumer appetites for goods has also been reflected in the sales results of general merchandise retailers. Markets have continued to expand for some big-ticket items; dryers, air conditioners, and color television sets, for example; but a softening in demand for certain staple major appliances, such as ranges, washers, and refrigerators, has been a partially offsetting influence in the durable goods lines. The new fabrics and fashions are still propelling soft goods sales upward although here, too, the pace has eased off. It now looks like general merchandise sales will average close to 5 per cent higher this spring than last spring, which would confirm last December's prediction.

There is reason to believe that the conservative buying behavior of consumers thus far in 1967 is only a temporary phenomenon. Consumer income has continued to show quite substantial gains, with more people at work, little unemployment, and even larger pay increases than last year. Consumers have been saving more and borrowing and spending less, particularly for items usually purchased on credit. Some types of spending, notably services, are still advancing strongly. Past patterns of changes in consumer buying attitudes suggest an early return to a more normal spending-saving relationship. This gives us one reason to be optimistic.

An added and even stronger reason for optimism is that the general economic outlook is favorable. Recovery in home building, the strong growth in spending by all levels of government, and the needs of a growing and increasingly affluent population for goods and services will more than offset the dampening effects of the business inventory correction now in process. What this implies is that a larger number of persons will be drawing pay checks in the months ahead, and it is safe to predict their pay checks will be higher on average. In short, consumer purchasing power can be expected to continue to grow at a fairly substantial rate.

Under the conditions I have described, I believe that retail business in the next six months will exceed last year's level by about 5 per cent. Although I do not foresee a strong resurgence of demand for automobiles and big-ticket household durables this year, sales of these items should have even more reason to be optimistic about the sales outlook for the second half of 1967. Keeping my fingers crossed about international developments in the months ahead, I will even venture to predict an excellent Christmas season.

POLICY DISCORD IN THE RANKS

WASHINGTON, D. C., -- The president of the National Right to Work Committee said today that the results of a nationwide poll of union members "completely repudiate the AFL-CIO hierarchy's demand for congressional repeal of Section 14(b) of the Taft-Hartley Act."

Duke Cadwallader, himself a dues-paying member for more than 25 years and a founder of the Right to Work organization, cited widespread press reports relating to a secret poll sponsored by the AFL-CIO. Its findings reportedly disclosed that the rank and file membership disagrees with top union officials on the issue of compulsory union membership and many other legislative questions.

(Right to Work laws now in effect in 19 states prohibit the practice of compelling workers to pay union dues under threat of discharge. Section 14(b) authorizes the states to legislate against forced unionism, and sustained campaigns for additional Right to Work laws have recently been launched in several states with the assistance of the National Committee.)

Referring to the findings of the AFL-CIO poll, Cadwallader said, "This revelation verifies the arguments of members of Congress who insist that repeal of Section 14(b) is favored only by labor union professionals. It also vindicates the position taken by Minority Leader Everett M. Dirksen and his bipartisan Senate coalition during the 14(b) battles of 1965 and 1966.

"The rank and file's rejection of the compulsory union shop is borne out also by the increasing number of union members who are actively supporting the expanding Right to Work movement.

"The AFL - CIO's own poll shows that its top officials have been flagrantly guilty of misrepresenting the sentiments of the dues-paying membership. There are no visible signs indicating that the federation's present leadership is prepared to reflect the true will of the rank and file.

"The passage of several more state Right to Work laws will enable union members to exercise some control over their officers."

Girl Fights Brave Battle With Cancer

By HARRY HOFFMAN
The Joplin News Herald

JOPLIN, Mo. (AP) — When Nora Jane Hicks, 8, gained three-fourths of a pound last week, her mother, Mrs. Willard Hicks, called it "the greatest news in little Jane's long fight for her life."

So significant was the slight gain in weight and the fact the girl's blood count remained nearly steady during the week, that doctor's at Children's Mercy Hospital in Kansas City decided to let Jane return to her home in Joplin for a short period.

In Joplin, many are familiar with the girl's struggle against abdominal cancer, bone cancer, and a tumor. Her mother, noting Jane's first gain in weight in six months — in which she steadily dropped from 85 to about 45 pounds — quoted the doctors as saying the girl "has such spirit and will to live, it's amazing the fight she is making to defeat the disease."

The girl first entered the Kansas City hospital in December for exploratory surgery. At the time, doctors reported her life expectancy to be only a few weeks. They had discovered a tumor the size of a grapefruit.

She has been hospitalized twice for long periods — from December to February, and from May to June 30. Last week she returned to the hospital for two days.

She returned there last Friday for a checkup and then was brought home.

Her mother said doctors told her the cancer Jane has is normally found in adults. A new type drug is being supplied to Children's Mercy Hospital by other research centers for use in combating the cancer in her left abdomen, Mrs. Hicks said.

The girl's hospitalization and continuing treatment have proven crippling to the limited Hicks income. Her average monthly drug bill is $150, and while Jane is in the hospital, it costs her mother about $70 each week to stay near her.

Monthly disability checks from the government— the only family income— amount to $423. Nearly half is for the nursing home expenses.

Business and civic organizations in Joplin have launched fund-raising drives to assist the family. Early in the year the Joplin Exchange Club collected $1,500.

On July 7 the Joplin Globe Publishing Co. initiated the "Jane Hicks Fund," which netted nearly $300 the first two days.

A number of civic groups are planning benefits and a dance.

Other Joplinites, inspired by the girl's courage, have provided her with a portable stereo, records, books, and toys. Also joining in the small city's drive are church groups, city police, and firemen.

Rusty Water Blamed On Break in Line

By Leo Schade

MATTHEWS -- Residents living in the south portion of this city are concerned about the city's water supply.

A water main has broken. This is blamed by residents for colored water in their homes. Two breaks on one street have been found by neighbors.

Water mains more than seven or eight years old are said to be corroded and filled with rust, and have left a deposit in bathroom fixtures of a rust color.

Mayor Harold Burch has called council meetings in a futile effort to correct the condition.

Several families have had to bring in water for drinking and other uses.

Oran Farmer Dies Monday

ORAN - Orrin R. Shaffer, a farmer, who died at his home Monday, will be buried in the Guardian Angel Catholic cemetery after services in the church at 9 a.m. Thursday.

Shaffer, 48, was born Aug. 18, 1918, in Campbell, a son of Mr. and Mrs. James Shaffer. On Oct. 4, 1941, Shaffer married Rita Mier.

He was a member of the Guardian Angel Catholic Church and Knights of Columbus, Oran Council.

Rosaries will be recited at 7:30 p.m. and 8 p.m. Wednesday at the Earl J. Smith Funeral Home. The Rev. Robert Landewee will officiate at the rites Thursday.

Surviving Mr. Shaffer are his widow; his father, James Shaffer of Oran; a son, Bewain Shaffer; two daughters, Mrs. Gene Hanselman, Oran, and Carol Shaffer, of the home, and two sisters, Mrs. David Law, St. Louis, and Mrs. Nelda Hanks, also of Oran.

"There's no possibility of survivors," he said.

Witnesses said the small plane, a Cessna 310, which has two engines, exploded immediately after the collision. The airliner, one witness said, "Continued on in flight as if nothing had happened. Then, all of a sudden, it blew up too."

The airliner crashed near a boy's summer camp. Several boys were playing volleyball a short distance away. None of them was injured.

A spokesman at Piedmont Airlines headquarters in Winston-Salem said the airliner was Flight 22, which left Atlanta at 10:40 a.m. bound for Asheville-Hendersonville Airport, Roanoke, Va., and then to Washington. It was due in the nation's capital at 12:57 p.m.

A resident of the crash area, K.C. Smart, saw the collision. He said the light plane burst into flames and went down immediately after the collision. The airliner continued on in flight briefly, then blew up.

A Piedmont spokesman said the airliner carried 73 passengers and a crew of five.

Another witness, C.C. Collins, said he was mowing his lawn when he heard an explosion.

"There was a blast in the air and then the pieces started falling," he said. "I don't know whether the motor blew up, but there was a terrible amount of smoke."

Collins said he heard another explosion after the airliner fell.

Henderson County Sheriff J.F. Kilpatrick said every available piece of rescue equipment and every off-duty and reserve officer had been sent to the scene. The State Highway Patrol ordered its entire area force to report for duty.

New Grocery Being Built

Workers began laying concrete blocks today for a second Quick Shop grocery in Sikeston. It will be located on the east side of South Main, south of Reiss Dairy.

The small, modern grocery stores specialize in fast service, and are designed to handle short orders, Ratledge said.

A spokesman at Piedmont Airlines headquarters in Winston-Salem said the airliner was Flight 22, which left Atlanta at 10:40 a.m. bound for Asheville-Hendersonville Airport, Roanoke, Va., and then to Washington. It was due in the nation's capital at 12:57 p.m.

A resident of the crash area, K.C. Smart, saw the collision. He said the light plane burst into flames and went down immediately after the collision. The airliner continued on in flight briefly, then blew up.

A Piedmont spokesman said the airliner carried 73 passengers and a crew of five.

Another witness, C.C. Collins, said he was mowing his lawn when he heard an explosion.

"There was a blast in the air and then the pieces started falling," he said. "I don't know whether the motor blew up, but there was a terrible amount of smoke."

Collins said he heard another explosion after the airliner fell.

Henderson County Sheriff J.F. Kilpatrick said every available piece of rescue equipment and every off-duty and reserve officer had been sent to the scene. The State Highway Patrol ordered its entire area force to report for duty.

New Grocery Being Built

Workers began laying concrete blocks today for a second Quick Shop grocery in Sikeston. It will be located on the east side of South Main, south of Reiss Dairy.

The small, modern grocery stores specialize in fast service, and are designed to handle short orders, Ratledge said.

Hayden Rites At Advance

ADVANCE -- Services were held Wednesday at 2 p.m. at the Morgan Funeral Home in Advance by the Rev. Louis Gardner for Mrs. Rosa A. Hayden, 76, of East St. Louis, Ill., a former resident of Sturdivant.

Mrs. Hayden was born June 12, 1891, in Fairfield, Ill., daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Phelps. She was married in December, 1910, to John C. Cooper, who preceded her in death in 1936.

In 1948, she married John T. Hayden, who died in 1962.

She is survived by three daughters, Mrs. James Myers, St. Louis, Mrs. Wilburn Walker, Albuquerque, and Mrs. James Gowen, East St. Louis.

Also surviving are two sons, John R. and Raymond Cooper, East St. Louis; a brother, Fred Phelps; a sister, Mrs. Ralph Kerns, Advance; 13 grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren.

Burial was in the Rock Point cemetery near Advance.

Elections Go On

Elections of a U.S. president cannot be disposed with, even in time of war. The Constitution requires that a president shall hold office "during the term of four years."

If You Were the Judge

Personal Services Pact Has Earthly Base

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

Karen always got carried away with anything in which she became involved. For example, when she decided to take dancing lessons, she signed up for no less than 10,000 hours of private tutoring.

Before she could take the first lesson, however, she was again carried away, literally this time. She died. Immediately, the executor of her estate demanded the return of the money Karen had paid for the unused lessons.

"It's not my fault she died," responded the proprietor of the dancing school. "Since I'm ready, willing and able to give her the lessons, even through a medium, I don't have to pay back a penny!"

The dispute ended up in court where the executor demanded the return of the money.

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you permit the proprietor of the school to keep the money of an angel?

This is how the judge ruled: The money had to be paid back. The judge held that legal contracts are generally binding upon people and their estates; that courts will not become involved in the wisdom or folly of provisions in such contracts.

But, the judge added, a contract for personalized services is predicted on the ability of one person to give and the other party to receive such services. If that's not possible, the contract may be cancelled.

(Based upon a 1965 Louisiana Court of Appeals Decision)

We witnessed an interesting game of ball on the McMullin Park a few days ago. It consisted of three boys and a bird dog. One of the boys was pitcher, another catcher the third was the batter, the dog the fielder and whenever a ball was sent into the field the dog retrieved it. The dog was having just as much sport as were the boys.

Ann Landers

Neglect of Father Disturbing

Dear Ann Landers: My dad and mother had been married 40 years when Mother died. A year later Dad married a very sweet, grandmotherly woman 15 years his junior. Doris was a good wife to him and they were happy. Six years later Dad died and left everything to Doris. This was fine with me as I was very fond of Doris and she treated me just like she treated her own children.

A few weeks ago Doris died. I almost went into a state of shock when I learned that Doris had left everything to her own grandchildren. This included the money she received when she sold my dad's business, the home my dad and mother lived in for many years, all the furnishings, her jewelry, and the life insurance she received when Dad died.

My children needed that inheritance and we were counting on it. I am so bitter I don't think I will ever get over this. It kills me to learn that Dad thought so little of us that he would allow such a thing to happen. Please help me get some peace of mind. --- WORLD DESTROYED.

Dear Destroyed: I suspect most of your anxiety stems from the notion that your father "thought so little of you, etc" -- but chances are that he did not think at all. He probably expected to live longer and write a will "some day." This is of course, unrealistic. The results of such poor thinking can be disastrous. I hope your letter will be a reminder to others who are procrastinating for reasons of superstition or just plain reluctance to face the fact that they will not live forever.

Dear Ann Landers: Add me to the endless list of people who never thought they would be writing to you. I just had to respond to the man who signed his letter, "No Bargain Myself."

He is right when he says it is hell to live with an emotionally disturbed person. I know because my husband was a severe alcoholic. I tried for years to fight his battle. I lied for him when I should have been encouraging him to help himself. Finally, I cracked under the strain.

This is a rough and demanding world and while many people are making it, everyone, no matter how strong, has a breaking point. To be emotionally healthy is the greatest of all blessings. Now that I have seen the other side of the Great Divide I truly appreciate what it means. I am trying to help others who are less fortunate than I and at the same time I am fighting for my own survival every moment of every day. --- NO ONE WOULD GUESS IT

Dear N.O.W.: This world is loaded with people who are quietly fighting for survival. I am filled with admiration for these struggling heroes and heorines for whom there are no medals --- only scars.

Dear Ann Landers: I am a 19-year-old blabbermouth who simply can't stop talking. I rattle on and on about inconsequential things and I'm sure I bore all my friends to death. To tell you the truth, I bore myself.

It seems that whenever there is a lapse in a conversation, even when there are nine people present, I feel it is my duty to break the silence. I blurt out absurd statements just because I think I must say something.

At the end of an evening I am disgusted with myself. What is wrong with me? What can I do to correct this? --- YA TA TA TA

Dear Ya: You are a compulsive talker and, like most compulsive talkers, you are trying to cover up your feelings of inadequacy. You need counseling. In the meantime, try to keep your mouth shut (by using sheer WILL power) unless you can improve on the silence.

What is French kissing? Is it wrong? Who should set the necking limits -- the boy or the girl? Can a shotgun wedding succeed? Read Ann Landers' booklet, "Teen-age Sex -- Ten Ways To Cool It." Send 50¢ in coin and a long, self - addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self - addressed envelope.

Treasurer's Post May Go to Man

WASHINGTON (AP)— An 18-year tradition that a woman be treasurer of the United States could be ending.

It's been nine months since Mrs. Kathryn O'Hay Granahan, a former member of Congress from Philadelphia, resigned as treasurer because of ill health.

Her signature however, still appears on the lower left corner of all new paper money. It will remain there until her successor is named.

Government insiders now say the job will go not to another woman— the last four treasurers have been women— but to William T. Howell, a career Treasury Department employe who is now deputy treasurer. Howell, has been acting treasurer since Mrs. Granahan's retirement last Oct. 13.

Under present law, the treasurer is appointed by the President and confirmed by the Senate. But there have been rumors the post might be placed under civil service.

Several prominent women mentioned in speculation as possible treasurer have obtained other jobs. Theese include former Sen. Maurine Neuberger, D-Ore., Miss Genevieve Blatt, former secretary of internal affairs for Pennsylvania, and Mrs. Marjorie Lawson, a former District of Columbia judge.

The last man to hold the job — and he was treasurer for 16 years— was W.A. Julian, who died in 1949.

Hampton to Continue in Job Corps

GRAY RIDGE -- James Hampton, Essex route one, is home on leave from the Gary job corps after completing six months training. Three months were spent at the Trapper Creek center in Montana. He has been accepted for a six months extension after which he plans to attend college to study architecture. The job corps will share part of the college expenses and he will work as a certified draftsman.

Hampton was referred to the job corps by the Richland community action agency.

He graduated from Richland high school in 1966.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Buddy Hampton.

They are formerly from Cardwell.

QUICK QUIZ

Q—Can birds see as well as humans?

A—Birds have developed powers of sight to a remarkable degree. Probably they surpass all other creatures in excellence of vision. Most birds can see clearly both at shorter and longer distances than man.

A—William Henry Harrison, who had 10 children, four of whom were alive when he became president.

A—That of Thomas Jefferson.

Q—Is the Appalachian Trail both a motor road and a hiking trail?

Copper May Be Reduced In Shells

It's a matter of economics.

Copper is more expensive than iron and the United States has been investing quite a lot of the metal around Southeast Asia in the form of artillery shells and small arms rounds.

Pentagon spokesmen say that in the case of larger shells— the 90mm, 105mm and 155mm— about two pounds of copper is expended per shot. Virtually all of this is in the shell's rotating band, which metallurgists believe can just as well be made of iron.

According to the Pentagon, U. S. forces in Vietnam fired roughly 15 million rounds of 90mm, and 155mm artillery shells between January 1966 and last May.

At two pounds of copper per shell, this indicates the United States shot off roughly 30 million pounds of copper in an 18-month period.

Pentagon spokesmen say defense supplies currently pay about 38 cents per pound for copper either from government stockpiles or from domestic producers. This is two cents higher than last year's price.

Just by saving that two cents per pound through iron substitution the Pentagon could, at current consumption rates, save $32,000 a month or $384,000 a year. Actual cost figures for the iron still are indefinite.

The General Services Administration says there is no shortage of copper. But its figures show a severe decline in copper stockpiles the past two years.

If You Were the Judge

Personal Services Pact Has Earthly Base

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

Karen always got carried away with anything in which she became involved. For example, when she decided to take dancing lessons, she signed up for no less than 10,000 hours of private tutoring.

Before she could take the first lesson, however, she was again carried away, literally this time. She died. Immediately, the executor of her estate demanded the return of the money Karen had paid for the unused lessons.

"It's not my fault she died," responded the proprietor of the dancing school. "Since I'm ready, willing and able to give her the lessons, even through a medium, I don't have to pay back a penny!"

The dispute ended up in court where the executor demanded the return of the money.

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you permit the proprietor of the school to keep the money of an angel?

This is how the judge ruled: The money had to be paid back. The judge held that legal contracts are generally binding upon people and their estates; that courts will not become involved in the wisdom or folly of provisions in such contracts.

But, the judge added, a contract for personalized services is predicted on the ability of one person to give and the other party to receive such services. If that's not possible, the contract may be cancelled.

We witnessed an interesting game of ball on the McMullin Park a few days ago. It consisted of three boys and a bird dog. One of the boys was pitcher, another catcher the third was the batter, the dog the fielder and whenever a ball was sent into the field the dog retrieved it. The dog was having just as much sport as were the boys.

Ann Landers

Neglect of Father Disturbing

Dear Ann Landers: My dad and mother had been married 40 years when Mother died. A year later Dad married a very sweet, grandmotherly woman 15 years his junior. Doris was a good wife to him and they were happy. Six years later Dad died and left everything to Doris. This was fine with me as I was very fond of Doris and she treated me just like she treated her own children.

A few weeks ago Doris died. I almost went into a state of shock when I learned that Doris had left everything to her own grandchildren. This included the money she received when she sold my dad's business, the home my dad and mother lived in for many years, all the furnishings, her jewelry, and the life insurance she received when Dad died.

My children needed that inheritance and we were counting on it. I am so bitter I don't think I will ever get over this. It kills me to learn that Dad thought so little of us that he would allow such a thing to happen. Please help me get some peace of mind. --- WORLD DESTROYED.

Dear Destroyed: I suspect most of your anxiety stems from the notion that your father "thought so little of you, etc" -- but chances are that he did not think at all. He probably expected to live longer and write a will "some day." This is of course, unrealistic. The results of such poor thinking can be disastrous. I hope your letter will be a reminder to others who are procrastinating for reasons of superstition or just plain reluctance to face the fact that they will not live forever.

Dear Ann Landers: Add me to the endless list of people who never thought they would be writing to you. I just had to respond to the man who signed his letter, "No Bargain Myself."

He is right when he says it is hell to live with an emotionally disturbed person. I know because my husband was a severe alcoholic. I tried for years to fight his battle. I lied for him when I should have been encouraging him to help himself. Finally, I cracked under the strain.

This is a rough and demanding world and while many people are making it, everyone, no matter how strong, has a breaking point. To be emotionally healthy is the greatest of all blessings. Now that I have seen the other side of the Great Divide I truly appreciate what it means. I am trying to help others who are less fortunate than I and at the same time I am fighting for my own survival every moment of every day.--- NO ONE WOULD GUESS IT

Dear N.O.W.: This world is loaded with people who are quietly fighting for survival. I am filled with admiration for these struggling heroes and heorines for whom there are no medals --- only scars.

Dear Ann Landers: I am a 19-year-old blabbermouth who simply can't stop talking. I rattle on and on about inconsequential things and I'm sure I bore all my friends to death. To tell you the truth, I bore myself.

It seems that whenever there is a lapse in a conversation, even when there are nine people present, I feel it is my duty to break the silence. I blurt out absurd statements just because I think I must say something.

At the end of an evening I am disgusted with myself. What is wrong with me? What can I do to correct this? --- YA TA TA TA

Dear Ya: You are a compulsive talker and, like most compulsive talkers, you are trying to cover up your feelings of inadequacy. You need counseling. In the meantime, try to keep your mouth shut (by using sheer WILL power) unless you can improve on the silence.

What is French kissing? Is it wrong? Who should set the necking limits -- the boy or the girl? Can a shotgun wedding succeed? Read Ann Landers' booklet, "Teen-age Sex -- Ten Ways To Cool It." Send 50¢ in coin and a long, self - addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self - addressed envelope.

Treasurer's Post May Go to Man

WASHINGTON (AP)— An 18-year tradition that a woman be treasurer of the United States could be ending.

It's been nine months since Mrs. Kathryn O'Hay Granahan, a former member of Congress from Philadelphia, resigned as treasurer because of ill health.

Her signature however, still appears on the lower left corner of all new paper money. It will remain there until her successor is named.

Government insiders now say the job will go not to another woman— the last four treasurers have been women— but to William T. Howell, a career Treasury Department employe who is now deputy treasurer. Howell, has been acting treasurer since Mrs. Granahan's retirement last Oct. 13.

Under present law, the treasurer is appointed by the President and confirmed by the Senate. But there have been rumors the post might be placed under civil service.

Several prominent women mentioned in speculation as possible treasurer have obtained other jobs. Theese include former Sen. Maurine Neuberger, D-Ore., Miss Genevieve Blatt, former secretary of internal affairs for Pennsylvania, and Mrs. Marjorie Lawson, a former District of Columbia judge.

The last man to hold the job — and he was treasurer for 16 years— was W.A. Julian, who died in 1949.

Hampton to Continue in Job Corps

GRAY RIDGE -- James Hampton, Essex route one, is home on leave from the Gary job corps after completing six months training. Three months were spent at the Trapper Creek center in Montana. He has been accepted for a six months extension after which he plans to attend college to study architecture. The job corps will share part of the college expenses and he will work as a certified draftsman.

Hampton was referred to the job corps by the Richland community action agency.

He graduated from Richland high school in 1966.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Buddy Hampton.

New Pastor At Dexter

DEXTER - Rev. Charles Chrisp has assumed the pastorate of the Second General Baptist Church. He and his wife and two children, Vickie, age 10 and David, 3, have already moved to Dexter and Rev. Chrisp began his ministry here last Sunday.

They are formerly from Cardwell.

QUICK QUIZ

Q—Can birds see as well as humans?

A—Birds have developed powers of sight to a remarkable degree. Probably they surpass all other creatures in excellence of vision. Most birds can see clearly both at shorter and longer distances than man.

Copper May Be Reduced In Shells

It's a matter of economics.

Copper is more expensive than iron and the United States has been investing quite a lot of the metal around Southeast Asia in the form of artillery shells and small arms rounds.

Pentagon spokesmen say that in the case of larger shells— the 90mm, 105mm and 155mm— about two pounds of copper is expended per shot. Virtually all of this is in the shell's rotating band, which metallurgists believe can just as well be made of iron.

According to the Pentagon, U. S. forces in Vietnam fired roughly 15 million rounds of 90mm, and 155mm artillery shells between January 1966 and last May.

At two pounds of copper per shell, this indicates the United States shot off roughly 30 million pounds of copper in an 18-month period.

Pentagon spokesmen say defense supplies currently pay about 38 cents per pound for copper either from government stockpiles or from domestic producers. This is two cents higher than last year's price.

Just by saving that two cents per pound through iron substitution the Pentagon could, at current consumption rates, save $32,000 a month or $384,000 a year. Actual cost figures for the iron still are indefinite.

The General Services Administration says there is no shortage of copper. But its figures show a severe decline in copper stockpiles the past two years.

New Madrid Doctor Awarded Fellowship

Herman A. Crisler

PHILADELPHIA -- Dr. Herman A. Crisler, Jr., of 1030 Scott St., New Madrid, Mo., has been awarded a residency fellowship in pediatrics by Wyeth Laboratories, it is announced by Dr. Philip S. Barba, chairman of the selection committee and adjunct professor of pediatrics, Temple University school of medicine.

Dr. Crisler served his internship at the City of Memphis Hospital and undertakes his residency there. He received his medical education at the University of Tennessee.

The fellowship, one of 15 sponsored by the Wyeth Fund for postgraduate medical education this year, provides $4,800 during a two - year period to enable each physician to complete advanced study in the care and treatment of children. Dr. Crisler is in the tenth group to be awarded Wyeth fellowships under the program established in 1958 by the Philadelphia pharmaceutical manufacturer.

"Continuing medical education is important for every physician, and at Wyeth we are pleased we can encourage young doctors like Dr. Crisler to devote at least two more years to training while serving young patients at fine institutions such as the City of Memphis Hospital," Herbert W. Blades, president of Wyeth, commented when the fellowship was announced. "We would like to encourage many more young people to pursue medical careers, so that the medical profession and the hospitals may maintain the high levels of patient care they have established in this country."

Dr. Barba, emeritus associate professor of the University of Pennsylvania school of medicine, and past president of the American Academy of Pediatrics, said the selection of the Fellowship recipients is based on evidence of good character, academic achievement, performance of duty and need for financial assistance. The Wyeth Fellows may train in any hospital whose residency program is accredited by the residency review committee of the American Board of Pediatrics and the Council on Medical Education and Hospitals of the American Medical Association.

Delays Threaten Final I-55 Link

CAPE GIRARDEAU - Construction of the final link of Interstate 55 from Fruitland north to the newly opened section at Festus might be delayed if the federal government demands new built-in highway safety standards.

News reports out of Jefferson City today said the state highway department is disturbed by the new requirements, which would greatly increase costs and require redesign of highways now set for construction.

Highway officials in Jefferson City say it is almost certain the federal standards will be imposed and when they are it will mean a delay in the state's interstate highway system.

Completion was originally set for 1972, but it is now thought likely 1975 will be the earliest date.

Recently, after complaints about the timetable for completing the Fruitland - Fistus link of I-55, the state highway department said it would be advanced one year to 1971. But it gave no assurance that even that would be met, pointing out numerous factors could delay the start.

News reports said the Festus-Fruitland I-55 link is now in the design stage. It is feared if the government insists on the new safety standards, the work will have to be redone with a resulting delay.

New federal standards include additional right of way, wider bridges and a more gentle slope. These are time consuming features if highways already planned or in the desing stage must be made to meet new standards.

WASHINGTON (ANF)—A group of United States Military Academy Cadets visited the Office of the Army Chief of Information recently and attended orientation briefings on the Army's Information Program.

The Cadets represented "Pointer," the monthly Cadet magazine; "Howitzer," the Cadet yearbook; the Cadet Public Information Detail, and the Cadet Public Relations Council.

MAIL BOX

EDITOR:

Please print the following letter for the kids I know from the University. I told some of them (I won't mention any names) that I would write one letter for all of them sometime during the summer and, this is it.

Thank you very much
Ethelyn Hart

I didn't know if the name of your paper was "Sikeston Daily Gazette," "Sikeston Journal" or "Sikeston Weekly". All I remember is Mary Liebel, Deidre Harber, Carol Werneck, and Kay Walton all gathered around its ten pages or so reading the news to each other and other listeners. I think it was a daily chore, so that would rule out the name "Sikeston Weekly."

This letter is to say "Hi" to: Mary, Kay, C.J. Deidre, Randy, Wayne, Alan, Skip and everyone else I've met from "Gods' Country".

I promised I would write you sooner, but that's the way it goes, I guess. I have been busy and everytime I'd start to write something would come come up. Then, I decided to go ahead and mail this letter. It is saving me writing and time. Of course I'd never write this much in one letter to one person. Since this is to everyone of you that I know or have heard so much about that I feel like I know you, I had to make it a little longer. Quite a bit longer. Also I had to write something worth printing in the paper. I've got to go now. I'll see most of you in September, I hope. If any of you take a notion to write a letter to me, go ahead. I'll be glad to hear from you.

From you'all's friend,
Ethelyn

P.S. Mary Liebel please take care of Gary Wayne. I left him out earlier in the letter. Hi, Gary Wayne. (You take care of Mary, too!)

New Madrid Doctor Awarded Fellowship

Herman A. Crisler

PHILADELPHIA -- Dr. Herman A. Crisler, Jr., of 1030 Scott St., New Madrid, Mo., has been awarded a residency fellowship in pediatrics by Wyeth Laboratories, it is announced by Dr. Philip S. Barba, chairman of the selection committee and adjunct professor of pediatrics, Temple University school of medicine.

Dr. Crisler served his internship at the City of Memphis Hospital and undertakes his residency there. He received his medical education at the University of Tennessee.

The fellowship, one of 15 sponsored by the Wyeth Fund for postgraduate medical education this year, provides $4,800 during a two - year period to enable each physician to complete advanced study in the care and treatment of children. Dr. Crisler is in the tenth group to be awarded Wyeth fellowships under the program established in 1958 by the Philadelphia pharmaceutical manufacturer.

"Continuing medical education is important for every physician, and at Wyeth we are pleased we can encourage young doctors like Dr. Crisler to devote at least two more years to training while serving young patients at fine institutions such as the City of Memphis Hospital," Herbert W. Blados, president of Wyeth, commented when the fellowship was announced. "We would like to encourage many more young people to pursue medical careers, so that the medical profession and the hospitals may maintain the high levels of patient care they have established in this country."

Dr. Barba, emeritus associate professor of the University of Pennsylvania school of medicine, and past president of the American Academy of Pediatrics, said the selection of the Fellowship recipients is based on evidence of good character, academic achievement, performance of duty and need for financial assistance. The Wyeth Fellows may train in any hospital whose residency program is accredited by the residency review committee of the American Board of Pediatrics and the Council on Medical Education and Hospitals of the American Medical Association.

Delays Threaten Final I-55 Link

CAPE GIRARDEAU - Construction of the final link of Interstate 55 from Fruitland north to the newly opened section at Festus might be delayed if the federal government demands new built-in highway safety standards.

News reports out of Jefferson City today said the state highway department is disturbed by the new requirements, which would greatly increase costs and require redesign of highways now set for construction.

Highway officials in Jefferson City say it is almost certain the federal standards will be imposed and when they are it will mean a delay in the state's interstate highway system.

Completion was originally set for 1972, but it is now thought likely 1975 will be the earliest date.

Recently, after complaints about the timetable for completing the Fruitland - Fistus link of I-55, the state highway department said it would be advanced one year to 1971. But it gave no assurance that even that would be met, pointing out numerous factors could delay the start.

News reports said the Festus-Fruitland I-55 link is now in the design stage. It is feared if the government insists on the new safety standards, the work will have to be redone with a resulting delay.

New federal standards include additional right of way, wider bridges and a more gentle slope. These are time consuming features if highways already planned or in the desing stage must be made to meet new standards.

WASHINGTON (ANF)—A group of United States Military Academy Cadets visited the Office of the Army Chief of Information recently and attended orientation briefings on the Army's Information Program.

MUTINY of the native army and police force in British-protected South Arabian Federation and continued sniping at British forces in the colony of Aden may upset London's plans to grant full independence next Jan. 9. Long a British Middle East stronghold, the federation (Aden and 16 other states) has recently been wracked by Arab nationalist strife spilling over from neighboring Yemen's civil war between Egyptian and Saudi Arabian-backed sides.

MAIL BOX

EDITOR:

Please print the following letter for the kids I know from the University. I told some of them (I won't mention any names) that I would write one letter for all of them sometime during the summer and, this is it.

Thank you very much
Ethelyn Hart

I didn't know if the name of your paper was "Sikeston Daily Gazette," "Sikeston Journal" or "Sikeston Weekly". All I remember is Mary Liebel, Deidre Harber, Carol Werneck, and Kay Walton all gathered around its ten pages or so reading the news to each other and other listeners. I think it was a daily chore, so that would rule out the name "Sikeston Weekly."

This letter is to say "Hi" to: Mary, Kay, C.J. Deidre, Randy, Wayne, Alan, Skip and everyone else I've met from "Gods' Country".

I promised I would write you sooner, but that's the way it goes, I guess. I have been busy and everytime I'd start to write something would come come up. Then, I decided to go ahead and mail this letter. It is saving me writing and time. Of course I'd never write this much in one letter to one person. Since this is to everyone of you that I know or have heard so much about that I feel like I know you, I had to make it a little longer. Quite a bit longer. Also I had to write something worth printing in the paper. I've got to go now. I'll see most of you in September, I hope. If any of you take a notion to write a letter to me, go ahead. I'll be glad to hear from you.

From you'all's friend,
Ethelyn

P.S. Mary Liebel please take care of Gary Wayne. I left him out earlier in the letter. Hi, Gary Wayne. (You take care of Mary, too!)

CRICKETEER

The sweet songs of the summertime
Grow fainter every day;
Rhythms, that call some poets to rhyme,
Fade with that symphony.
No longer is the sedgebrush green,
Soon, frost will kiss the lea..
Thou cricket, are you leave the scene,

all and I did not want to disappoint anyone. I get tired of writing the same things over and over again so this letter will get to all of you without me exerting any extra effort.

How is "God's Country"? Is it as prosperous as the country I live in? (We don't call our land up here by any certain name except the town it's near.)

I sure hope you all are having a great summer. Mary, I hope you don't get all "booked up" working at the Bank. - C.J. don't let the bugs eat you up at Camp Latonka. Deidre, I hope you got your "feet started" along with your "head". Kay, keep smiling and be good. Randy and Wayne, I can't think of anything to say to you all at the moment, so don't feel hurt - whatever I'd say, you two would have it changed to something else, and have me going in circles to get it right. By that time I'd forget what I said to begin with. Alan and Skip, I think I met you once, but I feel like I really know you from all the others talking about you. I won't say what they said, I'll just let you know they talk about you. I didn't want you to feel left out so I'll say hi to both of you.

I am working at a Day Camp. Like my luck always goes, I ended up working in an office until last week. I worked in the office that is, operating the camp. I did spend a few days clearing camp sites - 10 of us worked on them. We had to cut everything from poison ivy to baby thorn trees. It took us forever. It's a wonder all of us are still alive. We used axes, grass whips, hatchets, shovels, DDT (I guess, it is a spray), etc.

The first week at Camp we had 200 kids. 1/2 of them weren't supposed to be there, but somehow or another they came. This week we are supposed to have 100 kids. Somedays I wish none would come. It seems that my group has all the winners in it. They get into fights and are kicked out of camp. One day they wanted to play "Hide and Seek." The only problem was I was the one they wanted to hide. I didn't hide, so don't worry, I'm not lost.

By the way, I have been driving our car and haven't had a wreck yet.

I hope to go skiing before long. Everytime I've wanted to go, I couldn't. I guess I can't say I want to go skiing, but I want to learn to ski so I can go skiing.

For those of you who wrote to me, I'm sorry that I didn't write

Today In U. S. History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Wednesday, July 19, the 200th day of 1967. There are 165 more days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1941, the "V for Victory" campaign in Europe was launched at midnight with a broadcast by Prime Minister Winston Churchill of Great Britain.

On this date:

In 1776, Congress resolved "the declaration adopted on the fourth be fairly engrossed on parchment with the title and stile (sic) of 'The Unanimous Declaration of the Thirteen United States of America'."

In 1870, the Franco-Prussian War began.

In 1918, German armies began to retreat across the Marne River in France after their last great World War I offensive in that country was successfully repulsed by the Allies.

Today In U. S. History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Wednesday, July 19, the 200th day of 1967. There are 165 more days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1941, the "V for Victory" campaign in Europe was launched at midnight with a broadcast by Prime Minister Winston Churchill of Great Britain.

On this date:

In 1776, Congress resolved "the declaration adopted on the fourth be fairly engrossed on parchment with the title and stile (sic) of 'The Unanimous Declaration of the Thirteen United States of America'."

In 1870, the Franco-Prussian War began.

In 1918, German armies began to retreat across the Marne River in France after their last great World War I offensive in that country was successfully repulsed by the Allies.

One year ago — Navy Cmdr. Michael Collins made an hour-long space stand during second day of Gemini 10 mission.

TIZZY — by Kate Osann

.ne Ellen's little brother used to be a living doll, but he's already learned to walk and talk!"

"But, Frank, couldn't you and Mr. Cooper talk shop some other time?"
